Aero Club of America Plans to Hold Record Event in Midsummer.

FLIERS MUST NOT ALIGHT

Speed of 100 Miles an Hour Expected—Machines Must Be of Over-Water Type.

Aviators from all parts of the country met at the Aero Club of America yesterday to discuss a flying event which is being planned as the chief feature of the Aero Club's programme, as far as local flights are concerned, for the coming Summer.

The proposed event is an aeroplane race from the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor to the Boston Light in Boston Harbor and return. The distance, approximately 600 miles, is greater than that covered in any race thus far held in this country.

All aeroplanes which have to alight at any point during the round-trip flight will be disqualified. Only aeroplanes equipped with pontoons for landing on the water or constructed as flying boats will be allowed to enter. The race is intended, in fact, to call attention to the new tendency in aviation to get away from development of the land-going machines and to press forward in the improvement of craft intended for use over water.

It is the belief of President Alan R. Hawley of the Aero Club that nearly a score of airmen will enter the race and that it will be much more successful than was the race from Belmont Park to the Statue of Liberty and return in 1911.

"We have tentatively picked out what is practically an all-water course," said Mr. Hawley. "After starting from Governors Island, or some point on the New Jersey shore or Staten Island the aviators will be required to fly above a starting line at the Statue of Liberty. Their course will then lie above the East River. They will be required to pass over all of the river bridges and then will turn eastward above Long Island Sound.

"The route up the Sound will call for straight eastward flying to Buzzard's Bay, until Martha's Vineyard is reached Observers may be stationed at Martha's Vineyard, to the left of which the aviators will pass. At first there was some sentiment in favor of a route lying outside of Cape Cod, but this plan was abandoned in favor of a route calling for the crossing of Cape Cod along the route of the Cape Cod Canal.

"As the aeroplanes reach Massachusetts Bay a guide post will be visible to them which will direct them toward the point where Boston Light is.

"Judges will be stationed at the Light to see that all contestants swing around it before starting upon the return journey. According to the present plan, the race will occur in midsummer, as it is desired to avoid the heavy winds prevailing in the Fall. While a high wind would not prevent the race, it would give the aviators a hard fight so far as the making of good speed against it is concerned.

"I believe the winner of the flight will be back at the Statue of Liberty within six hours after the start. And that calls for flying at the rate of 100 miles an hour.

"We do not intend to fix a definite date, but rather to fix a week within which the flight will occur and then start it upon a day when the Weather Bureau promises an absence of fog and rain.

"The distance, roughly estimated, will be approximately 600 miles. but before the plans are completed accurate measurements will be made that those entering the race may be given the fullest possible information as to every feature that may count toward victory.

Among the aviators who met at the Aero Club to talk over the proposed race, and to examine the plans for the giant flying boat which is being constructed for the Rodman Wanamaker transatlantic expedition, were J. B. R. Verplanck, who with Beckwith Havens flew from Chicago to Detroit last year in a wind that drove shipping from the Great Lakes; J. A. D. McCurdy, Capt. Thomas Baldwin, who has flown in nearly every country on the globe; John Guy Gilpatric, one of the fliers in THE TIMES Aerial Derby around Manhattan Island, and Israel Ludlow, a pioneer experimenter in the field of aviation, who is now designing a flying boat for transatlantic service.

CONFIDENT OF OCEAN FLIGHT.

Lieut. Porte Predicts Crossing of the Atlantic in Twenty Hours.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, Feb. 6.—Lieut. John C. Porte of the Royal Navy Flying Corps, who has been chosen to share with an American airman the piloting of a Curtiss aeroboat on the transatlantic flight financed by Rodman Wanamaker, says in an interview in The Daily Mail:

"It is a long flight, but quite straightforward. I think we shall do it. I reckon we ought to do it in twenty hours, which means going over 100 miles an hour.

"The machine will have a span of about 75 feet and a length of about 50 feet. We shall not have any floats, but a very light boat, 50 feet by 5 feet, like a canoe.

"If we come down we shall float for hours unless the sea is rough, but then we shall fly only in calm weather.

"In fact, I do not think there is any need to bother about the weather. We shall probably start in August or September, when a spell of fine weather is certain. The weather comes from the other side of the Atlantic. It would, therefore, be a much more difficult job if we were starting from this side.

"We shall keep as near as possible to the route of the liners, so that a ship can pick us up in case of accident. We shall have a little store of emergency provisions in case we are left like shipwrecked mariners on AMERICAN HELD IN LONDON.

Woman Alleges He Posed as J. P. Morgan's Friend to Swindle Her.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—John Archibald Campbell Mason, a middle-aged American, who is said to have been leading the life of a wealthy man in an expensive flat in St. James Street, Piccadilly, was charged at the Guildhall to-day with obtaining from Ethel S. Lucena of Brighton £500 by false pretenses. He was also charged with the fraudulent conversion of money which was intrusted to him for investment.

Mrs. Lucena alleged that Mason asked her to marry him and told her that he was a friend of J. Pierpont Morgan, with whom he was educated in the same school. Mason, she testified, said he could get tips from Mr. Morgan, and asked her for £2,000 to invest in Mr. Morgan's companies. She finally handed over £500, which, she says, she discovered he never invested.

Mason was remanded on bail. His counsel assured the court that the prisoner was a well-known man in America.

A man known as John Archibald Campbell Mason and his wife were arrested in London and arraigned at the Bow Street Police Court in April, 1907, for extradition on the charge of obtaining money and goods under false pretenses in Florence. It was charged that the two had passed checks for more than $2,000, payment of which was refused. The defendants asserted that the arrest was due to a misunderstanding, and that the checks were returned because their relatives in America had by mistake neglected to deposit money which was promised to the account of Mason and his wife. The affair was straightened out and the charge against them was dismissed.

The Mason, arrested in 1907, is related to some of the leading families in Baltimore. He spent most of his early life there, and was identified with club life and the hunting set. For the last twenty years he had lived away from Baltimore. He was married in Chicago nearly fifteen years ago.

AGAIN BAR MARIE LLOYD.

Actress Held Up at Border After Completing Canadian Tour.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 5.—Marie Lloyd, English vaudeville singer, was unable to obtain readmission to the United States to-day when she made application for permission to cross the international border after the completion of a theatrical engagement in Vancouver. She was refused on the ground of "moral turpitude," the provision in the American immigration regulations under which her application was considered when she first applied for admission at Ellis Island, New York. An appeal in the present case will be made to the Secretary of State at Washington.

Miss Lloyd was first admitted to the United States only after she had put up a cash bond. The time limit on this guarantee expires March 4. A fine legal point arises as to whether the crossing of the international border to Winnipeg by the actress when she visited the Canadian Northwest to fulfil engagements automatically canceled the bond or whether it is still in force.

Bernard Dillon, a jockey, who accompanied Miss Lloyd on her trip across the Atlantic, married her in Chicago about a month ago on receipt of a cable from London announcing the death of Alec Hurley, her first husband.

Miss Lloyd arrived on board the White Star liner Olympic with Dillon on Oct. 1. They occupied the same stateroom and were entered on the ship's books as "Mr. and Mrs. Dillon." Miss Lloyd admitted that they were not married and she and the jockey were held on board the vessel overnight and were taken to Ellis Island the next day. They were ordered deported by the Special Board of Inquiry. Miss Lloyd appealed to Washington, and was permitted to enter the country on condition that she furnish a bond of $1,500 to remain only during her engagements here. Dillon was released under a similar bond.

HOME FOR 'GENTLEWOMEN.'

Miss MacDowell's Will Aids Those Whose Relatives Are Cold.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 5.—The will of Miss Annie Coe MacDowell, who died at her home in Yonkers early in January, was filed with Surrogate William A. Sawyer here to-day. Miss MacDowell leaves her entire fortune for the establishment of a home for "refined, educated, and Protestant gentlewomen whose means are small and whose home is made unhappy by having to live with relatives who think them in the way."

Miss MacDowell left her one-half share of the estate of her father, David MacDowell, the value of which is not given, and $10,000 in various savings banks for the founding and maintenance of the home which she desires to be known as the Mary Randol Memorial Home, in honor of her mother. She names the Westchester Trust Company of Yonkers as her executor and asks that seven women and men be selected by the Board of Vestrymen of St. John's Episcopal Church of Yonkers to serve as a Board of Governors of the home.

RURAL DEATH RATE ALARMS.

State Grange Finds It Higher Than in New York City.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Feb. 5.—Stirred to action by the fact that the death rate in rural New York from all causes is considerably higher than the rate in New York City, the Health Committee of the State Grange at the convention in this city to-day recommended the establishment of a division of rural hygiene in the New York State Department of Health.

Much astonishment was expressed when the health committee of the Grange pointed out that, while the death rate in the metropolis has been 13.7 per 1,000 persons of the population, the death rate in the country districts, villages, and towns of less than 8,000 population has been 15.4.

WOMAN JUDGE AVENGED.

Chicagoan Convicted of Striking Girl Election Official.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Joseph McDonough, charged by his cousin, Mae Walsh, an election Judge, with having struck her while she was pursuing her election duties, was sentenced to six months in jail to-day. He was released on bond pending appeal.

Miss Walsh testified that she had entered McDonough's home attending her election duties and that in putting her out he had handled her roughly.

Relatives of both families testified that there had been quarrels between the McDonough and Walsh branches for years and that Miss Walsh had been warned not to enter the home.

SCHMIDT IS GUILTY IN THE FIRST DEGREE

Slayer Greets the Verdict with a Laugh and Says He Wants to Die.

HE OPPOSES AN APPEAL

Justice Davis Tells the Jurors to Use Common Sense—Threat for Schmidt's Counsel.

Hans Schmidt, the former priest, who on Sept. 2 last slew Anna Aumuller, a servant employed at St. Boniface's rectory, Second Avenue and Forty-seventh Street, and threw portions of her dismembered body into the Hudson, was convicted of murder in the first degree yesterday afternoon by a jury in the Criminal Term of the Supreme Court. The verdict was brought in at 5:25 o'clock, after deliberation of two hours and thirty-five minutes.

Schmidt, who opposed a plea of insanity and sat through two long trials with apparent indifference, heard the verdict with composure. He went back to his cell in the Tombs, and, after a hearty meal, went to bed. Awakened an hour later by his lawyer, Alphonse G. Koelble, he said that he wanted to die immediately. Justice Davis will sentence him on Feb. 12.

The case went to the jury at 12:25 o'clock. Before beginning their deliberations the jurors went to luncheon. It was 3:15 o'clock, forty-five minutes after they actualy began to review the evidence, that the jurors sent to Justice Davis for several documents introduced in evidence, including Dr. Herman's report on the question of Schmidt's sanity after his arrest in Munich, the Schmidt family tree, the defendant's life history which he prepared for Dr. Lichtenstein, the Tombs physician, and diagrams showing the manner in which the victim's body was cut up.

The jurors sent word at 5 o'clock that they had reached a verdict. Justice Davis was called, and twenty-five minutes later the twelve men filed into the courtroom. District Attorney Whitman was present to hear the verdict and sat by Assistant District Attorney Delehanty, who tried the case.

"Jurymen look upon the defendant, defendant look upon the jury," said Court Clerk Penney. Schmidt gazed stolidly at E. Howard Underhill, the foreman. "Gentlemen of the jury," the clerk continued, "have you agreed on a verdict?"

"We have," said Mr. Underhill. "We find the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree."

Schmidt broke the silence with a laugh, and then turned as if to leave the courtroom. Clerk Penney then asked the usual questions.

Schmidt said that he was 32 years old and that he was born in Aschaffenburg, Germany. When he was asked to give his address, he hesitated and then said "405 West 125th Street," which is St. Joseph's Church. In a choking voice he gave his occupation as "priest."

"Are you married?" the clerk asked. Schmidt was silent for several moments and the clerk repeated the question "Yes," he said finally in a voice scarcely audible.

He laughed at the next question, which was "Are you temperate, intemperate, or moderate?" and answered "moderate." After Justice Davis had dismissed the jury Schmidt strode out of the courtroom.

"I am satisfied with the verdict," he told Mr. Koelble later. "I would rather die to-day than to-morrow. I notify you that I do not want you to appeal and that I will not in any way assist you if you try to bring the case to a higher court. I would do nothing to prevent what I know is going to happen to me"

Foreman Underhill said afterward that at the end of the trial there was no doubt in the mind of any juror from the first about the verdict.

In his charge to the jury Justice Davis said:

"If you are satisfied that the defendant purchased the knife and saw with which he cut up the body, thinking of using them as he did, and if you are satisfied that in the middle of the night he went to the flat, took off his coat, and cut her throat, and then cut up her body, what conclusion do you come to? Did he intend to kill her? Use your common sense, your man's reason, and your experience with men. Bear in mind it isn't every form of mental unsoundness that excuses a crime."

Terence J. McManus, of Schmidt's counsel, received a threatening letter yesterday which he gave to the postal authorities. It was postmarked "Hudson Terminal, 5:30 P. M., Feb. 4." At the top was a skull and crossbones. "Look out," the letter said. "Beware! If you free Hans Schmidt, I'll murder you." The letter was signed "Justice."

Schmidt's first trial began on Dec. 7 before Judge Foster in General Sessions and ended on Dec. 30, when, after thirty-four hours' deliberation, the jury stood ten to two for conviction and was discharged. The second trial began on Jan. 19.

In both trials the defense tried to show that Schmidt had been afflicted with a "blood lust," which in time developed into religious mania, which demanded the sacrifice of a human being. Assistant District Attorney Delehanty offered evidence to show that the murder was premeditated.

GOAT CHEWS BABY'S HAND.

Left Alone in House, Poor Little Cecilia Loses Two Fingers.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Feb. 5.—"Cecilia, No. 10402," three-months-old girl procured from the New York Foundling Hospital a few days ago by Mrs. Maria Asturino of No. 321 Malcolm Avenue, Garfield, lay in her crib this morning when the foster mother went shopping. Mrs. Asturino left her kitchen door ajar, and one of the herd of goats that infest the Italian colony there forced its way into the house.

The goat found its way to the cradle and began to feed off the baby's hand. As Mrs. Asturino neared home she heard the baby screaming. The goat was chewing the tiny hand when the frantic woman beat off the animal.

Mrs. Asturino brought the child to Prosecutor Wright's office here in Hackensack, believing she had grounds for a civil action against the owner of the goat. The Prosecutor was shocked when he saw the wound and called in Dr. Frederick S. Hallet. He hurried to the Hackensack Hospital in his auto with the child, where he and Dr. Magone amputated two of the baby's fingers. Blood poisoning is feared, and the baby will be kept at the hospital for observation.

PROWLING GANGSTER SHOOTS TWO IN KINGS

Puts Bullet Under the Heart of a Policeman Who Tried to Search Him.

Policeman Edward Murtha of the Butler Street Station, Brooklyn, was warned by neighborhood rumors last night that trouble was brewing on his beat. He could not run down the rumors to any definite source, but became watchful. About 9:30 o'clock he noticed a young Italian walking up and down again and again on Fourth Street between Hoyt and Smith Streets, both hands in his pockets and his eyes glancing now to the right now to the left. Murtha stopped the man and asked him what he was seeking there. The Italian mumbled an answer he could not understand.

"Got a gun?" asked Murtha, feeling of the man's clothing to convince himself before the fellow could answer.

With an oath the Italian drew his right hand from his pocket, and with it a revolver. He pressed it against the policeman's chest before Murtha could knock the weapon aside and fired. Murtha fell to the sidewalk, a bullet wound just under his heart.

Dozens of watchers from the dark entrances of houses on the block saw the whole proceeding and heard the shot. As the policeman fell they darted out of the hallways and gave chase to his assailant, shouting a cry not unfamiliar in the neighborhood:

"Get him! He shot a cop!"

Through Fourth Street the chase led, the crowd in pursuit growing every moment. The Italian darted around the corner into Hoyt and north to Third Street. At the corner James O'Connor, a stationary fireman, was almost bowled over by the fugitive, who continued west on Third Street, flourishing his revolver as he ran. O'Connor gave chase and got within a few feet of the Italian, when the fugitive turned again, and, scarcely looking at him as he ran, pointed his revolver back and fired. O'Connor fell to the street, a bullet in his abdomen.

The Italian ran on to First Street, a crowd of more than 100 now howling at his heels. At First and Bond Streets he brushed past Policeman Patrick Griffin of the Butler Street Station, but before the latter could seize him he was gone. Griffin joined in the chase and got within a few yards of the Italian, when again the fugitive wheeled around and fired. This time his shot went wild. Badly winded, he sped a block further to Degraw Street.

There Policeman Charles Stuckle ran into the chase, his own revolver drawn and ready for action. As the fugitive, still brandishing his revolver wildly, ran past Stuckle fired. The Italian tossed his weapon into the gutter and sped on. But he was worn out, and in another moment Stuckle had grabbed him. The prisoner had no speed left in him, but plenty of fight, and before the howling mob had caught up with him he had bitten and scratched and kicked the policeman until Stuckle was compelled to use his nightstick. The Italian, a mass of bruises and streaming with blood, sank to his knees just as the mob came ravenously upon him.

News of the shooting and chase had reached the Butler Street Station. Lieut. Gallagher called out the reserves, and at their head followed the traces of the wild chase. They passed the place where Policeman Murtha had fallen, while an ambulance surgeon of the Holy Family Hospital was bending over him. A little further on they passed O'Connor, lying in the street, with a clamorous crowd around him. And a few moments later they came upon a wild, fighting crowd around Policeman Stuckle and his prisoner. Missiles were being hurled upon the two from all sides, and the crowd was howling for the Italian's blood.

It was all the reserves could do to beat their way through the surging mass of the mob, and to draw a line around Stuckle and his prisoner. Thereafter it was deemed unsafe to wait for the patrol wagon, and equally unsafe to lead the prisoner back over the route of the chase, strewn as it was with his victims and with would-be avengers.

Detectives Clare and Regan, who had come with the reserves, managed to get the prisoner to Smith Street and there hustle him aboard a street car, on which they conveyed him to the Holy Family Hospital. There he was led before Murtha and O'Connor, both of whom identified him as the man who had shot them.

The prisoner said he was Joseph Arino, 25 years old, and that he lived in Manhattan on Avenue A, between Twelfth and Thirteenth Streets. He refused to make any statement, and was locked up for felonious assault and for carrying a deadly weapon. The police think he came from Manhattan to satisfy a private grudge with one of the gangsters in the Red Hook section of Brooklyn.

At the hospital it was said Murtha would probably die. He has been on the police force since 1907. The condition of O'Connor was said to be critical.

BIRDS BATTLE IN THE AIR.

Big Flock of Blackbirds Victorious Over Subway Sparrows.

A flock of 300 blackbirds which for the past week has been hovering over that part of Harlem just above Morningside Heights arrived just at sundown last evening in a vacant lot to the east of the Subway station at 129th Street and Broadway. With a tremendous hubbub, as if matters of vast importance were in the air, they settled into the trees, whence, presently, a small committee flew forth and headed straight for the recesses beneath the elevated platform, which is some fifty feet above the street. In this shelter are the Winter nests of some 150 sparrows.

The committee was received coldly, and as its members dipped tantalizingly down to the level of the tracks, the sparrows came forth and drove them off. It was a declaration of war. Over from the lot came all the blackbirds, chattering angrily, and over the tracks and around and about the station there was a battle in the air.

It was a bitter fight and a noisy one, and it lasted all of ten minutes. The uproar halted the homegoing Harlemites on the platform and brought forth from the saloons below a crowd of gaping men who cheered from the sidewalks and laid small wagers on the outcome.

At the end of ten minutes the sparrows retreated into the darkness, leaving behind them six of their number dead, while from the station roof the blackbirds twittered and chirped their song of victory.

SOCIAL CLUBS HIT BY INCOME TAX LAW

Internal Revenue Commissioner Says Incorporated Organizations Must Pay.

That the income tax law is an almost inexhaustible mine of surprises was demonstrated afresh yesterday when it was discovered that clubs such as the Union League, Metropolitan, University, Midday, and Lawyers' were subject to the tax, provided they were incorporated. It is supposed that Congress did not intend that such organizations should come within the law, but failed to exempt them through an oversight, and the result is that they are taxable, according to an official determination by Internal Revenue Commissioner W. H. Osborn.

A lawyer who is a member of several downtown luncheon clubs noticed that the income tax law, in re-enacting, with some modifications, the older corporation excise tax law, had been differently phrased and that there seemed to be no specific provision as to clubs of this sort.

In the former law returns were required of all corporations except those "not organized for profit," which exempted social clubs. In the income tax law the phrase "not organized for profit" had dropped out, and in its stead was a clause stating specifically the kind of organizations that were exempt from the tax.

These included labor, agricultural, or horticultural organizations; mutual savings banks, fraternal beneficiary societies, orders or associations operating under the lodge system, domestic building and loan associations, cemetery companies operated for the mutual benefit of their members, religious, charitable, scientific, or educational societies; business leagues, Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade, and "civic leagues for the promotion of social welfare."

The only language even remotely suggesting a social club was that concerning "social welfare," and the view taken by the lawyer was that this must mean "uplift" societies for the social welfare of others. He knew that under the older law clubs had been exempt and none of those he belonged to had contemplated for a moment the necessity of making returns of its income and operating expense this year.

Many clubs have no "profits" or net income at the end of the year and it is not uncommon for them to be run at a loss, but the income tax law, as affecting corporations, is different from that affecting individuals, in that it requires a return from every corporation, without any $3,000 exemption and even if it has a net loss for the year. Under the old law corporations were exempt from taxation on $5,000 of their profits, but nevertheless all had to file returns. Under the income tax law there is no exemption for corporations and, of course, no exemption from making returns.

The lawyer in order to clear up all doubts, wrote to the Internal Revenue Commissioner and yesterday he received a reply, saying that, as clubs were not among those specifically exempted, they were apparently subject to the tax and would be required to file returns of their net income and pay any tax shown to be due.

The lawyer asked specifically about luncheon clubs, but undoubtedly all other social clubs that are incorporated are in the same position. The fact that in this State they are usually membership corporations, rather than stock corporations, would seem to make no difference, as the Federal law speaks of corporations without taking account of any differences in their form of organization.

All returns under the law must be filed on or before Mach 1, so that the officers and bookkeepers of social clubs, thus suddenly awakened to a requirement they never dreamed of, will have occasion to get to work at once on the compilations of their receipts and expenditures.

ARREST IN HOTEL WALLICK.

Struggle in Dining Room as Rosenthal, Long Wanted, Is Found.

A fight in the restaurant of the Hotel Wallick, Broadway and Forty-third Street, early last night was followed by the arrest of a man who said at the West Forty-seventh Street Station that he was Milton Rosenthal, a broker, 24 years old, but refused to give his address. Morris Pollock of Central Avenue and Daniel Kaufmann of Greenwich Avenue, Far Rockaway, who allege that they gave Rosenthal $3,500 to invest, after which he disappeared, effected the arrest, after a struggle which caused some excitement in the restaurant.

While Pollock was struggling with Rosenthal, who was dining with several friends, Kaufmann summoned Traffic Policeman O'Donnell. A warrant was issued for Rosenthal six months ago, according to the police, and Detective Claire of the Greenwich Street Station has been searching for him ever since. When the detective was notified of Rosenthal's arrest he said he would serve the warrant at once. Rosenthal was locked up in the West Forty-seventh Street Station. He refused to discuss the case.

SHOOTS HIMSELF IN CHURCH

Ex-City Treasurer Kneels at Chancel and Ends His Life.

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 5.—On his knees in the chancel of Grace Church, John Ogden, ex-Treasurer of North Providence, drew a revolver and shot himself in the head to-day. He died almost instantly. Before he approached the chancel, Ogden had been sitting in a pew in the rear of the church writing in a book, which he handed to a deaconess. In the book were found notes to his wife and to the Superintendent of the mill in which he had been employed as bookkeeper.

About a year ago Ogden was accused of irregularities in office as Town Treasurer, but was acquitted by the courts.

WILSON COMES OUT AGAINST FREE TOLLS

Will Move at This Session to Repeal Clause in Canal Act Favoring American Ships.

HOLDS IT'S A MORAL ISSUE

Believes the United States Is Bound to It by the Terms of the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—All doubt as to President Wilson's position on the Panama Canal tolls controversy was removed to-day when the President, in response to a direct question from a party of visitors, said that he favored the repeal of the provision in the Panama Canal act which exempted American coastwise vessels.

It had been understood that this was the President's attitude, but until today he had made no direct statement on the subject. At his conference with the Foreign Relations Committee on Jan. 26 the President said that his position in the canal tolls controversy was well known. He did not go into details, however, and while the Senators thought Mr. Wilson wanted the free-tolls provision repealed, they wondered if the President's view was as well known as he seemed to think it was.

Yesterday Senator O'Gorman, Chairman of the Committee on Interoceanic Canals, had a talk with President Wilson and indicated afterward that he was of the opinion that there would be no legislation to repeal the free-tolls provision at the present session of Congress. President Wilson told his visitors to-day, however, that Senator O'Gorman got no such impression from their conversation yesterday. The President said that he expected Congress to take action at the present session for the repeal of the section of the Panama Canal act exempting American coastwise ships from tolls.

Representative Adamson of Georgia, Chairman of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, recently presented a resolution providing for suspending the free-tolls provision for a period of two years. Apparently President Wilson believes this is only a half-way measure and that the honest thing for the United States to do is to take the free-tolls section out of the law altogether, instead of merely suspending its enforcement. It is understood that the President regards this Government as morally bound by the terms of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty to place all nations on an equal footing with the United States with respect to shipping passing through the canal.

How soon the President would endeavor to obtain action on his proposal for a repeal of the free-tolls provision was not ascertained. He was non-committal when asked whether he would make a special address to Congress on this subject.

There have been no developments on the diplomatic side of the canal tolls controversy since the last note of Sir Edward Grey was received in the closing days of the Taft Administration. Great Britain since then has not pressed for any reply. This generally has been taken to mean that intimations of some kind of President Wilson's friendly attitude toward the British contention had been conveyed to the London Government.

President Wilson's final decision followed more than a year of careful study of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty and the debates in Congress for and against the exemption. He always has been opposed to ship subsidies and intimations of his attitude began to come out while he was President-elect. At the time, it was asserted, he actually indicated to Democratic Senators his desire to have passed the Root amendment providing for a repeal of the provision.

Senator O'Gorman, who was instrumental in having free tolls for American ships inserted in the Democratic national platform, said to-night:

"I have unalterable convictions on the position the United States should maintain in this controversy. The Senate's position on the tolls question was emphatically expressed in 1912, when the act was passed. Approval was given to exemption to American coastwise ships by a vote of 47 to 15, and I am of the opinion that many of the Senators have not changed their convictions on the subject. I intend to oppose as vigorously any effort to repeal the tolls provision as I championed free tolls when the bill was before the Senate."

It is probable that the proposed repeal legislation will be initiated in the House through the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

LONDON IS PLEASED.

English Newspapers Will Welcome Repeal as a Friendly Act.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, Feb. 6.—The London newspapers welcome President Wilson's announcement that he will use his influence to obtain the repeal of the provisions of the Panama Canal act exempting American coastwise vessels from the payment of tolls. The Chronicle hopes that Wilson will carry the Senate with him in repealing these provisions. It adds:

"It makes little difference to us whether it is repealed out of hand or referred to arbitration. We are unable to conceive of any arbitration court deciding the issue otherwise than in our favor, but it would certainly be a more dignified as well as a more friendly and courteous course for the United States of its own motion to repeal the act.

"Retention of the act as it stands might not lessen Anglo-American cordiality, which is too firmly based to be easily shaken, but it would certainly impair international confidence in the value of United States treaties."

The Daily News says:

"President Wilson's decision should leave the issue no longer in doubt. In the case of a weaker man such a decision would be justly regarded as a courageous act. In the case of President Wilson, who enjoys a rare and honorable reputation of never hesitating an instant to act in defense of a cause which his judgment declares to be a right cause, it is a natural act."

PRINCE RENOUNCES RIGHTS.

Aage of Denmark's Title to Die with Him—Married Italian Countess.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 5.—Prince Aage of Denmark, who married an Italian Countess, Calvi Di Bergolo, has renounced all rights of succession to the Danish throne for himself and heirs and also his title of Royal Highness. King Christian has decided that the title of the Prince and his wife shall be Prince and Princess Aage of Denmark, Count and Countess of Rosenburg, and that their successors shall only be Count or Countess of Rosenburg, without the title of Prince or Princess.

NO FINGER PRINTS FROM HIM

Police Believe That Prisoner Had Hands Treated with Acid.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., Feb. 5.—When a dapper young man who said he was Alfred Smith of 207 East Fourteenth Street, Manhattan, and who was arrested here last night on an attempted burglary charge, was brought out to headquarters this afternoon to have his fingerprints taken, the police were amazed to find that not one of his fingers left anything but an indistinguishable smudge. From the bend of the first knuckle to the tip, each finger was as smooth as glass.

The man insists that they have always been that way. The police, however, are sure he has been carefully and cleverly treating them with some acid to remove the whorls and ridges that mark one man apart from all the other men in the world.

The police say that if Passaic's prisoner has found a way to blot out the identity of his hands he has done something new in crime annals.

TANGO ON A TRAIN.

Chicago Society Folk Charter Ballroom Car for New Orleans Excursion.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—It has remained for Chicago to provide the real novelty of the social year. This became known to-day, when 257 leaders in society were invited to join in an excursion to the Mardi Gras at New Orleans by special train, in which will be a ballroom on wheels.

The biggest car owned by the Illinois Central will be transformed into a ballroom. It will be one of the road's "jumbo freights," and the floors will be refinished and waxed so that the dance may continue while the train is traveling at fifty miles an hour. The train will be known as the "Tango Special."

While a freight car is not generally regarded as an object of beauty, this particular car will have the sides covered with tapestry, the roof hidden by artificial flowers, and the ends enshrouded in double sets of curtains.

Behind the ballroom car will be a library and parlor car to provide room for the dancers.

TAFT "NOW A REFORMER."

Defends Lawyers Against "Partisan Diatribes of Demagogues."

BOSTON, Feb. 5.—"In spite of my past history, I am struggling now to be a reformer," William Howard Taft told the Boston University Law School Association to-night. He devoted much of his address to consideration of a criticism of Massachusetts lawyers and court procedure which Sherman Whipple, a lawyer of this city, made in his presence at New London, Conn., a few days ago.

Regarding Mr. Whipple's proposal for a reformation of procedure by which hearsay evidence would be admitted in court, Prof. Taft said that in his eleven years on the bench it seemed to him that if there was one rule more than another which tended to sift out truth, it was the rule which excluded hearsay evidence.

Mr. Taft to-day gave the first of a series of lectures on "Professional Ethics" before the undergraduate students at Boston University Law School. He defended the lawyers of the country from what he termed "the partisan and mistaken diatribes of demagogues."

FEAR FOR WINTER WHEAT.

Zero Weather Sweeps Nebraska and Fields Are Bare of Snow.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 5.—A cold wave with zero weather is sweeping across the Nebraska prairies to-night, and serious damage probably will result to the Winter wheat, which is without a covering of snow.

The entire Winter wheat belt is quite barren of snow, and because of the recent warm weather the wheat plant is much more advanced than usual at this season. The alternate freezing and thawing already have caused some damage, and have left the roots much exposed. Grain men to-day expressed the fear that considerable damage would result from the present cold wave.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Feb. 5.—Northwest Iowa is to-night in the grip of the first cold weather of the Winter. Snow began falling this afternoon. To-night the snow is drifting badly, with the thermometer at the zero mark.

PIERRE, S. D., Feb. 5.—The first severe snowstorm of the Winter in South Dakota was raging to-night. The mercury dropped to 22 degrees below zero to-night.

GIRL'S MIND STILL A BLANK.

Amnesia Case in White Plains Hospital Baffles Physicians.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 5.—After two days and a night, the young girl who is in the local hospital suffering from amnesia is as much a mystery as ever. Every effort to obtain some clue to her identity has failed, and there has been no response to the hundreds of notices Police Captain Harmon has sent throughout the country.

It is supposed the girl came here from New York City or Mount Vernon.

The hospital authorities have tried every test of memory they know, and only get negative answers. The girl answers readily any question about things that are happening about her, but she says she cannot remember who she is or where she came from.

She is about 20 years old and has blonde hair. She wore a blue suit when she appeared at the home of James Sonberg, in Chatterton Avenue, and asked to be taken in. She thinks she once painted small novelties for some one, but does not know who. She speaks excellent English and is evidently a person of refinement.

CARLISLE AND PECK BOTH TO GO SOON

Glynn Will Base His Action on Highway Scandals--Carlisle's Exit to be "Painless."

PECK PUTS BLAME ON REEL

Steered Those 318 Contracts, He Says, and Was "a D— Liar," Too—Foley Admits Exceeding Authority.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—From a source close to Gov. Glynn, it was learned tonight that John N. Carlisle, State Highway Commissioner, and Duncan W. Peck, State Superintendent of Public Works, would be out of the State's employ before the end of the present Legislative session. Mr. Carlisle, it was said, would be "let down" through a process of painless elimination.

It is known that James W. Osborne, Gov. Glynn's special investigator, has been called upon to render a preliminary report of his work, with conclusions as to the exact status of Mr. Carlisle and Mr. Peck. It is understood that the Governor has asked for this report with a view of using it as a basis for some action in the case of both officials.

The tentative plan for the "painless elimination" of Mr. Carlisle contemplates legislation which would enable only a man with engineering training to qualify for the place at the head of the Highway Department. Mr. Carlisle is a lawyer. The Governor's power of removal is absolute in the case of both the State Highway Commissioner and the State Superintendent of Public Works. In the case of the Superintendent of Public Works the Governor is required to file with the Secretary of State a statement regarding the grounds of removal, and also to report these to the next session of the Legislature.

Mr. Osborne consumed all of to-day in questioning Mr Peck, who, as Superintendent of Public Works, was a member of the State Highway Commission in 1912, and Charles F. Foley, Deputy Superintendent of Highways, but failed to obtain any trace of a record of authority by which Mr. Foley executed the 318 maintenance and repair contracts under which the work was performed, in most cases before the contracts had been ratified by the commission.

The amount of the contracts was more than $3,000,000, and in many instances the roads went to pieces within two or three months after they were completed. These contracts were approved at the meeting of the commission held on Oct. 22, 1912, and Mr. Osborne declared that this action was taken without knowledge of the materials used or the character of the work. He held that the Commissioners—Supt. C. Gordon Reel, Mr. Peck, and State Engineer John A. Bensel—and Mr. Foley were guilty of neglect of duty, and submitted the cases to District Attorney Alexander of Albany County.

Mr. Alexander refused to submit the case to the Grand Jury at its last session, stating that he had not as yet found evidence of crime. He said he would go over the case again, and that it might be presented to the Grand Jury in March. Mr. Osborne has stated that if the case is not submitted by the District Attorney he will ask Gov. Glynn to request the Attorney General to take charge of the case.

Put Responsibility on Reel.

Mr. Peck placed the responsibility for the approval of the 318 Foley contracts upon Supt. Reel. Before being sworn Mr. Peck signed a waiver of immunity.

There were frequent clashes between Messrs. Osborne and Peck. The investigator contended that the three members of the commission all were responsible for the awarding and approval of the repair contracts and that they had no right to permit Foley to award them. Mr. Peck disputed that point, and accused Mr. Osborne of making the record "misleading to me." Mr. Osborne said Mr. Peck would have an opportunity to make any statement or explanation he desired.

Mr. Peck said he was unfamiliar with the provisions of the 318 repair contracts and the qualifications of the contractors engaged by Foley. He said he had been informed by Reel and Foley that the work had been properly done. The witness said that the pressure of business in his own office kept him engaged at all times, and that there was no time to become familiar with the details of the highway work. He was merely an ex officio member of the commission.

Asked if he had authorized Mr. Foley to award any contracts, Mr. Peck declined to answer; it would be necessary for him to consult the records to refresh his memory before replying. Afterward he declared that any approval by him of the repair contracts was upon the recommendation of Supt. Reel.

The highway law, Mr. Peck thought, permitted the commission to delegate to the First Deputy the power to approve contracts. He declared that the commission had adopted a resolution permitting Mr. Foley to award the contracts. He could not find such authorization in the minutes of any meeting. The witness said the resolution adopted April 15, 1912, authorizing Supt. Reel to proceed with "the urgent and necessary repairs" was the one under which Mr. Reel probably delegated the power to Foley. The resolution, however, concluded with these words: "Said work to be done under the direction and supervision of the commission."

"I don't remember that the phrase requiring the work to be done by the direction of the commission was attached to the resolution when it was adopted," Mr. Peck said.

"Do you charge that the minutes of the department were altered?" Mr. Osborne asked.

"I didn't mean to charge anybody with anything," Mr. Peck replied.

Mr. Peck said that one reason for the faulty construction of highways was because the law permitted the employment of Inspectors who had no technical education or training.

"Now you are striking at the very root of the matter," Mr. Osborne said. "Did you try to have the law changed while you were a Commissioner?"

What Peck Said to Reel.

"I couldn't," was the reply. Referring to the 318 repair contracts, Mr. Peck said he recollected that they had been approved by Mr. Reel; later Mr. Reel wrote to Peck stating that the latter had voted for the repair contracts.

"I told him he was a damned liar," Mr. Peck added. He said he never had read one of the contracts; he had to rely upon the Superintendent.

Mr. Foley on the stand told how he selected contractors to do the repairing. He said he wrote to contractors who had plants near the roads to be repaired and asked them to bid; he said the work went to the lowest bidder.

Admission that he had no authority to award the 318 repair contracts was made by Mr. Foley, who signed a waiver of immunity before testifying.

"It looks as though the members of the commission were passing the buck to me," he commented.

The commission, said Mr. Foley, sent to the Legislature a statement of the amount of repairs necessary for the year. The total, he said, amounted to $3,319,000. Three road contracts were awarded after bids had been advertised for. The amount of these three contracts was $117,457. By certain deductions he reduced the amount of the contracts awarded without public bidding to $1,600,000.

Mr. Foley when questioned failed to show how he received authority to award the contracts. He pointed to a resolution which gave him power to proceed with several specific contracts and to a section of the highway law. Mr. Osborne contended that neither gave any blanket authority.

The witness was asked to tell what was done in preparing for the 318 contracts. He said the character of the improvements was determined by two engineers called in from each of the eight districts. After the specifications were prepared he wrote to contractors asking them to submit bids.

"How was the work approved?" Mr. Osborne asked.

"It was first approved by the Inspector," Mr. Foley replied. "Then the Superintendent of Repairs approved the work. Then the papers were sent to Albany. They went to the Auditing Department, and then I signed them. They were then sent to the Superintendent for his signature. Then a draft was made on the County Treasurer and sent to the contractor."

Mr. Foley's Road Experience.

The former Deputy Superintendent admitted that the acceptance of the work depended upon the Inspector, who, in the case of the Lake George and Bolton Road, said he had been a clerk in a hotel, but was a bootblack, according to Mr. Osborne. The investigator showed the witness the law, which required that the Deputy Superintendent should be experienced in road building. Mr. Foley said he had been for two years an Alderman in Lockport, and had been on the commission in charge of street repairs. He said that in 1888 he had worked about two weeks as a laborer on roads in Lockport. This was all the experience in road building he had had, he said.

"Did you report to Bensel or Peck that the work had been properly done on those 318 contracts?" Mr. Osborne asked.

"I don't remember that I did," Mr. Foley replied.

"Did you talk with George Foster Peabody about the road at Lake George?"

"He wrote a complaint to Mr. Bensel, who asked me to go up there. His complaint was that the road was too hard and that it injured the feet of his horses. I told him that the road was built to stand ten-ton trucks and that only way to get relief would be to build a soft road at the side."

"Did you look at the road?"

"Yes, at the part that was finished. It appeared to be all right."

"Why do you think the State supplied the oil and asphalt, instead of permitting the contractor to supply it?"

"I imagine it was to secure a good grade of asphalt."

State Engineer Bensel and Supt. Reel attended the hearing in the afternoon. Mr. Osborne excused them until next Tuesday, when the hearing will be resumed. Mr. Reel left the room declaring that he would not be "the goat" and intimating that he might have an interesting story to tell under oath next week.

NEW CITY DEPARTMENTS.

Bills Introduced Covering Purchases and Supplies in This City.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—Senator Griffin of the Bronx to-day introduced a bill creating the Department of Purchase in New York City. A similar department was recommended by the Cassidy Investigating Commission several years ago, but it was not adopted. The board is to be composed of the Mayor, the Controller, and the President of the Board of Aldermen. It is to have control of the purchase of all supplies for the city, subject to specification by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. The board is authorized to appoint a general purchasing agent and a general storekeeper. All supplies involving more than $1,000 must be awarded on public bidding.

A Department of Licenses for New York City is provided in a bill introduced to-day by Senator Herrick of New York. It repeals the provisions of the New York City Charter giving the Mayor and other officers power to issue certain licenses and gives the right to the new department, the head of which shall be a Commissioner of Licenses to be appointed by the Mayor at $7,500 a year. The Commissioner may appoint two deputies and other employes.

Senator Murtaugh introduced a bill giving the Public Service Commissions jurisdiction over navigation companies and ferry lines in relation to discriminations, preferences, and joint and other rates.

Assemblyman Hinman introduced a bill abolishing the office of State Fire Marshal and providing that the property in the Fire Marshal's office shall be turned over temporarily to the State Librarian.

A bill introduced by Assemblyman Ittleman of Brooklyn inserts in the railroad law a section providing for half fare for school children under sixteen on New York City street, surface, elevated or subway railroads.

The Senate Finance Committee reported favorably the Murtaugh resolution providing for final adjournment of the Legislature on March 27 at noon. The resolution will be called up for action Monday night.

The Legislature adopted a resolution providing for a celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Samuel J. Tilden next Monday at 2 P. M. in the Assembly Chamber. The Tilden Memorial Commission will decorate the Chamber. Gov. Glynn and Acting Lieut. Gov. Wagner will speak.

The Assembly Ways and Means Committee reported the resolution for the appointment of a special commission to investigate the highway and other State departments, with a special order for Monday night.

TO ACCEPT RE-ENACTMENT.

But Republicans Plan Later Amendment of Compensation Act.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—It was stated authoritatively to-night on behalf of the Republican majority in the Assembly that at the present session of the Legislature important amendments would be presented to the Workmen's Compensation act. At the same time it was stated that the bill probably would be re-enacted in its original form, the amendments being presented in separate bills later in the session.

Certain Republican Assemblymen who had come out openly against re-enactment of the measure have heard from the labor element in their constituencies, and this is largely responsible for the change of view on the part of the leaders.

Harold J. Hinman, majority leader in the Assembly: "The only part of the Governor's statement which deserves attention from me is his reference to cheap partisan politics. Whether the bill should be first passed and then amended or amended first and then passed is a large question, in which politics, either cheap or expensive, should cut no figure. The bill as it stands now is an illustration of expensive Democratic politics."

HOLD UP DANIELS AND HALL.

Radical Senators Would Investigate Nominees for Commerce Board.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Opposition has developed in the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce to the confirmation of the nominations of Winthrop M. Daniels of New Jersey and Henry Clay Hall of Colorado to be members of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

This opposition comes from the radical element in the committee, and is mainly directed against Mr. Daniels, who is suspected by his Senatorial opponents of having been too moderate in the administration of his duties as Chairman of the Board of Public Utilities Commissioners of New Jersey.

Senator Newlands, Chairman of the Committee, made an informal poll of the members and found that Senators La Follette, Clapp, and Cummins were disposed to investigate Mr. Daniels's record before taking action on his nomination. He also learned that these Senators desired to ascertain more about Mr. Hall.

FIND LAWLOR GIRL IN CHICAGO Y. W. C. A.

Agent of Travelers' Aid Society Accosts Her When She Leaves New York Train.

TAKES HER TO SHELTER

Police Seek Blackmailer Who Tried to Get Money from Girl's Father Here.

George H. Lawlor was just starting out from his home at 5,619 Fifteenth Avenue, Borough Park, yesterday afternoon to renew his weary search of the motion-picture shows and other places of amusement for his sixteen-year-old daughter, Florence, who had disappeared on Monday, when word came by telegraph that she had been found in Chicago.

Mr. Lawlor was in front of his house talking with newspaper reporters, who had come to ask for the last word in the search for the missing girl, when out of the house came Mrs. Lawlor, beside herself with hope and excitement at news that had just come over the telephone from a Broadway broker's office.

The private brokerage wire had brought from Florence Lawlor's uncle, Benson R. Hedges of Columbus, the message that the girl was in the care of the Young Women's Christian Association in Chicago. She had been found there on Tuesday afternoon. Within half an hour the wires between here and the Middle West were humming with messages, and Mr. and Mrs. Lawlor finally satisfied themselves by talking with the girl over the long-distance telephone.

The distance was so great and the connections so imperfect that it was impossible for them to question the girl or to hear why she had gone away, but her voice was clear enough for them to recognize it, and they could distinguish the words in which she kept repeating that she was "all right."

The girl was found by the vigilance of the Travelers' Aid Society. Miss Etta Schlung, a Y. W. C. A. representative of that organization, was hovering about La Salle Street Station when the Lake Shore train came in on Tuesday afternoon. It is part of the business of the Travelers' Aid to care for young girls when they arrive unescorted in a strange city. To Miss Schlung's practiced eye, the young girl who alighted from the train on Tuesday afternoon was worth watching. She carried no baggage, she was alone, and no one met her.

Miss Schlung approached her and began to question her skilfully. The girl said she was Florence Lawrence, that her father and mother were dead, and that she had come on from Columbus to find work. The resemblance to the missing Lawlor girl was so striking and the mention of Columbus attracted attention, for it was recalled that an uncle of the missing girl, who lived in Columbus, had been telegraphing in every direction for word of her.

Miss Schlung persuaded the girl to go to the Y. W. C. A. for the night, and Mrs. Wilhelmina Barr, the Superintendent, wrote immediately to Mr. Hedges. On receipt of her letter he wired back, asking them to hold the girl for further instructions, and then he sent the word on to New York. Meanwhile the girl admitted her identity and said she had left home because her parents wished her to become a teacher.

The thing that puzzles her father is the fact that according to dispatches from Chicago, Florence Lawlor after paying her fare from New York, had $12 in her purse when she arrived there. As far as the family have been able to learn, she had no money and they are positive that she took none from the family stores.

They believe that she left in her distress after having told her father and mother that she had passed her midwinter examinations when she knew that she had failed in them and that the truth was bound to come out.

"There is no man in this case," is the verdict from Mrs. Barr.

Mr. Lawlor has directed Mr. Hedges to bring the girl from Chicago to Columbus and Mr. and Mrs. Lawlor will start for Columbus to-day.

Within two hours after Mr. Lawlor had received word that his daughter was safe in Chicago there came in the late afternoon mail a letter demanding $1,000 as the price of her safety. This is precisely the move that was made in the case of Miss Jessie Evelyn McCann, the Flatbush girl whose body was thrown on the beach in the great storm at Coney Island. Mr. Lawlor was at first inclined to disregard the letter, but later he decided that he owed it to all the fathers of missing girls to try to capture the extortionists if possible.

The appointed place was Twentieth Street and First Avenue. Mr. Lawlor was directed to go there alone last evening between 6 and 7 o'clock and to have $1,000 in cash in an envelope in his hand. He was to be known by a white flower in his left lapel, and he was to give the envelope to the man who would approach him saying:

"Do you want your daughter back?"

"If you give it to him you will find your daughter safe at home on your return. If you fail to appear at the appointed place we will blow the whole biz to hell."

This was the concluding paragraph of the letter, which arrived postage collect, and which was signed "Padrone Gangi." Accompanied by detectives from the Parkville station, Mr. Lawlor went to the appointed place wearing a white flower and carrying an envelope in his hand. But the blackmailer did not appear. It was thought he had read in the evening newspapers that the girl had been found in Chicago. Mr. Lawlor returned home late last night, and it was there that he told this story.

NAGLE STIRS JUDGE O'DWYER

Attributes Hostility to Murphy to Personal Pique—O'Dwyer Retorts.

Percival E. Nagle, a Tammany district leader, said yesterday that City Court Judge Edward F. O'Dwyer was anxious to get rid of Charles F. Murphy as the Democratic leader because Judge O'Dwyer was rejected last Fall as a candidate for Judge of the General Sessions. Nagle said:

"I was in Tammany Hall one day last Fall looking after the General Sessions nomination for Justice Zeller of Special Sessions. Justice Zeller lives in my district and I was doing what I could for him. Well, Judge O'Dwyer came in and he and Murphy went in an inside room and had a talk. I understand that the Judge pleaded with Mr. Murphy for the nomination, but Mr. Murphy wouldn't promise. The Judge, you know, didn't get the nomination."

Judge O'Dwyer, when he was informed of what Mr. Nagle had said, replied:

"I did not ask for any nomination last Fall. I have not been in Tammany Hall for five years and I have not seen Mr. Murphy in two years. Give Mr. Nagle my regards and tell him that he is not an honest or a truthful man."

This message was carried to Mr. Nagle, who retorted:

"I have known Judge O'Dwyer for twenty years, and my eyesight is as good as that of any man in this city. If Judge O'Dwyer says I did not see him in Tammany Hall last Fall seeking a nomination he doesn't speak the truth."

So the matter rested for the day.

GIRL HELD AS GUNMEN'S AID.

Arrested with Pistols in Philadelphia—Suspicious Letters Found.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—A young girl, who said she had two brothers on the New York police force, was arrested here last night and held on suspicion of being connected with, if not actually an accomplice, of New York gunmen.

Giving her name as Kittie Williams of New York, she took a room in the house of a Mrs. Minnie Acker about a month ago. Last night Mrs. Acker saw her leave with a peculiar-looking parcel under her arm, and as her suspicions concerning the girl had been aroused, she called the police, and Miss Williams was taken to City Hall. There the parcel was found to contain two new revolvers. Questioned about them, the girl blurted out that she was taking them to a friend, who was to give them to another friend in New York.

When the police searched the girl's room they found about twenty letters, all in the same handwriting, but signed in different names. "Thomas Martel," "Thomas Williams," and "Thomas Finn" were some of the signatures. One letter said: "I have just grabbed $140." Another read: "I am working on a $3,500 job. When I land it I will come to Philadelphia and we will be in clover."

Miss Williams said that Thomas Williams had brought her to this city and then returned to New York. The revolvers were his, she stated, and he had asked her to send them to him.

PINCHOT FOR THE SENATE.

Progressives Ask Him to be a Candidate for Penrose's Place.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 5.—Gifford Pinchot, ex-Chief Forester of the United States, was formally invited to-night to be the Progressive candidate for Senator from Pennsylvania to succeed Boies Penrose. The invitation was extended in a resolution unanimously adopted at a conference of party leaders held here to-day.

Arthur Rupley, A. H. Walters, and Fred E. Lewis, Congressmen at Large, were invited to be candidates for renomination, but the conference took no action regarding candidates for other nominations to be made at the primary election in May.

J. D. Phelan Out for Senatorship.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 5.—Former Mayor James D. Phelan of this city formally announced to-day his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator.

Bull Moose Indorses Henry Ford.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 5.—The Bull Moose Committee of Calhoun County has indorsed Henry Ford for Governor.

Dean Stone of Columbia Ill.

Harlan F. Stone, Dean of the Columbia University Law School, is ill at his home at 2 Chestnut Street, Englewood, N. J., and it is feared that he may have typhoid fever. His illness came suddenly. He was at the university on Monday and had arranged several important appointments for the following morning. He was unable to keep them, however, and yesterday word was received from his home that his condition was more serious than at first supposed.

Health Department Appointees.

a raft and not a sail or a funnel is in sight.

"We shall be traveling for some hours in the dark, but a little installation of electric light will enable us to see our instruments.

"The pilot's quarters will certainly be comfortable. We will be protected from the weather by a screen with a window formed of a transparent substance like mica. The exhaust pipes will be diverted so that the fumes will not trouble us.

"There is the noise of the engine for twenty hours or more, but I do not think it will affect us much, especially as we will be able at intervals to stretch ourselves on the floor of the boat and have comfortable snoozes.

"If we do it in twenty hours we shall easily be within the time limit in the conditions for The Daily Mail's £10,000 ($50,000) prize.

"Of course, everything depends on the 200-horse power engine. A smaller engine of the same type built by Mr. Curtiss was run for thirty hours for testing purposes. It means carrying at the very least 400 gallons of petrol in divided tanks in the boat. The whole machine will weigh about a ton.

"I expect that for the most part our altitude will vary between 5,000 and 10,000 feet.

"I was very glad to be asked to share in this attempt with an American. It will be a jolly adventure, and I feel very confident about winning The Daily Mail's prize. I expect to start for the United States about April. We shall start from Newfoundland, and land probably at Queenstown."

POSSIBLE, SAYS BEACHEY.

But He Says There Should Be a Sufficient Ocean Patrol.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 5.—"With the progress aviation has made during the past few years, anything is possible," stated Lincoln Beachey to-night. "It certainly will be possible for an aeroboat such as the Wanamaker craft to cross the ocean, provided there is enough outside assistance. By that I mean steamer patrol. A flight of 1,300 miles should not be a difficult undertaking for such a flier."

Beachey said he expected to enter the round-the-world air race which is being arranged by the Panama Exposition management. He stated that he expected four or five aviators would have made flights across the Atlantic by the date for the race. He is in favor of a large entry fee for this event, which fee, he stated, could be returned after the aviator had covered a certain number of miles. He added:

"The round-the-world air race will be one of the greatest feats of the age and will cost each aviator something close to $100,000. For this reason only those who are in the race to stay should be allowed to enter."

Beachey is now building a machine at the Glenn Martin factory to replace the one demolished by his fall last week. He expects to be ready for his trip to Japan within three weeks.

J. ROBINSON HALL CLEARED.

Grand Jury Refuses to Entertain Forgery Charge.

J. Robinson Hall, manager of THE NEW YORK TIMES aerial Derby around Manhattan on Oct. 13, who was arrested for forgery in connection with the meet, was honorably discharged yesterday by Judge Wadhams in the Court of General Sessions after the Grand Jury had notified Judge Wadhams that they had found no bill against Mr. Hall. The offense charged was that during the meet Mr. Hall signed several checks "Aeronautical Society, J. R. Hall, Manager," without authority.

The Grand Jury upheld Mr. Hall's contention that the checks were signed in good faith and that their proceeds went for the promotion of the meet which he managed.

20 PERSONS SAVED AT MIDNIGHT FIRE

FIREMAN RESCUES INVALID

Kelly Crawls Through Thick Smoke with Woman on His Back and Brings Her Down Ladder.

Fire starting on the first floor of the five-story brick apartment house at 170 West Seventy-first Street at 11:50 o'clock last night swept up the staircase before it was discovered and cut off that means of exit for the twenty-four families living in the building.

Cries of fire attracted the attention of Policeman Mooney of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station. By means of signboards he climbed up to the fire escape on the Columbus Avenue side of the building, lowered the bottom ladder, and assisted the tenants, who were crowding, half dressed, down the ladder to reach the street.

By the time the first battalion of firefighters arrived, nearly half of the tenants had safely reached the ground by the fire escape. A second alarm was turned in almost immediately, and by the time Fire Chief Kenlon and Deputy Byrne reached the scene the fire, favored by the draft through the hallway, had climbed up to the top story and was endangering the lives of scores of people who were struggling to reach the ground by means of the crowded fire escapes.

One of the tenants on reaching the ground ran to the firemen and shouted that there was an invalid, crippled and unable to move, who would be burned in his room on the sixth floor unless he were promptly rescued.

Fireman Kelly of Truck 35 ran up one of the ladders that had been extended to the top of the building. Descending through the roof, he entered the room of the invalid, carried her back through the thick smoke that was then filling the top floor, and descended the ladder again with her.

The fire escapes were so jammed that little headway could be made on them by the panic-stricken tenants. Women and children who had entered the fire-escape from the upper story, terrified by the smoke and flames, threatened to jump to the sidewalk when they found their descent impeded by the scores who were fighting their way down ahead of them.

Fire ladders were then run up to the escapes at different stories and more than twenty people were carried down them. This relieved the congestion and the others were able to make their way more easily to the street.

Several policemen and men in the crowd climbed up to the tops of adjoining buildings and crossed to the roof of the one which was on fire. Frightened tenants, in despair of reaching safety by the fire escapes, turned back and were helped up through the scuttle, and made their way out of the reach of the fire through the neighboring buildings.

Ex-Deputy Police Commissioner Thurston, who was one of those who discovered the fire, was the first to climb to the roof of the burning building and to begin the rescue of tenants by that means.

While the building was filled with thick smoke, due to the fact that the well through which the stairs descended acted as a chimney, many of the apartments were untouched by flames, and the fire was extinguished speedily when the firemen got half a dozen streams of water directed against it.

The crippled woman carried out by Fireman Kelly was Mrs. Louisa Williams. The fire is believed to have been caused by the overheating of the furnace. Five stores on the ground floor on Columbus Avenue, running from 230 to 240, suffered considerable damage by smoke and water.

Policeman Mooney ran to the basement of the building when the fire was discovered and locked both doors. Firemen said this precaution shut off a draft that might have sent the flames more speedily through the building and caused a heavy loss of life.

The guests in the Hotel Hargrave across the street and in the Hotel Walton on Seventieth Street were aroused by the glare reflected on their windows, and most of them in a few minutes joined the crowds in the street.

The damage was estimated by Chief Kenlon at $10,000.

TWO TIMES SQUARE FIRES.

Hotel Hermitage and Bartholdi Inn Escaped Much Damage.

Two small fires occurring within fifteen minutes of each other brought so many people into Times Square last night that it was necessary to call out the police reserves from the West Forty-seventh Street Station in order to open up lines of traffic.

The first fire was at the Bartholdi Inn, Forty-fifth Street and Broadway, where Mary Young, an actress, set fire to the curtains in her room while lighting the gas. Engine Company 26 put out the fire after it had burned up the window frames and was spreading to the furniture.

While the engine was on its way back to the fire house in Fifty-sixth Street an alarm was turned in at the Hotel Hermitage, Seventh Avenue, near Forty-first Street. The Hermitage dining room was found to be full of smoke from the basement, due to a smoky flue. The trouble was remedied without turning on the fire hose.

MAN BURNED ATOP OF POLE.

Touched Live Wire While Strapped in Seat and Died.

While connecting wires on the cross bar on top of a pole at the West Farms station of the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon William Millette, 30 years old, of 224 East Eighty-ninth Street touched a live wire and was terribly burned. He died three hours later in Fordham Hospital.

He was strapped to a seat at the top of the pole, and when he touched the wire his feet swung out and came in contact with another wire. Workmen on the ground below saw him literally burning before their eyes, and while a call for an ambulance was being sent in some of his fellow-workmen climbed the pole and released him from his awful position.

WHITMAN TAKES UP TICKET SPECULATION

Assistant District Attorney Train Will Seek Facts on Which to Base Law Abolishing Traffic.

MANAGERS PROMISE AID

Klaw & Erlanger, Ziegfeld, and the Shuberts Say They Are in Sympathy with "John Doe" Inquiry.

To put a stop to the sale of theatre tickets by speculators, Assistant District Attorney Arthur C. Train decided yesterday to hold a John Doe inquiry at which theatre managers, representatives of ticket agencies, and others will be examined. The inquiry will begin to-morrow with the examination of W. J. Fallon, President of the Tyson Company.

The purpose of the inquiry is to obtain suggestions for an ordinance which will do away with ticket speculation for all time. Mr. Train and Assistant Corporation Counsel Hahlo are working together in the matter, and have drafts of six ordinances under consideration. Among those who called yesterday to offer suggestions were Aldermen William F. Quinn and Henry H. Curran.

Theatre managers, it is said, have shown a disposition to assist the District Attorney's office in every way. Among those who expressed their willingness to help were Abraham L. Erlanger and Marc Klaw, of Klaw & Erlanger; Lee Shubert, and Florenz Ziegfeld. Mr. Whitman received this letter from Mr. Erlanger yesterday:

Feb. 4, 1914.

The Hon. Charles S. Whitman, District Attorney of New York County:

My Dear Judge: Your letter of the third is here. I will, during the day, get some member of our staff, who is entirely conversant with the situation, to make an appointment with Mr. Train and confer with him on the subject. About three years ago the Board of Aldermen passed an ordinance against sidewalk ticket speculation, but the police have never strictly enforced it.

On Jan. 29 (a few days before this discussion started) I wrote the Mayor about this and received a reply from him saying that he turned the matter over to the Police Commissioner. I do hope you will devise some means of stopping ticket speculation of every description. I want you to know that I am heartily with you in such a movement. I think that it is an outrage that the citizens of New York, who cannot afford to pay the speculators' prices, should be deprived of the pleasure of seeing good performances.

This ticket speculating, whether in the hotels or on the sidewalk, certainly works against the middle class and poorer people of this city, who look to the theatre for their amusement, because a stranger can come into New York and purchase good seats from a hotel or speculator, if he has the price, while the citizen must wait his turn to get the seats he wants. I figure that the public is robbed yearly out of from $250,000 to $400,000 in the purchase of theatre tickets

Will you kindly let Mr. Train know that I am in great sympathy with this movement, and that the person whom I shall ask to make an appointment with him, and all of our people, will be at his command and will tell him the whole truth. Hope to see you soon. Believe me, with kind regards, sincerely yours,

A. L. ERLANGER.

Lee Shubert said yesterday that he approved of the bill introduced into the Assembly by Assemblyman Schaap, making the selling of tickets at higher price than the amount printed on the ticket a misdemeanor.

"I want to indorse Mr. Schaap's bill most heartily," said Mr. Shubert. "If it is true that the agencies must be maintained for the convenience and benefit of the theatregoing public, they certainly should not be allowed to sell tickets at advanced prices. I shall be only too glad to co-operate in the enactment of any legislation which will put an end to the present practice. My absolute conviction is that no man should be permitted to dispose of any tickets at a price higher than the amount printed on its face."

Mr. Ziegfeld answered yesterday the attack on theatre managers made by Mr. Fallon of the Tyson Company, who said that the managers compelled him to purchase blocks of seats for weeks in advance of certain shows without giving him an opportunity to see the shows.

"You can say that Mr. Fallon's statement regarding the 'Ziegfeld Follies' is true," said Mr. Ziegfeld. "I want to say that I have always made it as difficult as possible for speculators and agencies to get tickets for the 'Follies.' They bothered me all the time for tickets. When the agent came to me at Atlantic City I finally consented to let him have some tickets. He did not hesitate then to put his men on the street and sell the seats for $10 apiece or more."

In connection with the war on ticket speculation it was learned yesterday that early next week the Grand Jury will consider the hypothecation by Tyson & Co. of Metropolitan opera tickets with the Metropolitan Trust Company to secure a loan of $100,000.

DR. O'LOUGHLIN MEMORIAL.

New Hospital Emergency Ward to Bear Name of Titanic's Surgeon.

An emergency ward in St. Vincent's Hospital containing seventeen beds, with a treatment room adjoining, will be dedicated on Feb. 16 to the memory of Dr. W. F. N. O'Loughlin, the surgeon of the Titanic. In the absence of Cardinal Farley, who sails for the Bahamas to-morrow, the dedication service will be conducted by Mgr. Lavelle.

Dr. O'Loughlin went straight from the University of Dublin to the White Star Line in 1870 and remained with the company to the end. During his long career he made many friends in New York who formed a committee, with Thomas Hughes Kelly as treasurer, to put up some monument to perpetuate his memory. Dr. O'Loughlin was well known in the neighborhood of St. Vincent's Hospital, and in the institution itself the new emergency ward was decided upon as the best memorial. A bronze tablet inscribed with his name will be placed in the hall outside the ward facing the small chapel where the sisters meet to go through their daily spiritual exercises.

SAYS LITTAUERS LOSE VOTE.

Conviction Deprives Them of Citizenship, District Attorney Thinks.

The effect of the sentence passed on Wednesday by Judge Thomas, in the Federal District Court, on ex-Congressman Lucius N. Littauer and William Littauer is, in the opinion of District Attorney Marshall, to deprive them of citizenship.

He pointed out yesterday that they had not only each pleaded guilty to two crimes which, according to the Federal law, were felonies, in smuggling into this country a Venetian tiara, but they had been actually sentenced and had paid the fines imposed on them. The question of citizenship, he explained, was, of course, a matter of State law, and he spoke with some hesitation upon it, but, considering that they might be called upon at any moment within the next five years to serve their terms of imprisonment, if in the opinion of a Judge of this district it was advisable, he thought the principle that conviction for a felony took away a man's civic privileges would certainly apply in this case.

DROWN AS THRONG LOOKS ON

Three Men Lost After Desperate Battle in Lake Michigan Ice.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—After hundreds of persons had stood on the beach and listened for two hours to their calls for help, William Cannell, caretaker of the Lawrence Avenue water crib, and two other men were drowned to-night in Lake Michigan. The rowboat in which the three men started to the crib was crushed by the ice and sank. The men clung to the ice until they were exhausted and fell into the water.

Heroic efforts were made to save them, but the ice retarded the life savers, who were unable to see the doomed men in the darkness. The Evanston life savers fired life lines from a mortar on the shore without success. Father O'Malley offered prayers for the doomed men while the life savers battled with the ice and wind. Meanwhile Mrs. William Cannell, wife of the caretaker, and another woman paced along the balcony of the crib waving lanterns and attempting to direct the rescuers.

"DOPE" TRAFFIC APPALLING.

Carl E. Whitney Talks of Its Evils and the Legislative Cure.

Carl E. Whitney, former Assistant United States District Attorney, in an address yesterday before the County Medical Societies on "Protection of the Public by Law," said that there were upwards of 100 doctors and druggists in this city engaged in a traffic which threatens the health and morals of the people. In explaining this statement he said:

"In this city, cocaine, morphine, heroin and opium are illegally sold in appalling quantities. What would you say of a doctor who, in one calendar month, purchased 'on prescription' upward of $2,500 worth of cocaine, and who dealt in and purchased opium in 60-pound lots? It is sales of this sort 'on prescription' which must be prevented.

"The Federal statute known as the Opium Act provides that smoking opium may be manufactured by the giving of a bond, but no such bond ever has been given. Crude opium is purchasable at from $6 to $10 a pound, and by an inexpensive process a pound of crude gum can be converted into smoking opium which will sell for from $50 to $60. It is this profit that leads to the illegal sale and consequent harm.

BUTTER AND EGGS DOWN.

Foreign Imports Due to New Tariff Have Lowered Price.

Reductions in the prices of butter and eggs were noticeable in the trade yesterday. The change was attributed largely to the new tariff duties. Foreign shipments in the last week or so have increased the supplies to an extent that causes competition also to contribute toward a downward move in the cost of living here.

These conditions were expected to be of more benefit to the consumer—slight margins below present prices, perhaps—but having the general effect of cheapening these and other commodities which can be imported profitably under the new tariff.

Art Objects to be Sold To-day.

There are many interesting things in the sale of tapestry and other art objects which opens at the Fifth Avenue Art Galleries this afternoon. Two interesting little writing desks, Chippendale, have secret compartments; there is a mahogany cabinet of Chinese Chippendale with gallery top; a fine old needlework picture in silk is a little worn in places, but charming; a fine portrait of a woman, magnificently dressed, is a "Lady of the Court of Spain," ascribed to Pourbus; a charming pastel, the portrait of a young man, is "Duke Charles of Firth," and a very interesting needlework piece is a Portuguese embroidered coverlet. This is covered with simple embroidered designs in floral patterns done in colored silks. It is an immense piece, all of white linen, big enough to cover a fairy tale giant. There are many interesting old chairs, some upholstered in gros point needlework tapestry, and a number of old ecclesiastical vestments.

Wilson to Unveil Tilden Portrait.

Word was received in this city last night by Herman Ridder of the Tilden Memorial Commission from Washington that President Wilson will press the button in Washington on Tuesday night to unveil the portrait of Samuel J. Tilden in Carnegie Hall. Carnegie Hall is being elaborately decorated for the Tilden celebration, and it is announced that Anna Case of the Metropolitan Opera Company will sing. Admission will be free, and those desiring reserved seats will be accommodated at the offices of the Tilden Memorial Commission, 25 Broad Street.

IGNORES RELATIVES IN WILLING $100,000

Miss McCusker Writes That Her Cousins Had No Interest in Her.

ESTATE TO HER ADVISERS

John A. Rooney and James J. Etchingham to Share Bulk of School Teacher's Property.

Cutting off all of her relatives except two cousins, neither of whom she had seen for thirty years, Mary V. McCusker, who taught in the public schools of Manhattan for fourteen years previous to her retirement in 1899, left practically her entire estate of $100,000 to her lawyer, John A. Rooney of 35 Nassau Street, and James J. Etchingham, who had been her adviser in real estate dealings. The will was offered for probate yesterday. The sum of $8,000 was left to Fordham University for the establishment of four scholarships to be known, respectively, as the "Patrick McCusker," "the Catherine E. McCusker," the "Sarah E. McCusker," and the "Mary V. McCusker" Scholarships. The first three are given in memory of her father, mother, and sister.

In ignoring her relativese, twelve cousins, Miss McCusker said that it was her wish that none of them should have any charge of her body after death.

"They never manifested any interest in me or called upon me in sickness or at any other time. They had no interest in me or I in them," she had written.

One of the two cousins remembered, Owen Gormley, only got $1,000, because Miss McCusker said he had already wasted in dissipation two legacies received from other relatives. Part of the will follows:

"It is my positive demand, wish, and desire that upon my death my esteemed friend and counselor, John A. Rooney, take charge of my remains, make all arrangements, and have mass sung over my remains, and that I be interred in the lot owned by me in Calvary Cemetery. I do not wish any of my relatives to have or take any charge of my remains after death.

"It is also my wish and desire that Mrs. Margaret V. I. Ryan, (a second cousin, now dead,) and her family shall not have or receive any share or interest whatsoever in my estate, for the reason of their unkind treatment of me while living with them and for the further reason that I was obliged to engage in litigation with Mrs. Ryan and her daughter to recover back moneys and property unlawfully taken from me."

After making a bequest of $100 to Mrs. John Phillips, the other cousin named as a beneficiary, Miss McCusker's will says:

"I hereby take occasion to express my absolute confidence in and esteem for my legal adviser, John A. Rooney, and my real estate agent, James J. Etchingham, and it is because of such confidence and esteem that I have remunerated them, and each of them, as in this, my last will, provided because of my gratitude for their many extreme acts of kindness, and because of their faithfulness to my interests in the Ryan-McCusker litigation, and since said litigation has ended."

Rooney lives with his wife and six young children at 3,143 Decatur Avenue, the Bronx, one of the houses included in the estate of Miss McCusker. Besides leaving him one-half the estate, she left his wife $1,500 and each one of his children $1,000. One of the children is named after its benefactor. Mr. Rooney had known Miss McCusker for more than twenty-five years, and had been her attorney throughout that time. Etchingham's son, John A. Etchingham, also receives $1,000.

Miss McCusker lived in Manhattan all of her life. For some time prior to her retirement she taught in Public School 26 in West Thirtieth Street. She began teaching at the age of 14 years, first in a private kindergarten and later entering the public school system. She lived at the Martha Washington Hotel for many years.

Her principal realty holdings were apartment buildings at 333 West Fifty-first Street, 350 West Sixteenth Street, and the building at 3,143 Decatur Avenue. The method of her distribution of the estate may result in a legal fight on the part of the disinherited relatives. The will was drawn by James F. Donnelly of 41 Park Row.

MOTHER'S PURSUIT BALKS KIDNAPPING

Fruit Peddler in Mrs. Dunn's Apartment Seizes Four-Year-Old Girl.

THRUSTS HER IN TAXICAB

Driver Halts When Crowd Chases Him and Police Uncover a Plot.

Mrs. Margaret Dunn was standing at the door of her apartment on the ground floor of 208 East Seventieth Street just before noon yesterday looking over an array of bananas an Italian huckster had brought for her inspection and her four-year-old daughter, Madeline, was peering from behind her mother's skirts at the fruit when suddenly the huckster dropped the bananas on the floor, seized the child in his arms, stepped quickly into the hall, and slammed the door in the startled mother's face.

Mrs. Dunn was so taken aback that she could only fumble at the knob of the self-locking door. She gave it up and ran to the front window just in time to see the Italian run with the child to the curb and thrust her into the outstretched arms of two men sitting in a taxicab. As the Italian took to his heels and the cab started up the street Mrs. Dunn jumped out of the window and gave chase, screaming, until all the neighborhood joined in.

The men who had planned this kidnapping had placed too much confidence in the driver of the taxi. He brought his machine to a halt and would not budge it. As the mother drew near the men in the taxi jumped out, dropped the child to the street and took to their heels.

The Italian, Frank Deldeccio of 250 East 149th Street, was caught. He said he had been hired for $5 to play his part by a stranger whom he met in West 124th Street, who had introduced himself as "Stetson," and who had explained that his own child had been stolen from him, and that the expedition was planned to recover that child.

The man, the Italian said, had come out of 438 West 124th Street. The police found that a Mr. and Mrs. Stetson did live there, but they found, too, that the man and his wife were gone. The real discovery of the trip to the apartment was a note found on the table. It was addressed to "Dear Frankie" and read:

"At 9:15 o'clock this morning I left while you were asleep. I have gone down there. Pray for my success."

It was signed "C. E. S." The child said that one of the men in the taxicab was a man she had seen when she lived with Mrs. F. B. Morrison, a music teacher of 201 West 146th Street.

QUESTIONS
The Income Tax

1. Do you earn $3,000 a year or more? If you do you need to inform yourself about the Income Tax. The law is now in force and must be obeyed.

2. If your income is $3,000 a year or more your report must be made by March 1. There is a penalty for neglect or error.

3. Do you know what expenses or losses may be deducted? May you deduct rent or taxes paid? If your real estate has increased in value is the increase added to your income? If the stocks you hold have decreased in value may you deduct your losses?

4. If a physician earns $10,000 a year charged on his books and collects $500 of back bills and charges off $700 of bad debts and pays $250 office rent and $500 for a clerk and $100 life insurance, what is his taxable income?

A very much puzzled public is asking these questions and a thousand others. An article in THE OUTLOOK for this week by Gregory Mason entitled "What Every Income Tax Payer Should Know" may help you to answer your own perplexing questions. Buy it to-day.

MAZATLAN FALLS BEFORE THE REBELS

Constitutionalists at Last in Control of an Ocean Port.

BID FOR OLD ARMY RIFLES

Government Has 400,000, and Is Permitted by Law to Sell Them —Rebels to Have Aeroplanes.

NOGALES, Ariz., Feb. 5.—Mazatlan, an important seacoast port in the State of Sinaloa, fell into the hands of Carranza's forces to-day, according to information received in Nogales, Sonora, from rebel sources.

The capture of Mazatlan places the first seaport in the possession of the rebels. For months the Carranzistas have battled for Guaymas, Sonora's most important seaport, but without avail.

The rebels had been investing Mazatlan for some time, having captured Culiacan, the State capital, several weeks ago. Culiacan is north of Mazatlan, and it was used as a base for the rebel attack.

Federals had sent the larger part of their available troops to the defense of Guaymas, which they evidently thought the rebels would try to invest first. This weakened the garrison to such an extent that the rebel investment was comparatively easy, although much hot fighting is said to have accompanied the fall of the port.

The rebels used artillery and the shells shattered many buildings. The rebels had the advantage of protecting hills, and the Federal gun fire was not effective.

Mazatlan is the home of many rich Spaniards and Mexicans, and the fall of the town will place many of these people in a position where they may be forced to contribute to the support of the rebel campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—As a result of President Wilson's proclamation of Feb. 3, revoking the order prohibiting the shipment of arms and munitions of war from the United States into Mexico, this Government is confronted with two interesting questions. One is whether the War Department shall sell for exportation to Mexico a large number of old-type Krag rifles, used by American troops in the Spanish War and the Philippine insurrection. The other is whether contraband shipments of arms and ammunition seized by agents of the United States during the pendency of the order prohibiting the shipments of such supplies into Mexico shall be released to the persons establishing ownership of them.

With reference to the second question the Department of Justice is giving consideration to the matter of releasing these shipments. Some of the officials of the Department of Justice are inclined to believe that, in view of the removal of the embargo, the cases against the persons charged with having attempted to violate the neutrality laws through making the shipments should be dropped.

It is contended that the arms and ammunitions thus seized are not required longer as evidence of the alleged attempted violations. The Government also holds a large quantity of rifles and ammunition already used as evidence in neutrality cases that have been passed upon by the courts. It is probable that the last-named supplies will be released to those who establish ownership in them, and that no objection will be made to their shipment across the border into Mexico.

Secretary Garrison has received two propositions for a sale of a large number of the old Krag rifles. The Government has now 400,000 of these on hand, stored in the various arsenals. Great care is taken in the sale of these rifles. They are never sold to dealers who might dispose of them in quantities in the United States to anarchists or to organizations likely to use force in labor troubles. Sales have been made to military schools, shooting organizations, and even to individuals who desire them for target purposes, but in all such cases the purchaser must be vouched for by a Senator or Representative.

Sales in quantity are also made under the contract obligation that the rifles shall be shipped over seas. It would be under this contract that the Government might sell the Krags that the Constitutionalists want. The Government would not sell rifles directly to the Constitutionalists, although it was stated at the War Department to-day that there was no legal obstacle to doing so.

The Krags are regarded as excellent weapons, although not now used in the Army, the Marine Corps, or the Navy. The Government has not manufactured them since the adoption of the model of 1903. It would be in a position to sell a large amount of ammunition suited to them. Many Krags were sold ten years ago at the uniform price of $9, but in recent years the price has been reduced to $6, and some have been sold as low as $3, where they were to go to some military school or an approved military organization.

No details were given to-day as to the number of rifles the Constitutionalists wished to buy or as to the price offered.

ZARAGOZA COMING FOR ARMS?

Federal Gunboat Sails To-day for New Orleans on Secret Errand.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, Feb. 5.—The Mexican gunboat Zaragoza will sail in the morning on a secret errand to New Orleans.

Señor Melgarejo, who was at one time an assistant Minister in President Huerta's Cabinet, has arrived to take passage on her. Great secrecy prevails as to his mission.

VERA CRUZ, Feb. 5.—It is understood that the Zaragoza is being dispatched to New Orleans for the purpose of taking advantage of the removal of the embargo on arms, and that a large consignment of ammunition, rifles and cannon will be put aboard for the Federal army.

REBELS TO USE AEROPLANES.

Carranza Already Has Qualified Pilots—Orders 14,000 Rifles.

CULIACAN, Feb. 5.—Military aeroplanes will be among the war munitions to be ordered at once from the United States by Gen. Carranza. This was announced to-day after Carranza had made hasty arrangements to take advantage immediately of the American Government's action in lifting the embargo on the exportation of arms. The aeroplanes will be used in campaigns in Northern Mexico.

Fourteen thousand rifles, with sufficient ammunition for a long campaign, already have been ordered.

It was also stated that the insurgents would import artillery with mounts suitable for use aboard vessels, which will be armored for operations against the Pacific Coast seaports still held by the Huerta forces.

The organization of an aerial war fleet will be effected by Gen. Angeles, Sub-Secretary of War in the Carranza Cabinet. It will be commanded by Capt. Federico Cervantes, who recently returned after having spent three months as a student in military aviation camps in France.

Only Mexican aviators will be employed, the force including two members of Carranza's staff, who are qualified air pilots.

The 14,000 rifles contracted for will be used to equip rebel troops in Chihuahua and Zacatecas.

ORDERS ALIENS PROTECTED.

Huerta Instructs Governors to Use "Extreme Diligence."

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 5.—A circular of instructions was issued to-day by President Huerta to the chiefs of all army divisions and Governors of States to the effect that, the Government having begun a more active campaign against the rebels, extreme diligence must be observed in giving all possible protection to non-combatants, foreign as well as native, and that they must be removed, when necessary, from the zones of operations.

CASTILLO'S BAND SCATTERED.

Constitutionalists Execute 22; Leader Fires Tunnel and Escapes.

JUAREZ, Feb. 5.—Maximo Castillo, the bandit leader, after twenty-two of his men had been captured and executed by a Constitutionalist force at El Valle, near Casas Grandes, to-day set fire to the woodwork of the Drake tunnel, which carries the Mexico Northwestern Railroad through the continental divide, and escaped to the mountains, according to an official report received here to-day. The men were captured and summarily executed yesterday, the report says.

The Drake tunnel runs through soft earth, and the burning of the wooden sheathing may entail heavy loss by cave-ins.

Castillo, a joint product of predatory instincts and thwarted ambition, was formerly the chief of the bodyguard of the late President Madero. In the present revolution he and his band of fifty or sixty followers have been raiding non-combatants. Castillo has harassed the Mormon colony at Casas Grandes and is charged with the murder of George Searcy, a member of the colony, who, when a prisoner, failed to produce the ransom demanded.

Just how the capture of the bandit detachment was accomplished was not stated in the report. In his retreat, however, Castillo wrought what revenge he could. He ran ten cars of lumber into the tunnel and set fire to the train. He next removed what provisions he could carry from a car loaded with supplies, ran the car on a high trestle and set fire to the car, which, with the trestle, was destroyed.

With the flames behind him the marauder turned his attention to the last remaining detail, the destruction of two locomotives which he had found on a siding. The road at the point of his operations runs through lofty mountains and deep canyons, and there are many high grades. Down one of these Castillo sent the locomotives. Their momentum was terrific when they reached a sharp curve and left the track, shot over the embankment, and fell, a tangled mass of wreckage, 1,000 feet below.

The rebels to-day placed an order for 1,100,000 rifle cartridges, 10,000 carbines, and 5,000 rounds of shrapnel shell for use in the campaign against Torreon. In addition, they hope to obtain much of the supply of rifles and ammunition impounded by the United States Government in the last two years in time for use in the movement southward.

Although El Paso will be the chief point through which Gen. Villa will transport ammunition and arms for his attack upon Torreon, comparatively few arms were brought over from the American side to-day. The lifting of the embargo found dealers in El Paso unprepared to supply arms in any quantity.

DE LA LAMA STILL MINISTER.

Reconciled with Huerta, Will Soon Sail for New York.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Adolfo de la Lama, who, in January, resigned his position as Mexican Minister of Finance as a protest against President Huerta's decree suspending the payment of interest on the Mexican National debt, decided to-day to return to Mexico by way of New York to serve again as Minister of Finance. He will leave Paris on Feb. 11.

President Huerta recently sent him a long, friendly cablegram, expressing his confidence in and reliance upon Señor de la Lama and requesting him to continue as Minister of Finance. This Señor de la Lama consented to do.

The interest due in April on the Mexican debt is said to be already in hand. It amounts to $750,000. Señor de la Lama is reported to have advanced to a considerable degree arrangements to raise about $5,000,000 to meet the July interest payments.

President Huerta's decree, according to information obtained in Mexican circles here, was an expedient to release the Mexican Custom House receipts from being earmarked for interest payments on the Mexican debt due in April. It is explained in the same quarters that, as sufficient cash could be raised by other means for these payments, there was no intention on the part of the Mexican Government to default the interest.

FOR JOINT INTERVENTION.

W. Morgan Shuster Believes in That Kind, if Any, for Mexico.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 5.—That Mexico must be allowed to solve its own problem unless it becomes apparent that there is no hope for such solution, and that aid in that case should not be extended alone by the United States, but by all of the powers having interests in that country, was the view of the situation given here this evening by W. Morgan Shuster, former financial adviser of Persia.

The occasion was the sixth annual banquet of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, the other speakers being Gov. Fielder and Job E. Hedges of New York City.

Mr. Shuster praised President Wilson for the manner in which he had thus far dealt with the Mexican question and upheld him in not recognizing Huerta as the ad interim President.

If there is any hope that any of the factions in Mexico can succeed in reestablishing the Government on a sound basis, the rest of the world, Mr. Shuster thinks, should be patient. But when the day comes on which the nations decide that outside aid is necessary, it is a task for all of them, and not for this country alone.

RIDICULES OUR POLICY.

Ex-Ambassador Wilson Sees Peril for Any Successor of Huerta.

Henry Lane Wilson, ex-Ambassador to Mexico, said last night in an address before the Baptist Social Union of New York, that, in his opinion, a settled Government at the present time would be in charge of affairs in Mexico and thousands of lives and millions of dollars' worth of property would have been saved if Huerta had been recognized by the United States even as late as August or September of last year.

"If the Administration does have its way and if a candidate, approved by it finally is elected as President of Mexico," said Mr. Wilson, "he will remain in power only so long as the army and navy of this country protect him. Practically every man in Mexico will have a dagger out for the Anglo-Saxon-selected President, and the minute that the American Army and Navy cease to defend him will be his last.

Mr. Wilson said that Mexican history could not produce a ruler who would measure up to the specifications of the present Administration. Before the rule of Diaz, he said, the hands of practically every ruler had been dipped in blood.

JAMES McNALLY ACCUSED.

Senate to Investigate Charges Against Nominee for Consul.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—A subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Commerce will investigate charges against James McNally of Pennsylvania, who has been named for American Consul at Nuremburg, Bavaria, on behalf of J. F. Newman, an American citizen in China, where McNally has been for years in the Consular service.

It is charged that McNally, while serving in the capacity of American Consul, withheld a portion of the profits of a real estate transaction with the Chinese Government, which he negotiated for Newman.

MR. BREMNER LOSES FIGHT WITH DEATH

Cancer Victim Whom Radium Could Not Save Had Faith in It to the End.

PRESIDENT EULOGIZES HIM

Flags Half-Masted in Passaic, Where Body Was Taken from Baltimore for Funeral.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 5.—Congressman Robert Gunn Bremner succumbed to-day to the cancer against which he had fought so heroically. His absolute faith in the radium cure for the disease continued until he lapsed into unconsciousness, from which he passed into death.

He realized some time ago that the disease had advanced too far in his case for radium to effect a cure, but until yesterday discussed it with the doctors and his family. When last Sunday his brothers were summoned to his bedside—two from Virginia and one from Canada—and they and his wife, Mrs. Edith McLaughlin Bremner, and his sister, Miss Helen Bremner, stood in his room, knowing that his death was only a few days away, he still did not surrender. But he realized that the battle might be lost and he said to his brother Leith that if "anything happened" he wanted Leith to take charge of his estate and of the newspaper in Passaic, N. J., which he owned and edited, and see that his wife's interests were guarded—the widow, who is a Canadian, is said to have no relatives in this country.

He also requested that the Rev. Father Kernan, rector of a Catholic Church at Passaic, should attend his funeral. Mr. Bremner was not a Catholic, but he was warmly attached to Father Kernan and they had been close friends for many years.

On Monday morning he worked for a time over a bill he had introduced into Congress to increase the safety of laborers employed in certain branches of industry. He talked on Tuesday of the legislation now before Congress to make radium available to the poor as well as the rich for the treatment of cancer. For the larger part of two days he had lain in a state of coma.

The funeral services will be held at Mr. Bremner's late home at Passaic, where the body was taken to-night.

PASSAIC, N. J., Feb. 5.—When news of the death of Congressman Robert Gunn Bremner was received here Mayor George M. Seger ordered the flags on all city buildings to be half-masted as a mark of respect. Flags were displayed at half-mast on many other buildings in the city.

PRESIDENT SENDS SYMPATHY.

Delegation Appointed by the House to Attend the Funeral.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—News of Representative Bremner's death was received in Washington with profound sorrow. President Wilson to-night issued this statement:

> I am deeply grieved by the loss of Bob Bremner. He was a personal friend whom I greatly admired and was such a man as attracts deep affection. Throughout his sufferings, which were long-continued, he seemed never to think of himself, as he certainly never spoke of himself, and he was throughout as keenly interested in the diligent performance of his public duties and in kindly offices to others, as if he had been free from pain. I feel that a beautiful spirit has gone out of the world.

To Mrs. Bremner the President sent this telegram:

> Allow me to express my deep sympathy with you. I feel for myself I have lost a dear and an admirable friend.
>
> WOODROW WILSON.

The House adopted resolutions expressing profound regret for the death of Representative Bremner, and Speaker Clark appointed the entire New Jersey delegation and Repersentatives Johnson of Kentucky, George, Ashbrook, Cary, Prouty, Fess, Kiester, Broussard, Wallin, and Winslow to attend the funeral.

A PLUCKY FIGHT FOR LIFE.

$100,000 Worth of Radium Used—Bremner's Successful Career.

The case of Representative Robert G. Bremner of New Jersey made a sensation when it became known through an account published in THE TIMES of Dec. 26 last that eleven tubes containing $100,000 worth of radium, almost half the supply in the United States, had been embedded in his left shoulder by Dr. Howard A. Kelly of Baltimore in an effort to arrest the growth of a cancer. Mr. Bremner entered the private hospital of Dr. Kelly, it was said, at the suggestion of President Wilson.

The cancer was one of the most malignant that recently had come under the observation of medical scientists. For some time Mr. Bremner had been a sufferer from the disease, but in the last year the growth was so rapid that the cancer finally extended over the left shoulder, almost meeting under the arm. The extension of the cancer in front ended just over the heart and the extension over the back covered the shoulder blade.

In treating the cancer Dr. Kelly put radium in eleven rubber-coated tubes, about two and one-half inches long and about a third of an inch in diameter. The tubes were inserted in as many incisions made in the growth on Mr. Bremner's shoulder on last Christmas Day. The treatment required probably the largest number of tubes and the most expensive quantity of radium ever used in a single operation. The patient in the early stages of the treatment, and even until his sudden and unexpected relapse, showed signs of improvement.

Robert Gunn Bremner was born in Caithness, Scotland, on Dec. 17, 1874, the son of a seaman. While still a youth Mr. Bremner went to Canada with his parents, and the family settled near Toronto. When he was not working on his father's truck farm he was in school. Before reaching his majority, however, Mr. Bremner ran away from home, and finally reached New York. He worked as a carpenter's helper, and later went to Rutherford, N. J., where he was employed on a weekly newspaper until he became a reporter on The Paterson Evening News, in 1895.

Mr. Bremner enlisted in the Second New Jersey Volunteers during the Spanish-American war. On his return from encampment at Jacksonville, Fla., he became associated with Mayor John Hinchcliffe in the publication of The Passaic Daily Herald, of which he subsequently acquired ownership.

Mr. Bremner never ran for office until he was nominated on the Democratic ticket for the Sixty-third Congress, and was elected by a majority of 3,330 in a strong Republican district. He was one of the most popular of the newer members of Congress.

When he was elected Mr. Bremner was suffering from cancer. He was able to attend to his official duties, although physically exhausted, until a short time before he undertook the radium treatment. Before entering Dr. Kelly's hospital he had received treatment by physicians of Passaic and New York.

Still believing in the efficacy of the radium treatment, and in Dr. Kelly, Congressman Bremner on Jan. 12 last prepared a message to the public relating to his case, which was transmitted through THE TIMES. In that message he said:

"If experimenting on me has added a new fact to science, then my life has not been in vain, but has helped the race. My life is not worth one-tenth of the effort that has been put forth to save it. I am ready for the scrap heap, but I feel that the cutting and the doctoring have added to the knowledge of how best to fight cancer.

"Some poor soul who comes after me may benefit. The question is not whether I am going to get well, but rather if I am going to live up to the ideals for dying gamely, which are just as helpful to the race as living bravely. Some day science will conquer cancer, and I think I would rather be in the category of those who were in the fight and helped to win the victory than to be one of those who placidly reaped the benefit."

Congressman Bremner is survived by his wife, who was Miss Edith McLaughlin of Paterson, N. J.; his mother, who still lives near Toronto; eight brothers, including the Rev. Walter C. Bremner, Alexander S. Bremner, and Cecil Bremner of Camilla, Canada, and two sisters, Miss Nina M. Bremner of Toronto and Miss Helen Bremner, who was his private secretary.

"BILL" EDWARDS IN COURT.

Testifies for Contractor Sued by City—Witness Chair Too Small.

"Big Bill" Edwards, ex-Street Cleaning Commissioner, was a witness yesterday in the suit of the city against Cesestino De Marco for $50,000, said to be due on a contract given for trimming the scows used in carrying the city's garbage out to sea. The contract called for the payment by De Marco of $1,717 a week for a period of three years, beginning in 1909. Payments were made up to 1911, when Mr. Edwards began dumping the garbage at night. No light were supplied, and so it was impossible for the trimmers to work with good advantage to the sub-contractors, who paid Mr. De Marco as much as $200 a week for some of the dumps.

Then came the strike of the street cleaners and for a time no garbage was dumped into the scows and when work began again the dumping was so fast that no picking of the treasures from the city's refuse could be made. Mr. Edwards was called by the defendant to testify concerning a promise he had made to Mr. De Marco that if he would continue the work of trimming the scows he would see that the latter did not lose by it. Mr. Edwards came jovially to the witness chair and nodded cordially to Justice Erlanger, who nodded back. Then he tried to sit in the chair. He couldn't because the arms were too close together for his bulk. So he sat on the very edge of it and admitted that he did have the talk with Mr. De Marco which had been testified to. Then Mr. Edwards hustled back to Newark where he is looking after the interests of Joseph Marrone, who has the contract for keeping that city clean.

It came out in the evidence that all of the dumps were sublet to small contractors and that the collections from these men were made by an employe of Mr. Marrone. It was also testified to that the night work instituted by Mr. Edwards reduced the income from the trimmings from 10 to 25 per cent. Justice Erlanger reserved decision.

AMPUTATE VAN VLIET'S LEG.

Gangrene Attacks Head of Goodyear Co. After Appendicitis Operation.

Clinton Van Vliet, President of the Goodyear Rubber Company, is dangerously ill at the Flushing Hospital following the amputation of his left leg just below the knee and an operation for appendicitis. He underwent the operation for appendicitis two weeks ago. Four years ago he was operated on for appendicitis, but when he was stricken the second time it was found that the physicians had refrained from removing the appendix and had removed an appendicular abscess.

After his second operation for appendicitis gangrene set in which his physician, Dr. Charles B. Story, attributed to a congestion of blood due to lack of exercise. Mr. Van Vliet's condition became so grave that the amputation of his leg was deemed necessary. Little hope of his recovery is entertained.

Mr. Van Vliet is 68 years old, and has lived at Douglaston for fifteen years. He was born at Plainfield, N. J.

OPPOSE BURNETT BILL.

Jewish Federation to Memorialize President and Congress.

The Executive Committee of the Federation of Jewish Organizations of New York State held a special meeting yesterday at 150 Nassau Street and arranged for the sending of a memorial and resolutions to President Wilson and Congress protesting against the Burnett Immigration bill, which has now passed the House of Representatives, and against other pending legislation restricting immigration. The federation will co-operate with the National Liberal Immigration League, which was represented at the meeting, in opposing these measures.

Hyman J. Reit presided at the meeting, and Manuel F. Behar, Director of the Liberty League, one of the speakers, said there were nine bills pending which tended to further restrict immigration. Mr. Behar said such legislation was selfish and apparently intended to isolate the people in this country from the rest of the world. It was decided to use every means possible to prevent the bills restricting immigration from becoming law, especially the Burnett bill.

MRS. BELMONT MAGEE SUES.

Asks $50,000 from Father-in-Law for Alienating Husband's Love.

Mrs. Belmont Burdette Magee, daughter of Dr. Frank M. Deems of 289 Madison Avenue, Flushing, started suit in the Supreme Court in Queens yesterday against her father-in-law, Albert J. Magee of Great Neck, L. I. She accuses him of having alienated her husband's affections from her by persecuting her, speaking of her maliciously, and by encouraging her husband to seek the companionship of other women. For this she asks $50,000, and adds that in due time she will sue her husband for divorce.

The Magees were married less than four years ago, and have two children, Audrey, a boy, now with his father in Great Neck, and Doris, a 4-months-old baby, with her mother. Mrs. Magee has been living with her father since Fall.

BAR STAYS UP FOR CUCKOOS

Sportsmen Seeking Incorporation Heed Hint from the Court.

Justice Garretson in Long Island City yesterday granted incorporation papers to an organization of sportsmen to be known as the Rockaway Point Rod and Gun Club. Justice Kapper several days ago refused to grant incorporation papers under the title of the "Cuckoos." Justice Kapper contended that the title "Cuckoos" was not dignified. There was no objection to the other name.

The incorporators are Herman Linde, Edward F. Bourke, Fred Van Hosselin, and Anthony Bourke of Manhattan, and Ludwig Jesselson, Peter Demarest, William Carl, and Richard Prest of Brooklyn.

MAKE TIMES SQUARE AN EXPRESS STOP

Public Service Commission Will Put a Local Station at Forty-seventh Street.

ALL LINES WILL BE UNITED

By Mezzanine Passages Passengers May Change at Times Square Without Going to the Street.

The Public Service Commission decided yesterday, sitting as a Committee of the Whole, to put an express station at Times Square on the B. R. T. Broadway line and to make the station, which will extend from Forty-seventh to Forty-ninth Streets, a local stop. This action will be confirmed at the public meeting of the commission to-day, it is expected.

The station at Times Square will extend from Forty-second Street down Broadway to Fortieth Street, thus paralleling the Interborough express station in Seventh Avenue, which will be between these two streets. Connection between the two stations will be provided by a mezzanine passage at Forty-second Street, and by other mezzanine passages under either Forty-first Street and Fortieth or both of them. There will be direct mezzanine connections between the northern end of the Broadway station and the stations of the Steinway tunnel line and the shuttle service, which it is expected will occupy the present Times Square station.

The details of the plan have not been worked out as until the end of the committee's discussion there was a division of opinion among the members as to the possibility of extending the B. R. T. station north of Forty-second Street toward Forty-fourth Street, according to the plan of Henry G. Opdycke, consulting engineer of the Broadway Association. Chairman McCall was in favor of this arrangement, but when Alfred Craven, chief engineer of the Public Service Commission, represented that to adopt it would involve engineering difficulties connected with the sub-surface structures and the adjoining buildings which would be very expensive if not impossible to overcome, it was decided that the station must be south of Forty-second Street.

The change in the original tentative plans of the commission was carried by the vote of 3 to 2. Although according to the plans at present under consideration the extensive mezzanine arrangements under the open area of Times Square, which had been suggested by the Broadway Association, will not be carried out. A traffic centre of great capacity will be created at this point, reaching from Fortieth Street to Forty-third Street and uniting Broadway and Seventh Avenue.

There is some doubt as to whether it will be possible legally to construct the mezzanine connection between the B. R. T. and the Interborough lines at Fortieth Street. Under the law the commission may construct a spur only 75 feet long from the subway track as part of the rapid transit work, and this limit would leave a stretch of about 20 feet, which could not be charged to the subways. Mr. Craven said he thought that some way could be found of getting around this difficulty.

It is likely that from the B. R. T. station there will be an entrance to the Metropolitan Opera House, and by means of the mezzanine under Fortieth Street it will be possible to reach the Opera from the Interborough station without going up to the street level.

As the B. R. T. line has to pass under the present Interborough line as it curves through Times Square it will be on the second level. Over it will be mezzanine bridges, to which stairs or escalators will run from the platforms. These bridges will be on the same level as the passageway leading under Forty-second Street to the Seventh Avenue Interborough station and as the platforms of the present Times Square station.

Consequently any one descending from the street through the Times Building will find just outside its doors a broad underground concourse, at the northeast end of which will come in all probability the Steinway tunnel and the shuttle-service trains. From the southeast end access will be provided by a flight of steps to the B. R. T.'s trains for Brooklyn or Queens along the Broadway line, and at the southwest end will be the end of the Interborough's west side express station. Transfer from one of these lines to any other will be easy, and there will be no necessity of going to the street in changing cars.

The commission has not decided definitely how it will construct the Times Square Station for the Steinway tunnel and the shuttle service, but Mr. Craven has presented a tentative plan. He would bring the Steinway tunnel line from the third level to the first, by a grade beginning between Fifth and Sixth Avenues, and he would then give up to this service the two southerly lines which run into the present Times Square Station, and "dead end" them there. Then he would devote the two northerly of the present lines to the shuttle trains, leaving, however, the physical connection between these and the present Broadway line, so that, if required, trains might be run through fro mthe Brooklyn Bridge to Ninety-sixth Street.

The commission has not considered whether it would be advisable or profitable to extend the present uptown platform of the Times Square station into a concourse for the convenience of those who have to cross Times Square. It is doubtful whether under the 75-foot limit the commission has the right to construct such a mezzanine, which would be more, it was said yesterday, in the nature of a street than a subway convenience. Chairman McCall is by no means certain that such an objection would be valid, and even if it was, there would be nothing to prevent the Board of Estimate from sanctioning it as a city improvement, provided the necessity was established. The commission hopes to provide the two Times Square stations and the underground traffic centre with many entrances and exits.

DISCUSS SUBWAY CONNECTION.

Board of Estimate Committee Meets the Utilities Board.

Mayor Mitchel, President McAneny of the Aldermen, and Controller Prendergast went yesterday as a committee of the Board of Estimate to the office of the Public Service Commission to confer with the Utilities Board upon the connection between the old and the new subways at the Grand Central Station. They inspected a model of the proposed diagonal connection from Forty-third Street and Lexington Avenue to Forty-first Street and Park Avenue, which had been prepared by Alfred Craven.

As in this question an extra expenditure of $1,500,000 is involved, the commission is desirous of obtaining the views of the Board of Estimate before it takes its own vote. The board hopes to make up its mind to-day, and the commission would then be able to obtain a final disposition of the matter, while Commissioner Eustis, who is thoroughly familiar with the issues, is still a member.

The commission is preparing now to advertise for public competition the construction contract for Section 7 of the Lexington Avenue line, which extends from Fifty-third to Forty-third Street. This would carry the line to the point where the diagonal connection, if adopted, would strike off to the west.

AMERICANS HURT IN EUROPE

Mme. Max Henraux and Gordon Armsby in Swiss Toboggan Accident.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Mme. Max Henraux, an American, who was Miss Beatrice Whiting, and Gordon Armsby of Burlingame, Kan., were injured, the former seriously, in a toboggan accident to-day at Belvoir. Pontresina. Mme. Henraux's skull was fractured at the base. Armsby has a deep wound in his head and a bone of a hand is broken.

The victims were members of a sleighing party, which also included M. and Mme. Walter De Munn and Miss Maxine Elliott. The toboggan containing Mme. Henraux and Armsby dashed at full speed down the run, evidently out of control, crashed into the end of the run, and turned over twice.

JAMES REGAN MISSING.

American Passenger Vanishes After Boarding Ship at Marseilles.

MARSEILLES, Feb. 5.—The American Consul is investigating the strange disappearance of a supposed American, James Regan of New York, reported by the Captain of the German liner Prinz Heinrich, which left Marseilles bound for Naples on Jan. 28.

Regan, who was believed to have been a commercial traveler, booked second class for Naples, and was seen aboard the vessel before she sailed. He disappeared, and no trace of him could be found when the ship arrived. A peculiar feature of the disappearance was that Regan's baggage also vanished. The Captain says in his report that he believes Regan took his baggage on deck during the night, threw it overboard, and jumped after it.

BAVARIA TO BUY RADIUM.

Favorable Action on a Bill Appropriating $150,000 for State Supply.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—In the Bavarian Chamber to-day a bill appropriating $150,000 for the purchase of radium and mesothorium passed its first reading by a unanimous vote. The Minister who recommended it to the Chamber said that the Government would manage to balk speculators in radio-active substances.

Austria has already offered Bavaria a considerable quantity of radium from her mines. The Government attaches a higher value to radium than to mesothorium.

With all due allowance for exaggeration in the reports of so-called cures, the medical Faculty of Munich has expressed its opinion that the prolongation of life and the alleviation of pain unquestionably follows the treatment of the sick with radioactive substances.

HAITIAN SITUATION TENSE.

More Foreign Detachments Land—Theodore Sets Up as President.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Feb. 5.—The situation here has reached a state of tension. Orestes Zamor, who defeated the rebels under Senator Davilmar Theodore a few days ago at Gonaives, is on his way to the capital, and will probably reach here Saturday.

Diplomatic representatives are opposed to the rebel troops entering the city, but authorize the entry of the revolutionary leaders only. It is thought certain that this prohibition cannot be enforced except by arms, and that if the diplomatic body does not withdraw from its present attitude, fighting will ensue.

Detachments from the American and German warships have been patrolling the city for several days. The French cruiser Condé and the British cruiser Lancaster have now reached port, and landed detachments to-day to assist those already on duty.

The press and public are protesting violently against the landing of the foreign forces. At the same time the military authorities here, who favor the aspirations of Zamor, have prevented the dispatch of arms and munitions to Theodore, who has proclaimed himself President at Cape Haitien.

BIG DEAL DUE TO SPEECH.

Baron De Forest to Give $7,500,000 for an Estate of Lord Derby.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—A big land deal is likely to result from a political controversy.

Maurice Arnold de Forest, who is a hereditary Baron of the Austrian Empire, has accepted an offer recently made in a public speech by the Earl of Derby to sell his estate in Bootle, a suburb of Liverpool, for $7,500,000.

The property was purchased in 1724 for $35,000, and in a contribution to the Land Inquiry Committee's report, Baron De Forest cited this as a striking example of unearned increment. He estimated the annual income from this property as $500,000 and the value of the property as between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000.

In his speech offering the land for sale, Lord Derby declared that the estimates were grossly excessive, and referred contemptuously to Baron De Forest as "an alien gentleman for whom I have no love, who has come here to tell us landlords what we ought to do."

HAGUE PEACE PARLEY PLANS BEGUN BY US

Conference to be Held Next Year—Diplomats at Netherlands Will Draft Programme.

TO INCLUDE PEACE TREATIES

Plans Permit of Their Consideration, Says Bryan—Not Going on Peace Trip Abroad.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Both President Wilson and Secretary Bryan said to-day that the United States Government had taken steps for calling a third international peace conference to be held at The Hague. After communications had passed on the subject between Queen Wilhelmina, officers of the Netherlands Government, and Henry van Dyke, the American Minister at The Hague, the matter has been turned over to the members of the foreign diplomatic body at the Dutch capital as a committee to arrange details and draft a programme of the subjects to be considered.

The individual members of the committee will then receive the instructions of their own Governments regarding the programme and be in a position speedily to weld them together and fix a date for the gathering, which probably will be some time in July next year.

It was indicated by Secretary Bryan that the scope of the programme would be broad enough to permit consideration of the principle embodied in the new series of peace treaties he has been negotiating. This principle is set forth in a stipulation that when two Governments are involved in a controversy threatening to result in war they shall suspend hostile action for a fixed period, during which an effort shall be made to adjust the controversy through a board of arbitration.

The next Hague Conference has been threatened with failure through the neglect of some of the great powers to take the steps necessary for the preparation of the programme of subjects to be considered in time to insure the assembly of the conference next year, according to the recommendations of the last conference.

One of the protocols adopted by that conference recommended that the Governments represented appoint individual committees to prepare lists of subjects to be placed on the programme for the meeting two years in advance of the actual date of assembly, which was to be in 1915, if the usual practice was followed.

The United States promptly appointed, as its committee, Reuben Clarke of Utah, then Solicitor of the Department of State; Judge Advocate General Crowder, for the army, and Rear Admiral Wainwright for the navy, and this committee has done its work.

Few other nations, however, have met their obligations in this respect, and it was represented to Secretary Bryan by Senator Root a short time ago that some way must be found to hasten the agreement upon a programme and have a date named for the third conference.

A report that Secretary Bryan contemplated going to Europe to further his peace propaganda was denied by Mr. Bryan. He was more reticent, however, when asked whether he would go to Santiago, Chile, this year, to attend the third Pan-American conference. Mr. Bryan said that the delegates of the United States to this conference would be appointed by President Wilson, but he would not discuss the matter of whether he would be designated as one of them. Elihu Root, when Secretary of State, attended the Pan-American Conference held at Rio de Janeiro.

The Look Before the Leap

may be well enough for most of us, but Zane Grey, in his new novel, "The Light of Western Stars," tells us about some people who leap first. There is a girl—a New York girl—and things happen from the minute she gets off the train in the little cattle town just this side of the turbulent Mexican border. "The Light of Western Stars" is not galloping border fiction, by any means, but a man's size novel—a swinging tale of reality—every incident natural, and for that reason all the more exciting. It reveals a life you would like to live yourself. It all happens to-day—and this is the best day to get this new novel.

ASSERTS LABOR MEN PLANNED CIVIL WAR

Smuts Continues Speech in Defense of South African Government's Course.

THOUSANDS HAD DYNAMITE

Deportation of Leaders Decided Upon to Insure Future Peace—Lord Gladstone Exonerated.

CAPE TOWN, Feb. 5.—After speaking for four hours yesterday in the Parliament of the Union of South Africa, Gen. Smuts, the Minister of Defense, to-day continued his justification of the Government's action in declaring martial law during the recent general strike and in deporting the strike leaders.

The Minister declared that the labor leaders had planned serious military operations, had organized small commandos of dynamiters, and had deliberately inflamed the spirit of the mob and incited it to crimes of all sorts until the strike had developed into sheer anarchism.

Every industry, the Minister continued, was to be brought to a standstill by the strikers, but the declaration of war by the Federation of Trades was met by the proclamation of martial law and the mobilization of the citizens' defense force by the Government.

The situation had been practically one of civil war, the Minister continued. Thousands of miners were in possession of dynamite, a native outbreak was threatened, and food supplies were scarce. The Government, he said, was therefore amply justified in proclaiming martial law, which had proved effective, and the threatened great tragedy had passed away without bloodshed.

In order to insure future peace in the country, said the Minister, the Government decided, after prolonged consideration, to deport the ringleaders, fearing that if the men were brought to trial the courts would not convict them of high treason.

The Government did not seek to destroy the trades organizations, Gen. Smuts declared, but intended to deal a drastic blow to a "criminal and revolutionary conspiracy."

The Minister exonerated Viscount Gladstone, the Governor General, from all responsibility, pointing out that under the Constitution Lord Gladstone could not prevent the deportation, although he warned the Ministers of the seriousness of such a step.

LONDON, Friday, Feb. 6.—Some of the special dispatches from Cape Town dealing with the speech of Minister of Defense Smuts express the view that it is still doubtful whether the Minister of Defense will obtain a majority when the question of confidence in the Government comes up for a vote.

These dispatches argue that the Minister made a weak case toward the close of his speech by declaring that only foreign adventurers had been deported, and in laying down the general principle that the Government was entitled to deport political undesirables so long as they were not born in the country.

Moreover, the dispatches add, the Minister referred sneeringly to previous Supreme Court trials as farces, and ridiculed the idea that if the Government had waited Parliament would have voted in favor of the deportation. They say Gen. Smuts caused a sensation by announcing that the police had prepared a much longer list of men for deportation, from which only a selection had been made, adding:

"A great number of consummate scoundrels still remain in the country."

DRUMMOND HEARING ENDED.

English Appeal Court's Judgment Will Probably Be Given Next Week.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The hearing of the appeal of Mrs. Maldwin Drummond, formerly Mrs. Marshall Field, Jr., against Justice Horridge's judgment, given last July, ordering her to pay $50,000 income tax on the money she received from America for the maintenance and education of her three children, was ended in the Appeal Court to-day.

The court reserved judgment, which will probably be given next week. The majority of the Judges are apparently in favor of granting the appeal on the ground that payments are discretionary and voluntary on the part of trustees.

Mrs. Drummond was again present and seemed confident that her appeal would be successful chatting gayly with friends.

OLD ENGLISH MSS. SOLD.

One in the Dunn Library Brings $550—High Prices for Incunabula.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—In the continuation of the sale of the George Dunn library at Sotheby's to-day "Psalterium Davidiis Regis," an illuminated manuscript, English of the thirteenth century, finely written in Gothic letters on 222 vellum leaves, brought $550. It contains seven large, painted and illuminated historiated miniatures.

"Martialis Epigrammatum libri XIII, Cum Scholiis Jacobi Micylli," octavo, Basle, 1536, a remarkable specimen of German imperial binding, not recorded in Weale, realized $200.

"Vindiciae Ecclesiae Anglicanae," by Francis Mason, folio, "Impressum per Felicem Kyngstonum, 1625," a fine and perfect specimen of royal Lyonnese binding, went for $245. It is probably the dedication copy to King James I. and was perhaps the last book dedicated to him.

"Mirrour of Our Lady," small folio, "Imprynted in the suburbes of the famous Cytye of London withoute temple barre by me Richarde Fawkes, dwellynge in Durresme rentis, or else in Powles Churcheyerde, at the sygne of the A. B. C. the yere 1530, Nov. 4," was knocked down for $255. It is an extremely rare work, not more than two perfect copies being known.

"Tractatus contra Judaeas: Expositiones Canticorum ferialium," a rare volume from the press of Jacobus Perez de Valentia, folio, 1485, brought $250. It is in a binding by Leighton.

"Epistolarum libri decem," by Plinius Secundus, octavo, Paris, 1511, went for $215. On the fly leaves are rude figure sketches, and the signature of "David Lindanus Gandavensis, 1593."

"Carmina," by Propertius, manuscript on ninety smal folio vellum leaves, sold for $350. It is a finely written and perfect codex. The decorative work is in the best style of the Italian Renascence.

"Psalterium Eboracense cum Calendario," English of the twelfth century, a manuscript on 135 small quarto vellum leaves, went for $245. It contains 116 painted and illuminated decorative initials and seven large decorative initials in involved scrolls. This manuscript probably came from Selby Abbey.

The ninth and last session of Part II. of the Dunn library will be held to-morrow.

$2,050 FOR A CHINA GROUP.

Old Chelsea Work—Big Prices for Oriental and Dresden Porcelain.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The collection of porcelain of the late J. E. Reiss was sold at Christie's to-day.

A Famille-Rose large dish, 19½ inches in diameter, Kien-Lung, brought $755.

A frame, containing a blue jasper medallion portrait of William Pitt, an autograph letter by him, and a silver-gilt Pitt Club badge, went for $685.

A Dresden figure, 6½ inches high, of a man in dancing attitude, wearing pink coat and green breeches, sold for $735.

At Puttick & Simpson's a fine Chelsea group of a lady and a gentleman, modeled by Roubilliac, thirteen inches high, fetched $2,050.

"Two Kisses" Sold for $1,820.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—At the Hotel Drouet sale of engravings "Two Kisses," by Debucourt, a proof printed in colors, sold for $1,820.

Aviator de Reale Killed.

VERSAILLES, Feb. 5.—Raoul de Reale, a French airman, was killed here to-day by a fall from a height of 600 feet while he was experimenting with a new model biplane. He had been a certificated aviator since November, 1911.

GOVERNING BOARD TO CONTROL PERU

Chosen by Congress Pending General Election, It Is Headed by Col. Benavides.

RECOGNIZED BY THE FLEET

Troops Arrest Recalcitrant Prefect of Cuzco—Chile Sends a Warship to Callao.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 5.—Congress convened in extraordinary session last night and elected a junta of six, headed by Col. Benavides, to govern the country until general elections can be held. Guillermo Billinghurst, the deposed President, is still guarded in the penitentiary.

The navy has recognized the new Government.

The backbone of the revolution are the Captains and Lieutenants of the army. The manner in which they conducted the coup d'état is highly praised.

It is estimated that the entire casualties number fifty. Gen. Varela, the late Premier, it appears was killed by his own troops at the Santa Catalina arsenal after he had shot a soldier for refusing to obey his orders.

By The Associated Press.

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 5.—The governing board named by Congress includes, besides Col. Oscar Benavides, who led the attack on the palace, Drs. José Matias Manzamilla, Arturo Osores, José Balta, Benjamin Boza, and Rafael Gran.

Refusal to recognize the new government was proclaimed to-day by Oresto Ferro, Prefect of the important inland city of Cuzco, who was a strong supporter of President Billinghurst and who led a revolt against President Leguia in 1911. The garrison of the city thereupon turned out of barracks and placed the Prefect under arrest.

Former President Billinghurst is to be exiled.

The newspapers Nacion, Accion, and Popular, which were semi-official organs of President Billinghurst's government, were suppressed to-day and will not be allowed to reappear.

In Lima and Callao normal conditions were restored to-day.

VALPARAISO, Chile, Feb. 5.—The Chilean cruiser Zenteno has been ordered to proceed to Callao, Peru, to protect Chilean interests.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Former President Augusto B. Leguia of Peru, who was deported from Callao in August last by President Billinghurst, and who now is residing in London, received a number of cablegrams to-day from his brother, Carlos Leguia, a member of the Peruvian Senate, telling of the overthrow of the Billinghurst Administration.

Mr. Leguia declared that he had no aspirations for re-election to the Presidency, but said he rejoiced in the joint action of the Congress and the army "in restoring by constitutional methods that which had been destroyed by President Billinghurst."

FRENCH SCOTT MONUMENT.

Erected on Mount Lauterat, Grenoble, Which Scott Visited in 1908.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—The memorial erected by French admirers of Capt. Robert F. Scott was inaugurated to-day. It is situated on the snow-peaked Mount Lauterat in the Alpine garden of the University of Grenoble, and recalls a polar cairn.

The cairn is square at the base, each side measuring ten feet, and facing exactly one of the cardinal points. It is ten feet in height. On the east side is a bronze plate with this inscription:

> The English Capt. R. F. Scott, who while returning from the south pole died bravely with his companions for his country and science on or about March 25, 1912, spent some time on Lauterat in March, 1908, in order to prepare for that memorable expedition.

With Dr. Charcot, the initiator of the memorial, was a company of representative scientists. Lieut. Drake represented the British Admiralty.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

VIENNA, Feb. 5.—The Austrian Geographical Society has decided to honor the memory of Capt. Scott by the posthumous award of the Hauer Medal, the highest distinction the society can offer.

MAY AID JAPAN'S INQUIRY.

German Lawyer Said to Have Photographs of Secret Documents.

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—Photographic copies of the stolen secret documents relating to the alleged illicit dealings of Japanese naval officers with a German electrical firm contracting for the Japanese Navy are said to be in the possession of the attorney who prosecuted Carl Richter, the firm's stenographer, sentenced here recently for blackmail.

The original letters are said to have been returned to the firm. V. Herrmann, the representative in Tokio of the firm, is under detention by the authorities there on the penal charge of destroying documents valuable to a criminal suit.

The documents are supposed to have implicated Admiral Fujii, formerly Naval Attaché in Berlin, and other officers, and in this connection an official inquiry is in progress in Japan.

TO ACCOMPANY SHACKLETON

Many Members of the Expedition Have Already Been Chosen.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Sir Ernest Shackleton has practically decided to purchase a new ship called the Polaris of 650 tons built in Norway for arctic work. She will be renamed the Endurance and be employed on the Weddell Sea side of the antarctic under the command of Capt. J. K. Davis, who is in charge of the Mawson expedition ship Aurora. The Aurora will probably be selected for the Ross Sea side of the continent.

Failing this, Peary's ship, the Roosevelt, which has been offered to Sir Ernest Shackleton, may be selected. Both ships are fitted with wireless.

The ship employed in the Ross Sea will be officered and manned entirely by men of the Royal Navy, while the vessel on the Weddell Sea will be manned entirely by merchant service men. The Admiralty and War Office are giving Sir Ernest every assistance. The War Office will probably let army officers accompany the expedition if the leader so wishes.

Those chosen so far are: Frank Wild, second in command and surveyor, 39 years old; George Marston, artist, and in charge of clothing and sledges, 30; Lieut. A. E. Macintosh, probably leader of the Ross Sea depot party, 33; A. Cheetham, third officer on the Weddell Sea ship, 36; Capt. Orde Lees of the Royal Marines, head of the motor school at Deal and an expert Alpine climber and instructor in physical training, 35, (who accepted pending the decision of the Admiralty;) Ernst Joyce, in charge of the dogs on the Ross Sea side, 39; Capt. J. K. Davis, in command of the Weddell Sea ship.

For the scientific staff applications have been received from several members of Scott's expedition, and it is practically certain that a number of his party will go. Applications have also come from members of Dr. Mawson's present expedition, and two men who are now with Mawson on Adelie Land will be included among the scientific staff.

If the permission of the Admiralty is obtained officers and men from the naval side of Scott's expedition will constitute the ship's staff on the Ross Sea.

ROOSEVELT'S HEALTH GOOD

Despite Incessant Rain, Which Prevents Astronomical Work.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 5.—Col. Roosevelt and his expedition arrived at Utiariaty on Jan. 30. During three days' journey there incessant rain prevented the carrying out of any astronomical work. The expedition then continued its march, reaching the rivers Duvida and Gyparana.

The health of the members of the expedition is excellent.

May Be a Militant Incendiary.

GLASGOW, Feb. 5.—A woman giving the name of Rhoda Robinson was arrested here to-day and taken to Dunblane, Perthshire, in connection with yesterday's incendiary suffragette fires at Aberuchill Castle, the "House of Ross," and the St. Fillan's mansion in that county.

TOMBO TO LECTURE ABROAD.

Columbia Professor Invited to Address European Audiences.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—The Association for the Promotion of Germanism Abroad has invited Prof. Rudolf Tombo, Jr., of Columbia University to come to Europe in May and June and deliver a series of lectures in Italy, Austria, and Germany on the educational system of the United States. Prof. Tombo has accepted the call and has chosen as his themes "The Influence of German Culture in the United States" and "Higher Education in the United States."

The invitation is the outgrowth of the highly successful lectures which he delivered in Prussian and Saxon universities in 1910 and 1911 on "American University Ideals."

His work as director of the Deutsches Haus at Columbia and as Secretary of the Germanistic Society of America has given him a wide reputation in German-speaking Europe.

The advertising rate of THE NEW YORK TIMES, 40 cents per agate line, with circulation Sunday and daily exceeding 200,000, makes the cost less than one cent a line for each 5,000 circulation—the cheapest, as it is the best, newspaper advertising in the world.—Adv.

MITCHEL OPENS A WOMAN'S WORLD

Exhibition of Styles, Jewelry, and Practical Demonstrations in Housekeeping.

TEA ROOM IS A FEATURE

Ten Different Charitable Organizations Will Take Turns in Managing It.

There is a little world for women in the third annual Woman's Industrial Exhibition which was opened last night by Mayor Mitchel at the Grand Central Palace. The exhibition is the work of 250 women of prominence in society and philanthropy, and ten charitable organizations of the city will be benefited by the receipts.

The women visitors find everything in which women are interested in the booths of the different exhibitors. They can see the latest styles in underwear, jewels set in handwrought metal, a nice little model kitchen, and the National Housewives' League, which is a feature of this year's exhibition, will tell them how to go marketing with economy and efficiency. If the women are not sure that they can tell fresh eggs when they see them in the market the Springside Farm people will tell them how to raise their own eggs and make the hens lay every day in the year—or pretty near it.

The tea room was one of the greatest attractions at last year's exhibition, and it opened again this year under the auspices of the Widowed Mothers' Fund Association, which was in charge yesterday and offered rest and refreshment to the weary sightseer. Mrs. William Einstein and Mrs. Harry Craft served tea. The other organizations which are to benefit by the exhibition will be in charge on different days. The New York Association for the Blind, Miss Winifred Holt, Secretary, will offer one of the jolliest days on Saturday, and will have dancing on its programme.

To-day the Franciscan Sisters of Mary, Mrs. Nicholas F. Brady, Chairman, will have the tearoom. None of the beneficiaries of the exhibition is more interesting. This organization helps poor girls to become self-supporting by instructing them in different lines of woman's handiwork. Their work is done all over the world. In Belgium, France, Ireland, Italy, and Spain the girls learn lacemaking and tapestry weaving; in China and Japan they embroider and weave fine textiles; in Madagascar and the Congo they achieve wonderful results with the needle. At the New York convent, 223 East Forty-fifth Street, they do fine sewing for trousseaus and infants' clothes, and there are lacemakers and embroiderers. The workers of the convent in Boston make specialties of ecclesiastical embroidery and church vestments. Examples of many of the pretty things made are to be seen on sale at the exhibition.

Aside from the tea room, the New York Exchange for Women's Work, another of the philanthropic organizations which handle all kinds of women's work, has, with the needle-made goods and Summer gowns already on hand, a supply of delicious home-made cakes and candy which the visitors patronized liberally. The Shut-In Society, which disposes of the work of invalids for their benefit, has all sorts of pretty things, including fascinating little sets of dolls' furniture made from cigar boxes. The New York League for Animals of 26 West Fortieth Street has an exhibit, varying on different days, and always interesting. One feature of the exhibit will be moving pictures, which will show the children's farms of New York. There will be special features daily.

Among the patronesses who received the Mayor last evening were Mrs. Henry F. Dimock, President; Mrs. Nelson Herrick Henry, Directress; Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, Mrs. John Ross Delafield, Mrs. George Gould, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Howard Henry, Miss Eleanor Hewitt, Miss Winifred Holt, Mrs. Grenville Kane, Mrs. William Loeb, Jr., Mrs. Henry B. Mallory, Miss Virginia Potter, Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, Mrs. Jacob H. Schiff, Mrs. James Speyer, Miss Amy Townsend, Mrs. Samuel Untermyer, and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr.

PLACE MORGAN ART WORKS.

Two-thirds of Collection Arranged in Metropolitan Museum.

Nearly two-thirds of the Morgan art collection has been arranged in seven large rooms in the new wing of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The work would be completed, it was said yesterday, within the next two weeks. The first room at the entrance of the new wing contains wall cases holding medallions and bronzes of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries and enamels. It contains also the famous Hoentschel collection of enamels of the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, for which the late Mr. Morgan paid $1,000,000 four years ago.

The second room holds collections of ivories of the thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth centuries, including the Oppenheim collection of ivories. With the ivories is a collection of majolica and the Guthman collection of German silver, for which Mr. Morgan paid $400,000.

The next room is devoted to eighteenth century furniture brought from Mr. Morgan's London house, 13 Prince's Gate, including a commode and secretaire from the Hamilton Palace sale that belonged to Marie Antoinette, a screen six folded by Lancret, Louis XIV. table, a set of tapestry chairs, two sofas, ten armchairs covered with old Gobelin tapestry, a Louis XVI. sofa and six chairs, covered with old Beauvais tapestry. The walls of this room will be decorated with the English paintings that were lent by Mr. Morgan to the Metropolitan Museum, including Sir Joshua Reynolds's "Lady Dalme," a full length Lawrence, a Romney, two Raeburns, and a Gainsborough.

The fourth room has been fitted with the panels, doors, and ceilings brought from the famous Fragonard room in the London house, Prince's Gate. The room has been transplanted with all its mountings and put in the room at the back of the new wing overlooking the Park. The panels were painted by Fragonard when he lived at Grasse, in the south of France, near Nice.

The fifth room is devoted to a collection of miniatures which is said to be the finest in the world. They are set out in flat cases on the walls. The collection includes miniatures by Holbein, Cooper, Peter Oliver, Cesway, Englehart, Plimner, and Smart, and French miniatures by Hall, Isabey, Dumont, and others.

In the sixth room there is a collection of Dresden china containing crinoline groups, and vases of all the different periods complete; in all 500 pieces.

The seventh room contains collections of Sèvres china, vases of Rose de Barri, turquois, dark blue and yellow colors, including the ship and two vases of Rose de Barri, which came from Lord Dudley's collection.

Subway Newsstand Hearing.

Many applications from magazine publishers for copies of the proposed agreement between the Interborough and Artemas Ward for a 15-year grant of the newsstand and advertising privileges on the old and new subways and the elevated lines, were made yesterday to the Public Service Commission. The commission has set a public hearing on the matter for 2:30 o'clock on the afternoon of Feb. 16, at which all the Commissioners will be present.

FINES CAPT. SWEENEY.

Police Officer Must Lose 30 Days' Pay for Not Stopping Gang Fight.

Police Capt. John F. Sweeney of the Fifteenth Precinct was fined thirty days' pay yesterday for neglect of duty. He was tried before Deputy Commissioner Newburger, who recommended that he be dismissed from the department. It was charged that Sweeney failed to provide adequate police protection at Arlington Hall, 23 St. Mark's Place, on the night of Jan. 9, when the Harry Lenny and Tony Dyke Association held a ball there. There was a gang fight outside the hall and Fred Straus of 935 Longwood Avenue, the Bronx, a court clerk, was shot and killed. Capt. Sweeney was suspended the day after the fight.

Commissioner McKay in imposing a fine instead of removing Sweeney, took into consideration, he said the Captain's twenty-eight years of service, and the fact that he had not been a Captain long when the fight took place. Capt. Sweeney's defense was a general denial that he had been warned that the ball was to be given. This defense, the Commissioner said, was inadequate.

Two other policemen were charged with neglect of duty in the same case—Lieut. George S. Wheeler and Patrolman Rosenstock. The charge against Wheeler was dismissed and Rosenstock was fined twenty days' pay.

Vaudeville To-night for Charity.

The A. E. Society's vaudeville entertainment and one-act comedy, "Mother," written by Richard Bates, will be given this evening at the Hotel Gotham for the benefit of the General Charity Fund. One of the features will be the appearance of Miss Margery Shannon in costume dances. Miss Edith Phillips and Holland Judkins will also dance. The cast of the comedy includes the Misses Alma Bennett, Vivian Thompson, Lorraine Wiggins, Worthington Smith, Clifford Wiggins, and Kneeland Green.

In Correction of an Unintentional Mis-statement

On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week we advertised for Sale 50,000 boxes of "Crane's" Stationery at 29c a box, explaining that hundreds of thousands of boxes of the same Stationery are sold yearly in the United States at 50c a box.

This was a mis-statement, though not an intentional one.

The paper is not what is generally known as "Crane's," though it is made by the same concern, Eaton, Crane & Pike, and is of the quality claimed.

By the error of one of our staff of Buyers, this Stationery was taken in stock, listed and sold as "Crane's."

Several thousand boxes have been sold.

We think that every purchaser feels that he has quite fully received his money's worth.

Nevertheless the advertising contained a misrepresentation, unintentional though it was, and so, any one who so desires may return the Stationery bought as "Crane's" and receive a refund of the price in cash, as he can in any other case of dissatisfaction.

The Stationery is still on sale. At 29c a box it is extraordinary value. Thirty styles and tints of paper and correspondence cards, at 39c a box, the usual price throughout the United States being 50c a box.

GIMBELS

Silks

With a World-Famous Heritage

The Gimbel Silk Salon might justly be compared with a famous museum, for in it one will find the Silks that are the masterpieces of great artists. In other words, the Silks that are to fabrics what the paintings of Gainsborough, Romney, Watteau, and other famous artists are to the art world.

These Silks are not the expression of an erratic whim, but are the masterpieces of men whose life-work has been the designing and weaving of silks—a heritage which has been handed down from generation to generation.

Marie Antoinette, Madame Pompadour and other celebrated favorites of the Courts of France would have adored these Silks, for they were woven in the very mills of Lyons which were honored with the favor of those famous women.

The very Silks which have brought fame to Como and Zurich are here, too.

Direct from the Ghent Exhibition in Belgium is a collection of Silks which was exhibited by Schulz & Company, of Lyons. The very Silks that brought high honors to those illustrious weavers of fine brocades.

Although it may seem boastful, we cannot refrain from repeating what has been said to us many times during the last fortnight—

"Not in Europe or America Is There Such a Superb Exhibit of Silks as at GIMBELS, New York"

It is our pleasure to present these Silks at conservative prices—from $1 to $15 yard. Second Floor

NOW GOING ON!

Clothing Events of Great Importance to Men Who Would Save Substantially

A matter of 350 Overcoats and 400 Suits, or thereabout, now selling

Arthur Striess 1914

In this collection of GIMBEL Overcoats

All weights are represented in practically every new style a man would wear for either Winter or early Spring.

This is simply a matter of EXODUS right after stock-taking to make room for the new clothing for the Spring.

Coats from the heavy "storm" variety to the light Spring Coats, and the styles may be relied upon as being the newest and most authentic; silk linings prevail in the Overcoats and colorings are varied; blacks, too, in many weaves.

The Suits were all made especially to GIMBEL order, and they typify our expert selection in fabrics and cut from the fashionable, closely-fitting garments to styles for the more conservative man; full, half and quarter lined.

This is an unique sale in its variety, and men will not be disappointed in sizes, because all are represented in the entire assortment.

400 Youths' Suits and Overcoats at $10, Regularly $15, $16.50 and $18

The Overcoats are in single and double breasted styles, convertible collars, many with belts in the back. The Suits are in Norfolk and plain sack styles, and the fabrics and colorings as well as style and tailoring are particularly suitable for youthful figures; sizes from 30 to 38 chest measure.

Men's $5, $6 and $6.50 Trousers, $3.50

These are in good quality Worsteds in fashionable striped and plain colors, well made and finished, all sizes; they are from our regular stocks.

Loeser's

Good Morning!

Those patriotic business men of the Sunshine Club will find plenty of comrades here in Brooklyn.

Judging by the increased business in our February Sales of Furniture and China, it appears that business conditions in our own community are good and growing brighter.

True, we prepared better Sales than ever before, but the best values have no attraction for the empty purse.

We have shed some sunshine for others to-day in the shape of out of the ordinary Sales.

Disposal of Hand Bags

Latest In Paris First At Loeser's

The latest idea that has set Paris buzzing is the use of "shawls" as tunics, skirts, dresses and suits. Cheruit, Premet, Callot and Doucet are preparing models of these "shawls," or "chales," as the French call them.

The "shawl" squares are woven especially for draping and lend themselves beautifully to the newest modes.

The center is in one of the fashionable new checks of black and white, and the borders, averaging 5 inches in width, represent the checks in deeper note, or with the addition of color in the new shades of banana and burnt banana, terra cotta, deep buff, mahogany, garnet, burgundy, etc. Sometimes the border is in broken check.

They are shown in the Loeser Dress Goods Store for the first time, we believe, in this country; in a round dozen different patterns and in two sizes—66x66 inches and 66x63 inches—at $5.95 and $4.95, respectively. One "shawl" will make a skirt; two will make a suit or dress. Second Floor, Elm Place.

Skirt Styles For 1914

This will be a season of furbelows, flounces and frills so far as skirts are concerned.

Moreover, it is going to be a year for the Separate Skirt, unless all signs fail.

Come and see

A hundred and one styles in these new separate Skirts at Loeser's and a wonderful range of sizes, so that practically every woman may be fitted easily without alterations. Prices from $4.95 to $18.75.

$4.95. Skirts of serge with hip drapery of circular flounce beneath a yoke. Others of black brilliantine with two flounces between hip and knee.

Policeman's Brother Was Second Black Sheep in Family.

The fleeing thug who was shot and killed on Wednesday afternoon by Policeman George Wangerman of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station, and who was thought at first to be Harry Cizek, was identified yesterday at the Morgue as Robert Downie, 21 years old, a stone cutter, of 124 Jamaica Avenue, Astoria. He was a brother of Policeman Hugh Downie of the West Thirtieth Street Station. The identification was made by a sister of the dead man, Catherine Downie.

Downie came from a respectable family that has lived in Astoria for years. He was regarded among the people in his neighborhood as the second black sheep of the family. His widowed mother is grieving over another son, Thomas, who, in February last, was sentenced to a term of not more than fifteen years nor less than eight years for highway robbery. He was convicted of assaulting Michael McGrath, a stone cutter, and robbing him of $635 that he had in his possession to pay the weekly wages of his employes.

WOMEN IN CELLAR MYSTERY

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 5.—Norman Stanley, formerly night watchman at the new City Hall, who was arrested in Wheeling in connection with the murder of Robert Mercer, whose body was found buried in the cellar of the new building, arrived here to-night in the custody of a detective.

Two other men and two women were questioned about the mystery to-day, and the police said that Mercer was slain during a quarrel over a card game. Stanley told the detectives that he would make a full statement to-morrow and that he would be cleared of all blame in connection with Mercer's death.

JUDGE BARS EXPERTS ON 'HAGAR REVELLY'

Says Their Testimony Relates to Facts of Which Jurors Are Judges.

POINTS RAISED ARE NOVEL

Norman Hapgood, Prof. Jenks, and Others Qualify, but Can't Testify—Shakespeare Ruled Out.

In the course of the trial yesterday of Mitchell Kennerley, the publisher arrested at the instance of Anthony Comstock for the circulation through the mails of the novel "Hagar Revelly," Judge Thomas, in the Criminal Branch of the United States District Court, refused to hear the testimony of Norman Hapgood, editor of Harper's Weekly; Prof. Jeremiah W. Jenks of New York University, J. B. Kerfoot, literary editor of Life, and Leonard Abbott, literary critic of Current Opinion.

Judge Thomas permitted all of the witnesses mentioned to qualify as expert witnesses, but insisted that the hypothetical questions submitted by the attorney for the defense were incompetent, because they dealt with questions of fact, of which the jurors were judges.

The novel "Hagar Revelly" was written by Daniel Carson Goodwin, and according to the complaint made by Anthony Comstock, as a Post Office Inspector, the story is indecent. The publishing and mailing of the novel were acknowledged yesterday in the trial by Attorneys John Quinn and John L. Lockwood for the defense.

Assistant United States District Attorney John N. Boyle contented himself with reading to the jury certain passages from the novel, which, he contended, were inclined "to corrupt the morals of readers." Mr. Boyle, in a conversation after the noon recess, said that for selling a copy of "Hagar Revelly," William Cleary, a clerk in Mr. Kennerley's employ, was fined on Dec. 29 last $50 by Justices Moss, Fleming, and O'Keefe, sitting in the Court of Special Sessions.

At the direction of Judge Thomas, the jury in the case was sent out of the court room while the question of admitting expert testimony was discussed.

Norman Hapgood was called as the first expert witness for the defense. Mr. Hapgood acknowledged that he favored the open discussion of sex hygiene. In order to establish his claim as an "expert witness" in literature, Mr. Hapgood testified that he had read about 4,000 books. He acknowledged under cross-examination that he was not in sympathy with the prosecution. He told of his studies of social problems and was interrupted by Judge Thomas, who asked him a number of questions.

Assistant District Attorney John N. Boyle asked Mr. Hapgood if he ever had discussed sex hygiene with a young girl. "Yes, with my own daughter," was the reply.

"Have you ever considered what an open discussion of these questions might mean to other young girls, or have you ever discussed these questions with them?" asked Mr. Boyle.

"I do not make a habit of discussing this question with young girls," was the reply.

Judge Thomas held that Mr. Hapgood had qualified as an expert witness, but said Mr. Quinn must read the questions he desired to ask before he would permit Mr. Hapgood to testify. All of the questions referred to the book, "Hagar Revelly," and the average reader. Judge Thomas sustained the objections of Mr. Boyle and refused to admit the testimony.

Prof. Jenks testified that he had held the chair of political economy in Cornell University for twenty-one years and now was Professor of Government at New York University. He said that he had written on sociological problems for The Century Magazine, for The Political Science Quarterly, and for other publications. He had compiled reports for the Government.

Judge Thomas ruled that Prof. Jenks had qualified as an expert witness, but made the same ruling as to the testimony which he would be called upon to give.

J. B. Kerfoot testified that he had reviewed between 4,000 and 5,000 books in his career. He was in favor of an open discussion of sex problems. He said that the controversy over the discussion of sex questions had arisen within the last fifteen years and was due to the feminist movement.

Judge Thomas made the same ruling in his case as in that of the other witnesses. He also made the same ruling in the case of Leonard Abbott.

Then the attorneys for the defense introduced in evidence printed reviews of the book "Hagar Revelly," which had appeared in newspapers and magazines. Judge Thomas rejected these exhibits for the same reason that he had excluded the expert testimony. In commenting from the bench upon his rulings, he said:

"A very interesting legal question as to the competency of expert testimony has arisen. This is a most important case. I have ordered that exceptions to my rulings shall be entered in order that the defense shall have every opportunity to test the matter in the higher courts."

Mr. Quinn then asked permission to submit to the jury for purposes of comparison certain passages from well-known standard works. These quotations were from Milton's "Paradise Lost," Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," "King Lear," "Much Ado About Nothing," "Taming of the Shrew," "Winter's Tale," "Venus and Adonis"; various selections from Dryden, Sir Walter Scott, and books on sex questions. This evidence was ruled out as incompetent by Judge Thomas, and the trial was adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

When the jury was impanelled, three of the talesmen called were excused because of prejudice on their part against Anthony Comstock. One talesman acknowledged that he would not be an impartial juror, because Mr. Comstock had criticised a postal card which he had sent through the mail. Another was excused because he resented the attempted prohibition of the sale of "September Morn." The third explained that he could not condone Mr. Comstock's interference with art and literature "as a self-constituted censor."

ASSAIL MRS. BAILEY'S WILL.

Witnesses in Will Contest Tell of Circus Rivalries.

The contest of the will of Mrs. Louisa Ruth Bailey, widow of James A. Bailey, of Barnum & Bailey, drew many men once well-known in the circus business to White Plains yesterday. The action to set aside the will is brought by Mrs. Ann Isabelle Hutchinson of Bridgeport, a sister of Mrs. Bailey. The defendants are Joseph T. and Theodore McCaddon, the executors of the will. The plaintiff alleges undue influence on the part of Joseph McCaddon.

Joseph Mayer, a publisher of New York City, who was a programme boy for Barnum & Bailey and later took charge of the programme business for the circus testified that in 1906 at the opening of the circus season in Madison Square Garden, Mrs. Bailey snubbed Joseph McCaddon when he spoke to her. It is asserted by the plaintiff that Mrs. Bailey was displeased with Joseph McCaddon because in 1905 he organized a circus which competed with the Bailey show in France. The McCaddon show failed.

R. S. Hamilton, once a well-known press agent, testified that Bailey had said Joseph McCaddon had treated him unfairly in organizing a rival circus. After Bailey's death, the witness said, McCaddon directed him to send disparaging press notices to London about the Barnum & Bailey show.

In the papers filed by Mrs. Hutchinson it asserted that Mrs. Bailey was incapable physically and mentally of making a will. After Bailey's death, it is alleged, Joseph McCaddon became the widow's confidential adviser, and represented to her that Frederick B. and Charles T. Hutchinson, sons of the plaintiff, had been guilty of duplicity and deceit in their conduct toward her, which influenced her when she disposed of her estate, valued at $4,000,000. The case will be continued to-day.

TWO JUMP FROM BRIDGE.

Law and Miss Bennett Do a Parachute Stunt for Movies.

Two motor cars raced over the Williamsburg Bridge yesterday afternoon and when the first car reached the centre span, 175 feet above the river, a young woman leaped out, scrambled up to the top of the parapet, seven feet higher than the driveway, and jumped off into space. A young man jumped out of the second car, threw himself to the top of the parapet, and followed.

Traffic was lively on the bridge, and only a few noticed a motion-picture machine at work. The shouts, shrieks, and yells which greeted the double jump stopped for a moment when it was seen that the two had parachutes. The young woman, who was Constance Bennett, fell ninety feet before her parachute bulged out, while the young man, who was Rodman Law, the human skyrocket, dropped like a shot to within fifty feet of the water before his parachute mushroomed.

As the two struck the water, the breathless crowd on the bridge noticed a tug cruising near them with two motion-picture cameras aboard. This tug, the Dalzelline, picked both of them up.

BLOW KILLED SAFFORD.

Hat-Rack Fell on Lawyer and Meningitis Developed Later.

The injury which caused the death of Philo P. Safford, a well-known lawyer, early on Wednesday morning at the Long Island College Hospital, in Brooklyn, the police learned yesterday, was due to a peculiar accident. Mr. Safford returned home late on Sunday night from the Crescent Athletic Club, and as he was about to go up the stairs to his room he brushed against a hatrack in the hall. The rack fell, knocked him down, and struck him over the right eye.

Mr. Safford paid no heed to the injury until the following day, when he complained of severe pains in his head.

Mr. Safford was taken to the Long Island College Hospital on Tuesday, suffering from meningitis. Before he died he told the physicians of the injury he had received, and after his death his case was reported to the Coroner, who ordered an investigation. Mr. Safford was 50 years old. He had a law office at 76 William Street, Manhattan, and lived at 173 Joralemon Street, Brooklyn.

SIEGEL DEPOSITORS CHEER CASH OFFER

CUT IN TIME DEMANDED

$450,000 Raised by Friends and Relatives of Siegel and Vogel—Couderts Would Give Free Service.

A formal order of a cash payment of 30 cents on the dollar and notes covering five years for the balance of the money due the depositors of the failed bank of Henry Siegel & Co. was made yesterday by Henry Siegel and Frank E. Vogel, through their attorneys, Stanchfield & Levy, to a meeting of depositors held in the temporary office of the bank at 43 West Thirteenth Street.

The announcement was conveyed to some 600 depositors there present by John P. Munch, Chairman of the Depositors' Committee, in a letter from Coudert Brothers, the law firm retained by the committee to protect the depositors. Coudert Brothers inclosed the following letter, which they had received from the Siegel lawyers:

> Feb. 5, 1914.
> Messrs. Coudert Bros. and Messrs. Hays, Hershfield & Wolf, Attorneys for Depositors' Committee, New York City:
> Gentlemen—On behalf of Messrs. Henry Siegel and Frank E. Vogel, we wish to inform you that these gentlemen have left no stone unturned in their endeavors to raise money from relatives and friends in order to provide a fund for the depositors. We now learn from them that by reason of their efforts there is at once available a fund of $450,000 for that purpose. This, with the proposed adjustment with the store creditors and the funds available to the receiver, would provide 30 cents on the dollar for the depositors.
>
> The balance of 70 cents or such amount as it may turn out to be, our clients are ready to agree to pay during a period of five years; such promise to be secured by increasing the amount of Siegel Store Corporation stock held by the receiver to $4,000,000 par.
>
> As to the form or legal proceedings in which this arrangement may be carried out, we are agreeable to such plan as you may approve, provided only that it will give to the depositors their cash payment as quickly as possible. Yours very truly,
> STANCHFIELD & LEVY.

"The $450,000 referred to in the letter," said John P. Murray of Coudert Brothers, "is, as we understand the facts, made up of contributions by various friends and relatives of Messrs. Siegel and Vogel. It constitutes no part of the assets of the banking firm. On the contrary, it is a fund over and above the assets in the hands of the receiver. As we view the legal situation there is no reason why the same cannot be distributed immediately among the depositors in accordance with the wishes expressed by the attorneys of Messrs. Siegel and Vogel.

"Plans are now being discussed for the distribution of the fund some time this month. We hope that by next week the method and terms of distribution will have been agreed upon, so that we may announce same to you."

Mr. Munch told the depositors that he understood that $250,000 was to be put into the business of the various Siegel concerns by the merchant creditors in the course of the reorganization of the various stores and that this would materially increase the value of the assets protecting the depositors of the bank. Those assets also include the $100,000 bond filed with the State Controller at Albany and about $37,000 in the hands of the receiver, Henry Melville. Mr. Munch added that Coudert Brothers, through whose efforts the depositors were enabled to come within sight of cash and hope of repayment, had informed him that they would make no charge for their services if there was no litigation in the matter. It had been agreed to pay the law firm 1 per cent. commission. Mr. Munch's announcement was received with cheers.

There were many questions as to what, if anything, was to be paid to the law firm of Hays, Hershfield & Wolf, which had come into the case as attorneys for a Protective Committee consisting of Theodore A. Bingham, E. W. Bloomingdale, and Theodore P. Gilman, which recently sent postal cards to some of the depositors for signature as powers of attorney to act in the depositors' behalf. Mr. Munch said he didn't know what that law firm would get.

The announcement of 30 per cent. cash to be distributed almost immediately was received with cheers. Less welcome, however, was the proposal of payment of the balance of the depositors' claims in five years. Many insisted that two years was an ample maximum to allow the bankers to repay them, and when the meeting was adjourned Mr. Munch notified Coudert Brothers that the depositors would under no circumstances accede to the proposition for a repayment of the balance in five years.

The depositors will meet again on Thursday at 2 o'clock.

BASEBALL--FOOTBALL RULES MEN MEET TO-DAY--DATES FOR AMERICA'S CUP RACES--HOCKEY

AMERICAN LEAGUE TO PLAN WAR ON RIVALS

Secret Conference to be Held in New York Next Week —Rules Changes.

While no official call has been sent out by President Ban Johnson of the American League, it become known yesterday that an informal secret meeting of the league is to be held in this city next week, when the National and International Leagues hold their sessions. The Federal League will form the principal subject of discussion, and it is expected that the American League will appoint a committee to act in conjunction with a National League committee in deciding upon the action to be taken in regard to the so-called outlaw movement and the treatment to be accorded those players who desert organized ball for the new organization.

The American League club owners who will positively be here next week are Charles W. Somers of Cleveland, Joseph J. Lannon of Boston, and Frank J. Farrell of the local club. Connie Mack of the Athletics will also be here. Either Clark Griffith or Benjamin S. Minor is expected here from Washington. The Chicago Club will not be represented owing to President C. W. Comiskey being with the world's tourists. President Ban Johnson will be here for his conference with the National League Rules Committee, so there will be enough American Leaguers in the city to decide upon some plan to forestall the Federals. The regular meeting of the American League is scheduled for March 10 in Chicago, but by getting together here next week the magnates can get the ideas of the National League club owners on combined action.

Secretary John B. Foster of the New York club has notified the members of the Joint Rules Committee of the National and American Leagues that a meeting will be held at the office of the New York club next Monday morning. Mr. Foster, Manager Miller Huggins of St. Louis, and Umpire Hank O'Day make up the National League committee. The American League committee consists of President Ban Johnson, C. W. Somers of Cleveland, and Connie Mack of Philadelphia. The joint committee will have plenty to occupy their attention, as the Baseball Writers' Association has recommended some changes and various recommendations have been advanced by major league officials.

Uniformity in rulings by the umpires of the two leagues will be one of the subjects discussed. At present there are a few points in the rules which are interpreted differently in the two leagues. In the National League base runners are allowed to leave their bases and take their own chances on being put out when an infield fly is hit. In the American League the base runner must hold his base until the ball hits the fielder's hands or the ground. The National League umpires must call a balk when the pitcher drops the ball as he starts to pitch, while the American League allows its umpires to use their judgment as to whether the ball was dropped intentionally or otherwise. Holding a base runner by a coacher at third base is legal in one league and illegal in the other. The same is true about coaching a batter. These and several other points on which the leagues vary will be brought up, and it is expected that definite rulings will be made to guide the umpires in both organizations.

The intentional pass will be another subject of discussion, but it is doubtful if the practice can be curbed. The Cincinnati base hit, which came into vogue last year, is already doomed and will pass out with Monday's meeting. The sacrifice hit rule will be amended so as to make provisions for a batsman who lays down a bunt to advance a base runner and reaches first base, while the other runner is beating the throw to another base, the bunt not being good enough to classify as a hit. The change will allow a sacrifice for such a play instead of a fielder's choice, as at present, which adds a time at bat to the batsman, though the runner is advanced and the chance for a hit is sacrificed.

The first consignment of baseballs bearing the autograph of President John K. Tener of the National League were sent out yesterday to three National League clubs for use in their Spring training. One lot was sent to Alexandria, La., and consigned to Manager Charley Herzog of the Reds. Another was sent to Marlin for the Giants, and the third to the St. Louis Club at home. Each consignment consisted of about 250 balls. The official ball, bearing the signature of the League President, must be used at the training camps the same as in the regular league games.

President Harry N. Hempstead and Secretary John B. Foster of the New York Giants, President William F. Baker of the Philadelphia Club, and Secretary John Heydler of the National League, comprising the committee in charge of the New York end of the reception to be tendered to the homecoming Giants and White Sox next month, held a meeting yesterday morning at the office of the New York Club. Besides putting the stamp of approval on the menu the committee went over a tentative list of persons to be invited to the banquet. It was announced later that the demand for reservations will greatly exceed the supply, which approximates 600 seats. President Frank J. Farrell of the Yankees, also a member of the committee, was unable to attend the meeting.

The signed contract of Pitcher Dode Criss, the once noted pinch hitter of the St. Louis Browns, who is to make a comeback effort with the Yankees, was received at the New York Americans' office yesterday. Criss has been in Houston, Texas, for the past two seasons, first playing the outfield and then as a pitcher. Last season he won sixteen games and lost four, so the Yankees put in a draft and got him. Criss will report to Manager Chance at Houston on March 1.

King Cole's visit with Owner Frank Farrell of the Yankees ended yesterday morning when the principal in the double jump, out of organized baseball and back again, boarded a train for Chicago. He announced before leaving that he would arrive in Hot Springs next Tuesday to begin his training for the coming season. Cole will be the first of the Yankees to take up the work.

GREAT PARADE FOR GIANTS.

Sporting Clubs in Naples Will Meet Baseball Tourists To-morrow.

NAPLES, Feb. 5.—A great procession of the sporting clubs, under the leadership of Count Filangieri, will meet the members of the New York Baseball Club of the National League and the Chicago Club of the American League on their arrival here on Saturday from Cairo.

ROUNDING UP YOUNGSTERS.

Ebbets in West Again to Sign Players—Tinker Loyal to Feds.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—President Ebbets of the Brooklyn Nationals was reported in Chicago to-day rounding up some of his young players who have not yet signed. Joe Tinker, manager of the Chicago Federals, said he did not expect a visit from the Brooklyn magnate, who recently was quoted as saying Tinker would be playing on his team this season. Tinker said that no offer would induce him to join the Brooklyn team now.

"I would not leave the Federal League for $500,000," he declared. "I have a little money and a lot of pride."

"Heine" Berger, second baseman of the Chicago Americans, sent in his signed contract to the White Sox office to-day. The Sox arranged for games with the Venice Club at Los Angeles March 5, 6, 7, 8, 12, 13, 14, and 15.

William Chappelle, former pitcher with the Boston Americans and last year with Chattanooga, was among the players at Federal League headquarters and was expected to sign with one of the clubs.

Ed Walsh, pitcher, reported at the White Sox headquarters to-day, en route to Paso Robles, Cal., where he will begin training in advance of other members of the team. Walsh believes that with some extra work his arm will regain the power that made him a big factor in the Sox campaigns until last Summer.

Columbia Baseball Schedule.

Twenty-two games appear on the Columbia baseball schedule, which was given out yesterday by Harry A. Fisher, graduate manager. Fourteen of the contests are on the home grounds at South Field. The feature in the schedule is four games with the University of Pennsylvania. In former years Columbia had only two contests with the Quakers. Two of these are to be played at Atlantic City, one in Philadelphia, and one in New York. The schedule:

March 25, St. John's, on South Field; March 28, College of the City of New York, on South Field; April 1, Fordham, at Fordham; April 4, New York University, at South Field; April 6, Amherst, on South Field; April 8, Colgate, on South Field; April 10, Pennsylvania, at Atlantic City; April 11, Pennsylvania, at Atlantic City; April 15, Holy Cross, on South Field; April 18, Fordham, on South Field; April 22, Yale, at New Haven; April 25, Harvard, on South Field; April 29, Stevens, on South Field; May 5, Cornell, at Ithaca; May 6, Cornell, on South Field; May 13, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; May 16, Seventh Regiment, on South Field; May 30, Keio University, on South Field; June 1, Syracuse, on South Field; June 3, Pennsylvania, on South Field.

Would Not Play for Outlaws Again.

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 5.—Leo Witterstaetter, the Newark outfielder, who was with the St. Louis outlaws last season, says the ball players signing with the Federal League will find many hardships to endure when the playing season starts.

"Some baseball players may think they are making a ten-strike in joining the Federal League," he says, "but so far as I am concerned they could not get me back if they offered me all the gate receipts for the circuit. Ball players who have never been lower than Class A don't know what it is to play in parks where the outfield is full of gullies, in which an ankle or a leg might be broken with every step an outfielder takes in chasing a ball. A player gets 'charley-horse' at once if he attempts to cut loose. At one park, I had to take off my shoes three times during a game to empty out the sand."

Kraft as Newark First Baseman.

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 5.—Clarence Kraft, who was drafted by Brooklyn from New Orleans last Fall, is the probable successor to Harry Swacina as first baseman of the Newark International League team. Swacina deserted the club for the Baltimore Federals. Brooklyn figures on little trouble in getting the proper waivers whereby to hand Kraft over to the local team. Kraft led the Southern League in hitting last year with an average of .361 and fielded .559. Among the other names suggested for filling the berth are Enos Kirkpatrick and John Hummel, both on the Brooklyn roster. Charles H. Ebbetts, Jr., to-day denied that Hummel would get the place, and it is not likely that Kirkpatrick could get out of the National League circuit.

Player Schmitt Reinstated.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 5.—Player Frank Schmitt, who last season declined to sign a contract to play with the Boston National League Club in 1914, despite the fact that he had previously accepted the club's terms, was to-day restored to good standing in organized baseball by the National Commission. The player stated that he did not sign the contract last August because of fear that the Boston club might have had a right to his services for the remainder of last season. The commission ruled that the player had not violated any regulation of the national agreement baseball.

Federal League Balked in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 5.—The plans of the St. Louis Federal League Club for the erection of grand stands in their recently acquired ball park here were officially rejected to-day by Building Commissioner McKelvey. It was thought by baseball men here that this action may postpone for several months the opening of the local Federal League park. McKelvey ruled that the stands proposed were not wholly fireproof.

Harvard to Play Colgate April 9.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 5.—Harvard's first baseball game at home this season will be with Colgate on April 9, it was announced to-day. In the schedule given out a month ago this date was left open. A tentative plan to open the season with the Boston Red Sox on April 7 was abandoned.

First Baseman for Red Sox.

BOSTON, Feb. 5.—George F. Wilson who, as first baseman of the Lynn team led the New England team in batting and base stealing last year, signed a contract to-day with the Boston Americans. Wilson was a Bowdoin College athlete several years ago.

Races at Panama Exposition.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 5.—Announcement of the completion of the plans for the race track at the Panama Exposition was made to-day. Stakes in the sum of $227,000 will be offered to the competing harness horses in the twenty-four days' meet scheduled. The guaranteed stakes offered for pacers and trotters reach as high as $20,000 each.

CHANGES SUGGESTED IN FOOTBALL RULES

Gridiron Lawmakers May Place Restrictions on the Forward Pass.

What is expected to be the most peaceful meeting the football Rules Committee has held for several years, promises to-day to develop into a session of much oratory. Instead of standing "pat" on the present gridiron code, the legislators of the game will have to weigh the worth of a dozen or more proposed changes.

The Rules Committee will convene at the Hotel Martinique this morning and will probably be in session for two days. The joint committee is as follows: Intercollegiate Committee—A. A. Stagg, Chicago University; Capt. Joseph W. Beacham, Cornell; Crawford Blagden, Harvard; Paul J. Dashiel, Naval Academy; William N. Morice, Pennsylvania; Parke H. Davis, Princeton; Walter Camp, Yale, and W. S. Langford, Trinity. National Collegiate Committee—Lieut. D. I. Sultan, West Point; E. K. Hall, Dartmouth; J. A. Babbitt, Haverford; S. C. Williams, Iowa State; C. W. Savage, Oberlin; Harris Cope, Sewanee, and H. L. Williams, Minnesota.

The forward pass, which for the first time was used with great success by many teams last season, especially by West Point and Dartmouth in the East and by Notre Dame in the Middle West, will come in for a long discussion. The conservative element among football men have never approved of the forward pass. It was in the code for several seasons before coaches realized its great possibility as a scoring play. On account of its success last season, many coaches believe that the forward pass is fraught with danger and should be restricted. An effort will be made to make the play more difficult of execution than it was last season. To play the forward pass successfully requires unlimited practice and accurate application. Few teams in the East have ever given it that much attention. As the pass now stands in the rules, the thrower and receiver of the pass have no restrictions placed upon them. After the ball is passed back, the thrower of the pigskin may delay its delivery as long as he likes and may run out to any part of the field before making the throw. An effort will be made at the meeting to make it obligatory on the part of the thrower to toss it without delay when he receives it back of the line.

Alonzo A. Stagg, coach at Chicago University, arrived in the city yesterday and brought with him twenty-two changes which he has chosen from suggestions given him by Western coaches. Several of these refer to the forward pass. As the forward pass now stands, a player, if he saw that a pass was impossible, could throw the ball on the ground and it would count as a down. This was worked last season, first by Notre Dame and later by the Army. Mr. Stagg thinks this unfair, and he will suggest a change that an "intentional throwing of the ball on the ground be regarded as a fumble," and should go to any player who recovers it. He will also suggest that an incompleted forward pass be penalized by a ten-yard penalty. Another of his suggestions is that a forward pass "out of bounds on the fourth down should go to the opponents, where the ball is put into play." He also suggests a penalty for roughing a forward passer after the pass has been made. This latter suggestion is regarded as a good one and will tend to eliminate much of the roughness that was noticeable last season.

The coaches of the big college teams have become somewhat alarmed at the progress which the smaller elevens have made with the forward pass, and probably for this reason would like to see it restricted. Head Coach Percy Haughton of Harvard has never regarded the forward pass with approval, and it is likely that Crawford Blagden, the Harvard representative on the committee, will work for changes in the play. Mr. Stagg will also come forward with the suggestion that the value of goals from the field be reduced. There is sure to be strong opposition to this change, as football men regard the present system of scoring favorably.

The long-looked-for innovation of numbering the players will probably become a reality at this meeting. Walter Camp of Yale, Parke Davis of Princeton, Head Coach George Brooke of Pennsylvania, and many other prominent football men favor this move, as it will be a great aid to the spectators in following and identifying the players on the field. There seems to be no special objection to numbering the players, aside from the fact that it never has been done, and the old-fashioned element in football does not fancy such changes. Henry Ketcham, last year's Yale Captain, said that Yale did not favor it because the public wanted it, and that football at Yale was for Yale and not for the public.

Parke H. Davis, Princeton's representative on the Rules Committee, said last night that he would strongly advocate the compulsory numbering of players. He has led the fight for this reform. Mr. Davis said that he believed that there would be much controversy in the committee meeting over the suggestion to reduce the value of a field goal from three points.

Walter Camp of Yale will suggest the reinstatement of the field judge to the game. There will be opposition to this, because three officials on the field are apt to get mixed up in the plays and get in the way. Two officials seem sufficient to many coaches, who argue that it is in regard to failing to inflict penalties for violations, and not in seeing them, that many officials are inefficient. The trouble with three officials is that they very often conflict in their interpretations of plays and have frequent conferences during a game, which involves unnecessary delay.

There are still many football enthusiasts who regret the difficulty of scoring touchdowns under the present rules on straight rushing. It would not be surprising if the suggestion was made at to-day's meeting to inaugurate some change in rules for rushing the ball which would be operative only within the 20-yard line. A prominent football player suggested yesterday that when a team gets the ball within the 20-yard line, that the rules be changed to the old form of three downs for advancing the ball five yards. He pointed out that this innovation would not bring back the objectionable mass plays any more than under the present rules of four downs for ten yards, as the pushing and pulling tactics to aid the player's advance had already been eliminated.

COACHES OFF SIDELINES.

Dr. Carl Williams Wants Captains to be Strategists on Field.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Feb. 5.—The removal of the coach from the sidelines will probably be one of the most important changes in the football rules for 1914 at the meeting of the Football Rules Committee in New York to-morrow, is the opinion of Dr. Carl S. Williams, who will attend the meeting as the representative of the University of Pennsylvania.

The proposition to remove the coach from the sidelines will precipitate a big controversy, Dr. Williams thinks, because several members of the Rules Committee, like Stagg of Chicago, and Dr. H. Williams of Minnesota, Percy Haughton of Harvard, and Walter Camp, who also has been active at Yale, are coaches. Such a ruling, Dr. Williams says, will leave all the technical play up to the Captains of the elevens, who would then have complete charge of all changes of players, plan of attack, and the many things that the coach watches and judges from the sidelines.

"It would absolutely prevent all signaling from the sidelines," said Dr. Williams, "and make the game a real duel between the two Captains."

The advertising rate of THE NEW YORK TIMES, 40 cents per agate line, with circulation Sunday and daily exceeding 200,000, makes the cost less than one cent a line for each 6,000 circulation—the cheapest, as it is the best, newspaper advertising in the world.—Adv.

SQUASH SEMI-FINALS.

Noyes and Vanderpoel Win Matches in Handicap Semi-Finals.

D. R. Noyes and W. H. Vanderpoel will compete in the final round of the squash tennis handicap tournament today on the courts of the Squash Club, Forty-second Street and Madison Avenue. Noyes, who is handicapped at minus 5, won his way into the finals by defeating W. M. Flook, who received 10, after a long-fought and grueling contest. Noyes won the first set, after catching his opponent when the score was 12—all. Flook made the most of his big handicap in the second set and equalized matters. The third and deciding set was productive of clever playing by both contestants. The score was carried to 13—all, when the set was continued with 4 points added. Flook won one, and then Noyes ran out.

In the lower half of the semi-finals Vanderpoel, who was placed at scratch, won in straight sets from G. E. Parks, minus 5. The latter was unfortunate in a number of his shots, but the younger player held his lead safe throughout. The summary:

Squash Club Handicap Singles.—D. R. Noyes (minus 5) defeated W. M. Flook, (plus 10,) 15—12, 8—15, 17—14; W. H. Vanderpoel, (scratch) defeated G. E. Parks, (minus 5,) 15—11, 15—11.

EASY GOLF WIN FOR MARTIN.

Other Players in Pinehurst Tournament Had Hard Matches.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 5.—F. A. Martin of Ekwanok was the only first division golfer who found the going easy in to-day's second match play round in the St. Valentine's golf tourney. He ran away from W. H. Faust of the Buffalo Country Club, winning by 6 and 5, and recording a medal of 77. He advanced to play H. J. Topping of the Greenwich Country Club, who played nineteen holes before he disposed of T. A. Ashley of Woodland.

Other keen matches were a two up win by Henry C. Fownes of Oakmont from Robert Hunter of Wee Burn, Fownes recording a 78, which included a 2 which won the fifteenth hole. C. L. Becker of Woodland disposed of W. V. Swords of Oakland by winning the eighteenth hole, where the Oakland player pulled his tee shot into the woods.

In the second division C. A. Spofford of Garden City advanced to meet R. S. Hawthorne of Wyantamuck.

Travis Reaches Golf Semi-Finals.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 5.—There were few close matches in the first two rounds of match play in the Lake Worth golf tourney, which went through two rounds to-day. W. J. Travis did the best work in low scoring and came through to the semi-finals with a round of 70 in the morning, as he finished out the bye holes after defeating W. H. Smith, Oakland, 5—4. The best golf came out between Travis and H. C. Richard, St. Andrew's, when they came together in the second round. Travis won by 3 and 2, and had two 4s to duplicate his morning round. Travis will play W. P. Wood, Virginia C. C., who reached the semi-finals by defeating John Shepard, Jr., of Boston, a former Rhode Island champion, in a 20-hole match. W. H. Smith meets J. C. Tappan, Nassau, in one semi-final bracket of the championship eight, and E. H. Fitler, Merion, and G. A. Brinkerhoff, Arcola, come together in the other.

A. F. Huston, Merion; D. C. Murray, Utica; J. C. Head, Pittsburgh, and C. S. Cook, Brae-Burn, are semi-finalists in the third flight.

Gibson Going West to Round Up McFarland and Gibbons.

Manager Billy Gibson of the Garden A. C. will leave for Chicago to-morrow for a conference with Packey McFarland in regard to the proposed bout between McFarland and Mike Gibbons, originally scheduled for next Thursday night and then postponed. Gibbons, who is at his home in St. Paul, may come to Chicago to discuss the affair before Gibson starts for home. Mr. Gibson declared last night that he was positive that he could arrange everything satisfactory for the two boxers.

"There seems to be some doubt hereabout," continued Gibson, "that the bout will ever take place. But I know that it will. Both boxers are anxious for it and practically all the details have been agreed upon. It will take place at the Garden on March 9, I am sure. Some details have to be arranged, but they are not important enough to result in the match being called off."

McFarland failed to arrive here yesterday as expected. He had sent word to Manager Gibson that he planned to leave Chicago on Tuesday and then came the announcement that he had left for New York on Wednesday. Gibson wired to Chicago Wednesday night and learned that Packey was still there. Last night a telegram was received from Emil Thiry, asking Gibson if he desired McFarland to come here. Gibson wired back that he would leave for Chicago to-morrow.

RIVERS-CROSS BOUT OFF.

Jack Britton Will Be Offered Match with Leach.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 5.—The Joe Rivers-Leach Cross match is off. Joe Levy, manager of Rivers, late to-day told Promoter McCarey that the weakened condition of Joe's hand right now made it advisable not to let him do any work for a month. Dr. Fred Bowen examined Rivers's hand and placed it under an X-ray machine. He said Rivers should take a complete rest for a month.

McCarey will now fall back on Jack Britton to substitute for Rivers, and he will take up the matter with Britton at once. Britton is anxious to come here, and Cross is equally anxious to meet him. Cross is at present in Wheeler Springs.

Offer for Johnson-Langford Bout.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Feb. 6.—The National Sporting Club has decided to offer a purse of £3,000 for a boxing match between Jack Johnson and Sam Langford, the offer to remain open until March 1.

Boxing Card for New Star Casino.

The second boxing show of the Empire A. C. will be held to-night at the New Star Casino, 107th Street and Lexington Avenue, with three ten-round bouts featuring the card. In the main event Johnny Dundee, who recently figured in sensational battles here with Joe Shugrue and Sapper O'Neill, will oppose Johnny Lore, another rugged west side lightweight. The other feature event will bring together Battling Levinsky and Tom McMahon, the hard-hitting light heavyweight of Pittsburgh. In the opening ten-round bout the principals will be Freddie Hass of Harlem and Eddie Smith of Yorkville.

Offer for Papke to Box Carpentier.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 5.—Billy Papke, former middleweight champion, is wanted in Paris to box George Carpentier during March. M. Vienne has cabled here offering Papke a guarantee and percentage to box the Frenchman at catch weights. It is probable Papke will accept, as he stated recently he would be ready to fight again in six weeks.

Gibbons to Box Graves Feb. 16.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 5.—Mike Gibbons, St. Paul, and Kid Graves, Philadelphia, have been matched to box in a six-round bout at Philadelphia on Feb. 16, according to the St. Paul fighter's manager. They will fight at catch weights.

Kid McCoy to Box Carpentier.

PARIS, France, Feb. 5.—Kid McCoy, the veteran American pugilist, and Georges Carpentier, heavyweight champion of Europe, were matched to-day for a twenty-round bout in this city on March 14.

Paulist A. C.'s Big Entry.

Athletes of prominence are entered to compete in the annual games of the Paulist Athletic Club, to be held at the Twelfth Regiment Armory, Columbus Avenue and Sixty-second Street, to-morrow evening.

SELECT RACE DATES FOR AMERICA'S CUP

Defender and Challenger to Race Off Sandy Hook on Sept. 10, 12, and 15.

Races for the America's Cup will be held over the regular cup course off Sandy Hook Thursday, Sept. 10, Saturday, Sept. 12, and Tuesday, Sept. 15. This announcement was made last night by H. de B. Parsons, Chairman of the Regatta Committee of the New York Yacht Club. Although only three dates were definitely selected, subsequent dates will be arranged if necessary.

The conditions for the cup races call for three in five, and should the first three contests be divided one or more races will be necessary. These will follow the three races already scheduled, and the dates will be decided by the Regatta Committee immediately following the third race.

A series of trial races will probably be held off Newport, R. I., during the month of August in order to select a defending boat to race against Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger. The latter is expected to arrive in this country the latter part of August, in order to give Sir Thomas ample time to prepare his yacht for the contests for the trophy.

The dates selected by the Regatta Committee will enable the manager of the defender to make any changes necessary between the closing of the trial races and the first cup race. The date of the first race is nineteen days earlier than the opening contest in 1903, and eighteen days later than in 1901. In the races between Columbia and Shamrock I. in 1899 the dates were Oct. 12, 16, 17, and 20.

In selecting the second week in September for the races the Regatta Committee considered the wishes of Sir Thomas Lipton, as expressed in his challenge, and the dates were sent to the British yachtsman as soon as they were agreed upon.

The dates were determined at a meeting of the Regatta Committee, held at the clubhouse and attended by H. de B. Parsons, Chairman; Joseph W. Macdonough, and Frederic O. Spedden. In addition to selecting the dates for trial cup races, the cruise of the New York Yacht Club was announced for the end of July, subject to the orders of the Commodore.

The annual regatta has been set for Thursday, June 25, and the race for the Glen Cove Cups will take place Thursday, July 2. Both these events will be sailed off Glen Cove. The dates are as follows:

Annual Regatta—Thursday, June 25, off Glen Cove.
Glen Cove Cups—Thursday, July 2, off Glen Cove.
Cruise—Rendezvous at end of July, (subject to orders of the Commodore.)
America's Cup Matches—Thursday, Sept. 10; Saturday, Sept. 12, and Tuesday, Sept. 15, all off Sandy Hook, with subsequent races if necessary.

TENNIS EXPENSE RULE.

Clubs May Pay Players' Way to Only Largest Tournaments.

A proposed rule prohibiting American amateur tennis players from accepting expense money, except in world, national, sectional, and State tournaments, has been approved by the Amateur Rules Committee of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association and will be offered as an amendment to the bylaws at the meeting of the association to be held on Feb. 13.

This announcement, contained in a statement issued yesterday by President Robert D. Wrenn of the association and Robert Le Roy of the committee, declares that the importance of such a rule, which would make the American tennis situation conform to an amateur standard set by all other nations, "cannot be overestimated, especially in view of the United States, prominent position as the holder of the Davis Cup, and the approaching contests of 1914."

The International Federation rule in force abroad permits the payment of expenses only in world's championships. Commenting on the rule proposed here, the statement of Wrenn and LeRoy says:

"Because of the great distances in the United States as compared with Europe, the rule formulated by the committee permits associations and clubs to send players to the national, sectional, and State championships, thus adapting the international rule to the geographical sections of this country, while preserving its general spirit and intent."

McGowan First in Bronx Race.

J. McGowan crossed the finish line a winner last night in the members' handicap road race of the Bronx Church House, over the Crotona Park course of four and one-half miles. McGowan started with the limit handicap, 5 minutes 30 seconds, and ran a good race throughout, maintaining the lead from the start. He covered the distance in 28:54. George Kiely, who started from scratch, could not overcome the large handicap allotted, and finished in eighth position. His time was 25:37. Following is the order of finish, with handicaps and actual times:

J. McGowan, (5:30,) 28:54; W. Burkhard, (2:30,) 26:09; E. Field, (4:15,) 28:03; H. Earle, (1:00,) 25:15; M. Monto, (3:30,) 28:01; W. McGrath, (2:30,) 27:49; J. Woods, (1:15,) 26:35; G. Kiely, (scratch,) 25:37; H. Canarsa, (1:30,) 27:18, and F. Thumbler, (4:00,) 29:50.

Bronx Church House Election.

At the annual election for officers on the track team of the Bronx Church House Archdeacon Potts presided, and Vicar Stebbings installed the following officers: Track Captain—Harry J. Smith. Track Manager—Frederick G. Norman. Field Lieutenant—E. L. Emes. Sprint Lieutenant—Howard Seney. Cross-Country Lieutenant—Frank Ruggierio. Relay Lieutenant—Frank R. Butler. The Athletic Committee is composed of the above track officials and the following: Vicar H. Stebbings, Chairman; John H. Kelly, coach; William Renner, William McGrath, George E. Renner. The point trophy for the year 1913, closed to members of the Bronx Church House was won by William Smith, Jr., a boxer; second was won by Edward L. Emes, jumper, and third was won by V. V. Vosen, wrestler.

Runners and Cyclers to Race.

In the armory of the Twenty-second Regiment to-morrow night several professional runners will engage in a twelve-mile race. In addition to this event, a five-mile scratch bicycle race will also be run off, which is said to have attracted a fair field of riders. In the foot race it is stated that Queal and Wood will take part. Wood has the distinction of holding the world's record at fifteen miles, in which he distanced all of the men who will be opposed to him to-morrow night.

Champion Wrestlers to Meet.

Twelve of the most prominent wrestlers in this vicinity will compete in the 150-pound class at St. George's Club to-morrow evening. John Niflot of St. George's Club will referee. The entries are: Carl Johnson, New York A. C.; Peter Elfner, National T. Y.; S. Grimstad, Norwegian-American A. S.; J. Skogland, Norwegian-American A. S.; L. C. Nelson, Norwegian-American A. S.; Charles Klippel, St. George's Club; George Mayer, St. George's Club; Paul Borovfsky, Hungarian-American A. S.; John Semersky, Hungarian-American A. S.; Fred Vogel, Central Y. M. C. A.; Paavo Jaatinen, Finnish-American A. S., and L. P. Larsen, Scandinavian-American A. S.

AUTO TAGS READY FEB. 15.

Connecticut Will Not Interfere with New York Cars.

It was learned at the Automobile Bureau of the Secretary of State's office at 227 West Seventy-fourth Street yesterday, that 1914 number plates for automobiles were now expected to be ready for issuance on Feb. 15. Meantime, of course, motorists must perforce use their 1913 tags. This will not cause them any embarrassment, however, as arrangements have been made whereby the police of New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut will not interfere with machines carrying the old equipment until the new plates are out. It was said at the bureau yesterday that Connecticut had been notified of the delay in obtaining 1914 numbers and that no action would be taken there until after Feb. 15. Apparently they are having trouble in getting the new tags in New Jersey as well as in New York. According to a dispatch from Trenton, J. B. Lippincott, State Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, has canceled the contract of the Quay-le Enamel Company of Albany to furnish 50,000 pairs of automobile markers. Under the terms of the agreement, the company was to have all the markers delivered by Feb. 1, and 46,000 pairs were to have been on hand by Jan. 2. Only 30,000 pairs have been received, however, and it has been necessary to place an emergency order for 2,000 pairs with the Brilliant Manufacturing Company of Philadelphia. The price of the markers under the original contract was $15,203.

⁂

Further spread of convict road work is believed to be indicated by the recommendation for a Federal office of prisons by E. Stagg Whitin, Chairman of the Executive Board of the National Committee on Prison Labor, at a recent meeting in Washington of the Woman's Department of the National Civic Federation. The function of the new bureau, as suggested by Dr. Whitin, would be to assist State, county, and municipal administrations in the development of their prison systems along the lines of the Federal prison system. In this work there would be co-operation with the Federal Office of Public Roads in promoting the construction of highways by convicts.

Going after big game in a motor car is one of the newest methods employed by huntsmen in North Dakota. H. E. Miller of Ellendale, N. D., who recently hunted in the north woods of his State, is elated over the capture of a moose with the aid of his car. He describes it thus:

"Recently a farmer eight miles from Ellendale 'phoned me that there was a moose in his grove. Four other men and myself went out in my car. We sent a man on horseback into the grove. He drove the moose out on the prairie, and we went after her in the car through stubble fields and over the prairie. We ran her about twelve miles when she took refuge in a small pond. The mud was deep in the pond and we surrounded it. Then we roped her and dragged her to shore. It is unlawful to shoot a moose in North Dakota at any time. I have learned since her capture that this moose had been run by men on horseback several times. It took the car to get her."

NAVAL OFFICERS AT SHOW.

Inspect Types of Boat for Their Work for the Government.

Interest by officials of the United States Navy was manifest yesterday in the National Motor Boat Show, which reached its second to the last day, and attracted the largest crowd of enthusiasts in the history of the ten exhibitions held under the auspices of the association.

The naval representatives took particular notice of the heavy oil motors and inspected the larger and heavy duty types of engines in exhaustive fashion with the intention of reporting back to the department. Among those in the party were Chief Engineer W. L. Kuehule, Assistant Engineer Schumann, and Junior Engineer C. E. Jackson. Col. Zinn, of the United States Engineer Corps from Philadelphia, was doing a like work for his department.

Senator Cyprian C. Hunt, who offers the prizes each year for the race to Cornfield Light Ship and return, ordered a thirty-foot Hand V-bottom boat, which will be equipped with a fifteen horse power motor, and is to be entered in all of the long-distance races, including the Albany, Block Island, and Cornfield Light Ship events. In the last named, however, Senator Hunt will race only for points, as he has declared himself out of the competition for his own prize.

Among the prominent visitors to the show were former Police Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo, Commissioner August Hechscher, Irwin Chase, the designer; Thomas Chesbrough, W. J. Emory of Williston, Mass.; Frank Clark of the National Horse Show, E. I. Howard, Westfield, N. Y.; Thomas Fleming Day, C. F. Chapman, John J. Emory, Henry R. Sutphen, James Craig, H. R. Bond, S. J. Matthews, Frederick Lord, Charles King, E. A. Croft, and James T. Hyde.

The annual meeting of the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers will be held this morning in the Engineering Society's Building. It is expected that the scheme to standardize parts of engines, propellers and propeller shafts will be proposed, and other plans for the improvement of marine engines, motor boats, and for the betterment of the sport generally will be discussed.

At the afternoon session William Wallace Nutting will lecture on his trip to Newfoundland, and in the evening C. Andrade, Jr., and C. F. Chapman will deliver talks on "Ground Tackle" and "Types of Boats," respectively.

It was announced that prominent yachtsmen, who were guests at an informal dinner, signified their intention of being the first to form a branch of the United States Power Boat Squadrons. To-morrow afternoon at 2:30 P. M. in the Hotel Hermitage the annual meeting of the Hudson River Yacht Racing Association will be held.

Track Prospects Bright at N. Y. U.

Track prospects are good this year at New York University. Not many of the old men were lost through graduation, and the places of those who were lost will probably be easily filled from the two underclasses, whose numbers this year are larger than ever before. Much new material will be on hand this year in the freshman class, and though it is rather early it is probable that out of the new class of 116 men who entered Monday several good men will be picked. The midyear examinations and the consequent dropping of several men has lost the track squad several of its best men. The schedule follows:

Feb. 20, Connecticut N. G. relay, at Hartford; March 7, Georgetown University, relay meet, at Washington; April 25, Penn relays, at Philadelphia; April 29, Stevens, at home; May 2, Haverford, at Haverford; May 3, Hamilton, at Clinton; May 16, Mid-State Intercollegiates, at Lancaster; May 20, Lafayette, at home; May 23, Rutgers, at home; May 30, Intercollegiates.

Results of Billiards.

In last night's game of the amateur handicap 18.2 balk line billiard tournament at the Washington Heights Academy, 181st Street and Broadway, C. S. Chapman defeated R. S. Mason by the score of 135 to 77 in fifty-two innings. The winner was playing at 135 points and made a high run of 12, with an average of 2 31-52. Mason was required to tally 150 points to win, and made a high run of 10 with an average of 1 26-51.

Albert G. Cutler defeated Harry Stern in an exhibition game of 18.2 balk line billiards last night at Dunn's Academy, 160th Street and Westchester Avenue, by the score of 200 to 105. Cutler made high runs of 56, 40, and 35, and had an average of 15 points.

NEW HOCKEY RULES PLEASE SPECTATORS

Crescents Defeat Wanderers in First Match with Six-Men Teams, 4 to 2.

Playing six-men teams, under the new rules, the Crescent Athletic Club defeated the Wanderers Hockey Club last night at St. Nicholas Rink by the score of 4 goals to 2. The result was voted a complete success by the advocate of six-men teams, while the opponents found little to criticise in the contest. From a spectacular standpoint it loses none of the attractiveness of the sport, while it affords many possibilities for individual playing. Under the new rules the position of rover is eliminated, and, while the absence of two players was noticeable, the change did not seem to lessen the interest in the contest. Aside from offering chances for the players to distinguish themselves, the new rules make the game faster and enable the players to show more speed.

While the Crescents improved their standing at the expense of the Wanderers, the margin was not sufficiently wide to show any remarkable superiority on the part of the New Mooners. The first half found the teams evenly matched with 2 goals each, but with Cox replacing Martin in the second half the Brooklyn aggregation speeded up and added 2 points, while they kept their opponents scoreless.

The low scoring was in a large measure due to the effective work of Mills and Mitchell in front of the respective goals. Time and again their nets were threatened, and many clever shots frustrated the efforts of the opposing forwards. Mitchell was caught off his post once, and on another occasion the puck took an awkward bound just before it reached him, and rolled into the net. In the other goals the scoring was brought about from scrimmages.

Ther was lots of rough work, but only one penalty was inflicted, Aumond being benched for two minutes for slashing Shireff. This was the culmination of a mixup in which four players and the referee were sent sprawling across the ice. The spills were of frequent occurrence, and many of the players received bruises as a result.

From the opening of the contest, when Shireff scored on a pass-out from the back of the net after thirty-three seconds of play, there was not an idle moment, and the players were kept busy rushing the rubber or checking an opponent until the final bell rang. It required twelve minutes to make the second tally, Aumond lifting the puck through the entire field. With the score even the contest waged fiercely. Browne brought off a long shot which beat Mitchell and put the Crescents into the lead once more. They did not hold it for long as Aumond, after a pretty dodging run down the side, centred the rubber and brought the score even again.

The second half was conspicuous by the many long shots. The Crescents twice secured the puck during a scrimmage in front of the Wanderers' goal and succeeded in tallying, while on a third occasion Shireff netted the rubber, but the play was offside. The line-up and summary:

Crescents.	Position.	Wanderers.
Mills	Goal	Mitchell
Browne	Point	Ford
Ballin	Cover point	Aumond
Hallock	Right wing	A. Smith
Sherreff	Centre	T. Smith

Goals.—First half—Crescent A. C., by Sherreff, in 33 seconds; Wanderers H. C., by Aumond, in 12:28; Crescent A. C., by Browne, in 17:41; Wanderers H. C., by Aumond, in 18:38. Second half—Crescent A. C., by Hallock, in 3:12; Crescent A. C., by Sherreff, in 9:25. Penalties—Aumond, for slashing, 2 minutes. Substitute—Cox for Martin. Referee—William Russell, Hockey Club. Assistant referee—A. McKenzie, Hockey Club. Goal umpires—R. G. Rolston, St. Nicholas Skating Club, and C. F. Green, St. Nicholas Skating Club. Timekeepers—W. J. Croker, Wanderers H. C., and R. L. Von Bernuth, St. Nicholas Skating Club. Time—Two twenty-minute periods.

Canadians to Play Hockey.

The Victoria Hockey Club of Montreal, the leading amateur organization in Canada, will make its annual visit to New York and engage the Crescent A. C. team to-morrow night at the St. Nicholas Rink. The exhibition given by this aggregation on their visit here last year is still fresh in the minds of hockey fans. In that game the Crescents were leading at half time by four goals to two, and appeared to have the game well in hand, but the Victorias came back in the second half, and, giving one of the greatest exhibitions of hockey seen here, ran up a total of six goals in quick succession, and holding the Crescents to a single taly, carried off the honors by a score of 8 to 5.

Basket Ball News.

The basket ball game in the Columbia gymnasium to-night between Dartmouth and the Blue and White five will probably have an important bearing on the race for the intercollegiate championship of the East. The Columbia quintet will have to score a victory over the Green if it wishes to keep safely ahead of Princeton and Yale. At present the Columbia five remains undefeated, but a loss to-night would put them within easy reach of the two former colleges. Dartmouth has won only one game out of four and was beaten by Columbia a fortnight ago by a score of 17 to 13.

The girls' basket ball team of the Hackensack High School, which beat the Montclair State champions Saturday, won their tenth straight victory yesterday by defeating the Leonia High School girls' team by a score of 17 to 9. Miss Julia Van Antwerp, Hackensack's star forward, scored five field goals and one foul, a total of 11 points. Miss Fielder scored the other six points for Hackensack.

Lehigh Loses Four Athletes.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Penn., Feb. 5.—The Faculty of Lehigh University to-day announced that two of the 'Varsity basket ball men were dropped, along with thirty-five other students, as the result of deficiencies in studies. These two men are Crichton and Johnston. Crichton is Captain of the basket ball team and [illegible] of the 1914 football team. He is [illegible] a fine baseball player, covering first base. Another setback for athletics is the departing from college of Capt. R. H. Sproul of the track team and Dick Wright, catcher of the baseball team.

Yale Elects Basket Ball Captain.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 5.—Stanley K. Smith of Westfield, Mass., has been elected Captain of the Yale basket ball team, succeeding David L. Dunn, according to an announcement to-night. Dunn, who is also a football player, has been obliged to leave college owing to illness of his father. Smith has been playing a strong game at centre.

WORK AND FAITH WILL WIN.

Head Coach Armstrong Tells Yale Oarsmen How to Beat Harvard.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 5.—"With work and faith we can beat Harvard," said Head Coach Richard P. Armstrong to the 100 candidates for the Yale 'Varsity crew at a meeting to-night in the trophy room of the gymnasium. "If we had not had faith in years past we would never have won the trophies you see here," he said. "Let me impress upon you that the problem before us is a big one—it would be folly to underestimate it. But we can beat Harvard if we apply ourselves."

Active training will commence in the gymnasium to-morrow. Armstrong and E. J. Giannini, formerly of the New York Athletic Club, will have charge of the preliminary work. Coach Guy Nickalls, the English oarsman, is expected here next week. It is probable that crews will be on the water in another month if weather conditions are favorable.

Penn's Big Rowing Plans.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—The University of Pennsylvania crews will have plenty of racing in preparing for the big college events, according to Vivian Nickalls, their coach. He expects to arrange races with every eight in the Schuylkill navy, which includes eleven rowing clubs in this city. The captains of the various clubs along the Schuylkill River are ready to row the Pennsylvania crews and it is expected the college oarsmen will have some hard brushes before they leave for the big races at Poughkeepsie.

Columbia Freshmen Fencers Win.

Columbia freshmen outscored the sophomores by four bouts to two in the interclass fencing championship series yesterday. Allison of the freshman team, with a handicap of two touches, defeated Constant and Friedman of the sophomores handily. C. S. Baldwin, who was Captain of the 1916 freshman team, gave Comti, 1917, a handicap of four and was beaten five to four. Later, however, he defeated Howe, 1917, by the same score. The summaries:

First Round.—Allison, 1917, (2,) defeated Constant, 1916, 5 to 2; Comti, 1917, (4,) defeated Baldwin, 1916, 5 to 4; Perkins, 1917, (3,) defeated Friedman, 1915, 5 to 4.

Second Round.—Baldwin, 1916, defeated Howe, 1917, (4,) 5 to 4; Constant, 1916, defeated Perkins, 1917, (3,) 5 to 4; Allison, 1917, (3,) defeated Friedman, 1916, 5 to 4.

NEW YORK, FRIDAY, FEB. 6, 1914.

OLD LAWS FOR OLD CRIMES.

Nothing in the recent gratifying distribution of penalties for demerits is more remarkable than that the punishment was made to fit the crimes without the necessity of using any of the new-fashioned weapons of society against its enemies. It is not surprising, because the world is too old for new crimes. Of methods of fraud and other sins there is no end short of the limits of man's ingenuity, but however new the methods and forms of fraud and sin, the crime is the same in essence. Where there is an old crime there is an old law awaiting the justification of its existence by the vindication of virtue. Neither the "seven sisters" nor the "five brothers" could have added anything to the certainty of the conviction meted to the two defendants in the Federal courts. Neither the initiative, nor the referendum, nor the recall is needed for the undoing of the boss of local politics when the people have turned against him. The Judge who bought his office and the seller of the Judgeship had their prototypes years ago, and have followed the same path of previous enemies of popular government to disgrace and disappearance from the haunts of respectable men.

There is here a double moral. The new saviors of society are not necessary, and have not the powers they profess. Self-preservation is the law of survival of the fittest. Society's best defense against its enemies and traitors is self-defense. The healthy organism produces the toxins which are fatal to the inroads of disease, and the diseased organism succumbs to the disease not because of the strength of the disease but because of the corruption and deterioration of the body. The legislation which is overwhelming the business world would be unnecessary if there existed a real public opinion against many of the practices which it is sought to make unlawful without being able to make them immoral. In the hearings at Washington reported yesterday the complaint was repeated that juries would not convict under the proposed statutes unless there was a public opinion behind the law. If there is such a public opinion there is no need of the statutes. There is no just complaint of the administration of the law against restraints of trade by jury trials, because jury trials are one form of public opinion. A jury is a sample of the public, specially instructed in the law and the facts of any particular case. By no stretch of the imagination can the entire public be supposed to be, or actually be, as well informed as a jury. There is every presumption that the verdict of a jury is such as would be rendered by the mass of the people equally well informed regarding any special case.

There is no such presumption in the case of lawmakers. Or, rather, the original presumption has been negatived by bitter experience. Yet the faults of the legislators are to be charged in the first place to those who, with full opportunity to do their will, chose to elect men who have served special interests, or who have not used the standards of common citizens in their public duties. Mistakes of the electorate do not certainly show the deterioration of the electorate. Elections mostly miscarry because it is impossible to instruct all in the manner in which juries are instructed. That is the reason why it is not good policy to submit questions of self-interest, or of complicated details, to a jury of the entire people. They cannot be instructed as juries are instructed in special cases, and whenever the question of interest enters the people are as subject to the temptations of human infirmity as what is called "the interests." The laws cannot rise above the standard of the citizenship, however able and pure the legislators. Fortunately, the citizenship will not fall below its own standards, however defective the lawmakers or the laws. The jury system and the common law remain the palladium of our liberties rather than the statutes which are forgotten when printed, while the old laws retain their teeth in accustomed working order.

GOOD DEMOCRATIC DOCTRINE.

Mr. Underwood's reasons for refusing to use his influence as majority leader in the House of Representatives in behalf of the woman suffrage movement should satisfy all suffragists except those who are given to sensational methods. Mr. Underwood refuses to sanction the appointment of a special committee in Congress on woman suffrage, on the excellent ground that the right of franchise should be governed exclusively by the States. This is the soundest Democratic doctrine.

It is not a pronouncement against the movement. It will put no new obstacle in the way of the women's effort to secure the right to vote. It will save the country from a lot of needless talk which could lead to no action of moment, but would interfere with the regular business of the legislative branch of the Government. The suffragists declare that they are making good headway in the States; let them keep up the fight, and may Heaven defend the right!

COMPLAINTS OF CRIMES.

Police Commissioners have successively complained that there are not enough patrolmen per unit of population, and that outlying districts, and some thickly settled districts, suffer epidemics of crime because insufficiently patrolled. Commissioner Waldo was the first to keep periodic records of complaints of burglaries and other crimes in specified districts in order that these might be compared with the complaints in corresponding periods of previous years. Statistics of this sort are useful when the time comes to ask the Board of Estimate for additions to the force, and they aid the Commissioner in distributing his men where most needed.

Not all complaints are of crimes actually committed. But the ratios of complaints from quarter to quarter and from year to year supply accurate gauges of relative criminality. We trust that Police Commissioner McKay, in reforming the system of handling complaints, will continue the recording of the figures by districts.

THE DEPARTMENT OF LABOR.

Secretary Wilson's first annual report asks for more liberal support by Congress and laments that his services have not proved acceptable in so many cases. The Secretary has done his best, and with the best of intentions. That he has done much may be conceded freely, and yet he admits that he has not satisfied himself. Is it not possible that he has tried too hard to please those in whose interests he thought he was appointed? Surely it was an excess of zeal for this high officer of State to address the American Federation of Labor not in the familiar form, "fellow-citizens," but as "fellow-unionists." He declared his purpose to be to coöperate "with the great trades union "movement in its effort to elevate the "standard of human society." The power of organized capital, he said, was crushing the toilers, and the Department of Labor "will utilize everything in its power to prevent it." For specification he gave the copper strike in Michigan. The copper mines were held by virtue of laws which might be changed so as to change the ownership. Laws are for the benefit of society. If owners of property lose sight of that fact, society may change the titles to property. What was wanted in this particular case was collective bargaining whereby wage earners might bargain for a share of the profits. His facts as to those profits have been since denied, and employers have, as he says, shown reluctance to accept his department's services as an impartial intervener.

So much has been accomplished that more might be done if the department were animated more by regard for the community as a whole than by sympathy for special classes. The Secretary is mistaken, we think, in his idea that employers object to collective bargaining in principle. Their objection looks beyond the principle to the manner in which it is applied, which the Secretary rightly describes as "private warfare." There has been martial law in more than one State and fatal shootings in half a dozen. The weapons were not all carried by either side. The organization of the strikers has been able to hold its own with everything except the militia and the private guards of the capitalists. The police have proved ineffectual in many cases. The reason is not that the employers have sought to coerce unwilling workers, but that the collective bargainers were unwilling that any should work except by their license.

The welfare of society is hardly advanced any better by this method than by the Secretary's proposal, in common with President Roosevelt, to reconsider society's attitude toward property. When collective bargainers take the field with arms, society must choose between the tyranny of the union and the assertion of the supremacy of the law by whatever means may be necessary. If the unions are unable to exercise self-restraint, it becomes necessary to impose restraint upon them. Otherwise organized labor becomes the Government. For that neither the United States of America nor the Union of South Africa is prepared. It seems that the South African unions are revolutionary in intention. Our unions disavow such intention, but their acts are similar. The Secretary has shown an excess of zeal. He would have accomplished more if he had attempted less, and with less evident partisanship.

AN EXPRESS STATION AT TIMES SQUARE.

Good counsel and good sense prevailed in the decision of the Public Service Commission to place an express station of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company's new Broadway line at Times Square. The alternative plan of a local station at Times Square and an express station at Forty-ninth Street had few advocates and no successful defenders. The express station will now be put where it belongs, at the intersection of a great crosstown route of travel, and for putting it there the Commission will have the thanks of millions now in being and of many more millions yet to be.

The decision taken yesterday is a victory for those who have contended for an express station at the southerly end of Times Square. It is not a complete victory, since the public convenience would be better served by an express station north of Forty-second Street, but the Commission urges great engineering difficulties as an objection to the choice of that site. The express station platform on the lower level will extend from Forty-second Street southerly to Fortieth Street. There will be a connection with the corresponding express station of the Interborough's Seventh Avenue line at Fortieth Street, probably, and there will be communication between the two stations also at Forty-second Street.

Coming up from the second level, passengers will have access to the present Times Square station platform of the Interborough by crossing a platform at the mezzanine level constructed under Forty-second Street. This is important, for it provides facilities for reaching the north side of Forty-second Street without encountering the obstacle of the surface traffic. An immense majority of the passengers taking or leaving trains of this line at Times Square will doubtless use this mezzanine platform, for the bulk of the traffic originates in Times Square. It will be necessary, therefore, to provide ample stairways for entrance and exit north of Forty-second Street. But for construction difficulties there can be no question that the station itself should and would have been placed north of that street, but the distance to be traversed is inconsiderable, and the public gain in having an express station instead of a local station at Times Square is so great that minor inconveniences will be overlooked.

THE THREE THOMASES.

Promise of a new Tammany triumvirate was short-lived. On Wednesday the approaching apportionment of the leadership among Messrs. Foley, McAvoy, and Smith, all christened Thomas, was announced. Yesterday it was proclaimed that Mr. Murphy would remain in control for the remainder of his life, and the rumor about the three Thomases was branded as false. Perhaps it is just as well that there should be no triumvirate, though the possible length of Mr. Murphy's tenure is another story.

Triumvirates are traditionally weak. There is apt to be a Lepidus, while the Antony and Octavianus are almost sure to disagree. It may be remembered that a triumvirate guarded the fortunes of Tammany when Mr. Croker retired, though public remembrance of the identity of the members is very hazy. Mr. Devery called them "two-spot," "sport," and "joker," and under those labels they will live in history, if they survive at all. The famous old question of Cocker's Arithmetic, "If one man can do a "piece of work in ten days, how long "will it take three men to do the same "piece of work?" might be applied to political triumvirates, but the true answer would not be the late Mr. Cocker's answer. Three men, in that case, would need much more time than one to do the work, if, indeed, they were able to do it at all.

THE CHARITY BALL.

Within the memory of New Yorkers who refuse to call themselves elderly the Charity Ball was the most brilliant and "exclusive" public social entertainment of the Winter. It was the season's crowning event, and they who were named annually among its patrons and patronesses were beyond question socially distinguished and fit to be called "leaders." The fifty-seventh Charity Ball was given last night, and one cannot glance over its list of patrons without noting that Society, in the limited sense of the word, still lends its sanction to this long-established function, although many years have passed since a Charity Ball patron was necessarily representative of exclusive Society. With the passage of the years the ball has lost its ancient social significance, but it survives, nevertheless, as an important incident of each year to which the socially prominent are proud to lend their service.

Though the town has developed and its social complexities have so largely increased since it was the custom of writers of "society" drama and polite novels to associate this yearly entertainment with fashion and wealth, the ball is much more profitable in a pecuniary sense than it used to be. It is a public function in which a host of distinctly "nice" persons find enjoyment, and it is an institution of historical respectability. As a matter of fact, nobody was ever excluded from the Charity Ball, but it was not, in the old days, everybody's function as it is now. There is no reason why it should not survive for another fifty years or longer. Our social life has developed nothing that compares with it, and the Nursery and Child's Hospital, which has been its beneficiary in all the years of its existence, thrives from it now more than ever. Its old atmosphere has departed, but it has a new charm quite as appreciable, and the spirit that controls it is altogether commendable.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Courage Will Be Served.

Those very "temperamental" folk, the aviators, seem to be dividing themselves at present into two classes—those who, while sure that the Atlantic will be crossed by aeroplane in the near future, are convinced that with the machines now available it cannot be done, and those who think that this is the year for the great achievement. Observing these groups more closely, one observes that the men in the former have no backer ready to pay the huge expenses involved in the attempt, while the confident ones are provided with that most important adjunct of any large undertaking.

The conclusion is that in all probability even the most dubious of the famous aviators would leap at a chance to essay the ocean flight, and there is warrant for the suspicion that something like envy prompts the more gloomy of the expert prophecies. At any rate, Rodman Wanamaker has had no difficulty in finding support among both the makers and the operators of aeroplanes for the carefully considered plan announced yesterday. A machine with the power and capacity for carrying two men across the Atlantic has been promised to him, and it is obvious that he will not have trouble in finding voyagers ready to take the involved risks.

It is true that nobody has yet flown as fast and as far as the journey from Newfoundland to Ireland necessitates, but the "records" are not far behind, and they are gaining fast. An exhibition flight of more than fourteen hours has just been made, and aeroplanes, one with six passengers and another with eleven, have recently attained great heights and remained there for considerable periods.

Of course the scheme is audacious, but it is not necessarily doomed to failure on that account. It must be remembered, too, that, as President Hawley of the Aero Club said the other day in commenting on Niles regaining control of a capsized machine, "We have found the way to safety by more daring, instead of by less of it. By going far beyond every known margin of safety the brave man finds new forces to help him in the zones where the timid were sure inevitable death was lurking."

In a letter to Mr. Hawley, Harrington Emerson, the efficiency engineer, calls that "wonderfully expressed" and recalls how much the world owes to "dare-devilism." Every baby shows it, he says, when it begins to walk, and so did he who first bestrode an animal, who first trusted himself on a floating log, who first put fire under confined water in a boat, who first exploded gasoline in a cannon on which he rode the air at 125 miles an hour, up 20,000 feet.

Unfitness Needs Definition.

As a scientist talking to scientists, Sir William Ramsay coolly raises the question whether we are not, in these kindly days, taking too good and too much care of our "defectives"—of the "unfit"—and whether it would not be wiser to let a lot of them die. As a human being as modern as the rest of us, however, he knows that although the danger he has in mind is real, the remedy he suggests for it would be intolerable.

With the new valuation put on life, we have practically, if not theoretically, agreed that death must be fought as hard and as long as possible in every case except that of the murderer, and even him we kill with an ever-growing compunction. And whoever says "unfit" must be prepared to answer the question, "Unfit for what?"

Civilization has found uses for the weak of body, and even for the weak of mind, and, for a while at least, it would be terribly embarrassed if deprived of their services. Defectiveness in one direction, too, is often accompanied by compensating efficiency in another.

But while deliberately to "let a lot of them die" shocks the spirit of the age, by common agreement we are turning, scientists not less than sentimentalists, more and more from the thought of curing our social ills to that of preventing them—from attempting to restore in all its cruelty and harshness the selective death rate of the past to instituting the selective birth rate of the future—from the mitigating of evil results to the removal of their causes.

If "letting them die" were permanently done when once done, the proposal wouldn't be so bad, but, doing that and nothing else, we would have to do it forever—an abhorrent prospect. There is a better plan, and Sir William Ramsay knows it as well as Galton did.

His Debt Was Not Forgotten.

A most gracious gift, most graciously explained, is that of a half million to Yale by Lord Strathcona. Evidently there seemed to him to be something of unfairness in utilizing to the extent he did the opportunities which the United States offers to the alien and then taking back home all of the resulting profit. He did not choose to become one of us, but he recognized an obligation which many foreigners have ignored, and before his death he selected one of our representative institutions to be his agent for the payment of his debt. Yale is one of the universities that could do this effectively, and make a wide distribution of the consequent benefits.

Lord Strathcona did not put any narrow restrictions on the use of his gift. In a general way his wishes have been indicated, and the university authorities are expected to consult with his trustees as to the erection of buildings or the founding of chairs and scholarships with the money he bequeaths, but much discretion is allowed and the "dead hand" will exert no paralyzing grasp.

Perhaps the Strathcona plan is even better than that of Mr. Rhodes. We are not all quite sure that an English university offers the finest of trainings for an American boy, but Yale certainly provided one of the kinds we want.

Colombia's Consul Denies Report.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have instructions from the Colombian Minister at Washington to contradict the statement published in some newspapers yesterday and supposed to be the result of an interview had with the said Minister.

He further instructs me to say that nothing of what was published in said newspapers regarding a conference with the Secretary of State is true.

ABANDONED FARMS.

Columbia's Free Course Teaches City Folk to Reclaim Them.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The course of free lectures on farming offered at Columbia University, Fridays, at 4:10 P. M., in Room 305, Schermerhorn Hall, is well attended. The Director of Farmers' Institutes, Mr. Edward Van Alstyne, was greatly impressed when at his lecture on Jan. 23 he faced an audience of over one hundred. Judging from the rapid-fire questions that followed the conclusion of his address on "The Story of My Twenty-Year Orchard," few had come out of idle curiosity. Most of them were farmers, or land owners, who wanted to learn how to farm the old, neglected, or abandoned homestead. Twenty-odd availed themselves of the free consultation in Room 203, Journalism.

The reason for many abandoned and neglected "old farms" in our northeastern United States is that the owners have gone to the city to live. They are out of touch with farming problems and interests and have little to encourage them to catch hold and swing the old farm out of the "bread line" into the head line.

We do not need a greater number of men in the country on the farms. Many of the farmers who now are making a pittance wage out on the farm would serve their own and society's interests better were they concentrated in some other lines of industry. We need in the country wide-awake, up-to-date, capable farmers with a reasonable credit balance of funds, business ability, vigor, and patience. The city man usually has business ability if he is successful in the city. He needs knowledge of and practice in farming to be an agricultural asset in the country. The State Department of Agriculture and Columbia University are co-operating to be of real service in these matters.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Not a Monopoly and Not Run for Profit, but for the Convenience of Its 800 Members.

From The Evening Post.

The Associated Press is to be congratulated upon the attacks made on it. Only a few weeks ago it was libeled by The Masses, for which the editors are to answer in court; and to-day it is The Sun that has carried out its oft-rumored intention of asking for a prosecution under the Sherman Anti-Trust law. It has so long been the habit of irresponsible Congressmen to assail The Associated Press upon the ground that it is a news trust, or monopoly, that, as a member of the Associated Press, The Evening Post heartily welcomes a review of its activities by the law officers of the Government. We do not know of a single member of this association who would wittingly violate the law of the land, or who would not be glad to be informed of anything done in contravention of the statutes. If by these attacks the integrity of its news service and its faithful observance of the law can be established in the minds of certain agitators and libelers, a great gain will have resulted, if only by reassuring the public as to a chief source of its news supply.

So far as The Sun's complaint is concerned, it does not seem to us worth the paper upon which it is written. Many of the facts and letters it prints to-day relate to a totally different organization—an Illinois corporation which has not been in existence since 1900. The present Associated Press, let it be said once more, is a membership corporation, comprised of certain papers banded together for mutual coöperation. It is not a profit-making concern, for it seeks and makes no profits; it has no stock upon which to pay dividends, and does not pay interest on the bonds, which are held by certain participating newspapers. It does not even sell news, but delivers its news at cost to members and subscribers. No one can buy its news over the counter; The Sun tried it, and was informed that it must seek membership. That it has not applied for such membership is a point of obvious interest in connection with its present application to the Attorney General. The Associated Press's officials are responsible to the membership of more than 800 newspapers; from them is drawn the news of the country. If, as The Masses charged, The Associated Press is merely a sewer into which are poured lies, falsifications, and misrepresentations of conditions among the working people of this country, then the indictment lies against the 800 associated newspapers. As a matter of fact, it is to the interest of every one of them to keep the service accurate and fair.

As for The Sun's complaint that The Associated Press is a m[illegible]ly, the simple answer is that it h[illegible]een and effective competition by T[illegible] United Press, to which many Associated Press newspapers subscribe in addition to carrying The Associated Press news. There are other services to which a newspaper owner may turn for news, such as The Sun, or Laffan, and the Hearst services. But The Sun also complains that it and others are unjustly excluded from The Associated Press. If they are, it is plainly not a complete monopoly; but should all those not members be taken in, as The Sun seems to desire, it could then be attacked as the perfect monopoly which The Sun is so anxious to prevent. As a matter of fact, news is free, and can be obtained by any one or any group of newspapers with the means to seek it. Who could monopolize the sending of news from London or Paris to New York? The thing is unthinkable so long as cable companies are public service corporations, compelled to accept any decent telegrams offered to them.

Should the courts hold that a membership corporation must admit to its ranks any one seeking entrance there would be an end to all clubs, coöperative and mutual benefit associations. It may be that the right of local veto which keeps some applicants out of The Associated Press has been too rigidly adhered to; but in such case there is possible an appeal to the whole membership at its annual meeting in April, and this appeal has frequently been resorted to. It is hard to see how the Sherman Anti-Trust law applies in these premises. Not only can all who so desire organize competition against The Associated Press, but if they do so they can get telegraph facilities from the companies at the same rates as The Associated Press, into the same towns and cities, through the same territory. Moreover, anybody can withdraw from the association on six months' notice, and the public may be sure that there would be withdrawals in number if one-quarter of the allegations against The Associated Press were true. Again, any newspaper which offends against accuracy and truth by imposing falsehoods upon The Associated Press can be expelled from the association, or suspended; the right to fine for breach of confidence in the releasing of news is kept in use. In fact, The Associated Press can live only as it is efficient and honest in its service to its members.

If there is anything of a monopoly in The Associated Press it would seem as if it could only be met by a ruling of the Supreme Court or a new law declaring that press associations whose traffic is across interstate boundaries must be regarded as common carriers. This, we believe, would remedy nothing, for it would render chaotic the newspaper business, lay every established newspaper open to blackmailing competition, and would in no wise improve the news service, but probably injure it.

LICENSE THEY MEAN

When Upholders of White Slave Films Cry Liberty.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter of Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain, published in your issue of this date, is of interest to this society and its officers, because it was on our complaint to Police Commissioner Waldo and Deputy Commissioner Newburger of Dec. 10, 1913, acknowledged Dec. 11, 1913, that the police campaign against the film in question was set in motion.

Mrs. Boissevain states two reasons as actuating those who have opposed this campaign; first, that the repressive method herein employed "means death to creative art, to imaginative endeavor, to harmony and clean living," and, second, that the repressive method is an attack on "that much-to-be cherished principle, the right to free speech and free thought, no matter through what medium it may be presented, whether through press, pulpit, drama or art."

The picture film she thus defends and helps to exploit is one dealing with and depicting views of criminals and criminal acts of the most vicious character. It shows the dive and the denizen of the dive and his criminal activity. It shows women of the underworld voluntarily sharing their earnings with the male beasts of the underworld. Where is the creative art, the imaginative endeavor or the incentive to harmony and clean living? The whole thing is vicious. It is not educational except to instruct in the ways of vice and crime. In schools each subject is taught to pupils from textbooks on that subject. Why attempt to teach virtue through the medium of pictures of vice?

This incident shows the character of things that normal clean-minded people will always unite in suppressing whether it be book, picture or drama. Some are more and some less vicious, but fortunately and of design the law is elastic enough to cover every proper case.

In her enthusiasm Mrs. Boissevain confuses freedom with abuse of freedom. Her legal training should have prevented this error. There is no absolute freedom of the individual in civilized countries. Each one is to some extent restrained for the good of society in general. The restraining power is a function of government, called the police power, and whenever an individual abuses the freedom which he enjoys in common with all others he does so at his peril. This power is inherent in the people. This has been recognized since the dawn of civilization and time after time enunciated by our highest courts. In the case of J. R. Stone vs. the State of Mississippi, Chief Justice Waite of the United States Supreme Court says:

> No Legislature can bargain away the public health or the public morals. The people themselves cannot do it, much less their servants. The supervision of both of these species of Governmental power is continuing in its nature, and they are to be dealt with as the exigencies of the moment may require.
> Government is organized with a view to their preservation and cannot divest itself of the power to provide for them.

Why then prate about curbing the freedom of speech and thought as variously conveyed where the public health or the public morals are concerned?

Mrs. Boissevain and her friends can and do in many ways exert a great power for good, which makes it all the more disastrous and dangerous when they undertake to back and present and indorse to their followers something the only tendency of which is to degrade and contaminate with evil by exhibiting vice in its lowest form.

In the last analysis, the evil which these people seek to check is one which exists only because of lack of character. Comparatively speaking there is only a small amount of compulsion. Let them educate and strengthen weak wills and help to create noble characters by exhibiting virtue and its rewards, rather than vice and what a lazy, weak will might therein regard as a reward.

EXCLUSION OF IMMIGRANTS.

Correspondence Between Secretary and Ex-Secretary Removes Doubts.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR,
Office of the Secretary.
Washington, Jan. 29, 1914.

The Hon. Oscar S. Straus, No. 5 West Seventy-sixth Street, New York City.

My Dear Mr. Straus:

I am in receipt of your favor of the 21st inst., inclosing copy of an interview by yourself, printed in The New York Times.

Your criticism appears to me to grow out of a misunderstanding of what this department contemplates. It would not be practical to send our immigration officials to ports of departure, to make their inspections there. The hardships which the rejected alien must undergo would be just as great if rejected at the port of departure as by his rejection at our home ports. His home ties would be broken, his little possessions disposed of, and a large portion of his available means used in overland transportation before he reached the port of departure.

What I have in mind, and what I hope to be able to work out, is the development of means by which we can convey to the aliens at their own homes definite information as to all of the causes of exclusion under our laws, thereby acting as a preventive against the breaking of home ties and the disposal of their meagre possessions, when they are not eligible to admission under the laws of this country. We cannot hope to be completely successful in that undertaking, but if we are partially successful it will be well worth the attempt. Sincerely yours,

W. B. WILSON,
Secretary.

Mr. Straus to Mr. Wilson.

Feb. 4, 1914.

Dear Mr. Secretary:

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 29th ult., in regard to the criticism I made in an interview given to The New York Times of Jan. 20, respecting the reports that appeared in the press that you recommended the transfer of the machinery for the admission or exclusion of immigrants to foreign countries.

I am pleased to know that your views were not correctly stated, and that you would not regard it practical to send our immigration officials to ports of departure to make their inspection there. I entirely agree with you, aside from other reasons, that it would be a great hardship even if rejections were made at the port of departure; for, as you correctly state, in that event home ties would be broken, the little possessions of the emigrant would be disposed of, and a large portion of his available means used in overland transportation before such intending emigrant reached the port of departure.

I am gratified to know that what you have in mind and purpose to work out is a development of means by which our Government can convey to aliens at their own homes definite information as to all causes of exclusion under our laws. This is precisely the plan I endeavored to outline in my interview above referred to, and from my own experience with the problem of immigration I am convinced that such a plan would not only be most wise, but would go a long way in carrying out the humane purposes you refer to, which attend the tragedy of deportation. I am sure that every one who is familiar with your important administration affecting immigration will not only agree with you, but will be grateful for your humane purposes in eliminating as far as possible the hardships attending the deportation of immigrants, by disseminating the information you refer to, and thereby counteracting the misinformation on the part of transportation companies and others.

Very truly yours,
OSCAR S. STRAUS.

The Hon. W. B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor, Washington, D. C.

ART NOTES.

N. M. Matthew Paintings to be Exhibited—Tribute to the Altman Collection.

The N. M. Matthew collection of paintings will be put on exhibition at the galleries of the American Association on Feb. 12 and sold on the 17th and 18th. Mr. Matthew is a resident of Baltimore and is selling his collection on account of giving up his home there. Both modern and ancient masters are represented in the catalogue list. Among the latter are a number of the Dutch school. David Teniers is there with a little panel of monkeys intended as a satire on the English navy, the animals appearing in naval uniform in a public house. A small "Madonna and Child" is given to Jakob Jordaens and is painted on a copper panel, the figures enwreathed with flowers, and another Jordaens shows "The Stoic and the Epicure Dividing the World," with the stoic painted apparently from the same model as one of those used for "The Philosophers" in the Metropolitan Museum. Other Flemish pictures are an "Interior of Antwerp Cathedral," by Pieter Neffs the younger; a "Landscape with Figures," by Paul Bril; an "Artist's Studio," by Horemans; a hunting scene, by Karel van Falens; a bucolic scene, by P. Balthasar Ommeganck, and a pack of dogs attacking a stag, by Frans Snyders, a picture that once belonged to Joseph Bonaparte and was presented to Jerome Bonaparte as a wedding gift.

The modern group contains examples of the English, American, French, Dutch, German, Norwegian, and Austrian schools.

A fine exhibition of tapestries and tapestry furniture opens at the American Art Galleries at the same time with the Matthew exhibition, containing important Aubusson, Brussels, and Renaissance specimens.

An extremely interesting article by Dr. Bode on the Altman collection recently has appeared in The Vossische Zeitung. The celebrated expert, after paying tribute to the public spirit found in the United States, declares that Mr. Altman's bequest to the Metropolitan Museum nevertheless stands "as unparalleled in the new as in the old world," and adds that "only the bequests which the Louvre has received during the last few years from Thomy Thierry, Chauchard, and Camondo, and, in a still higher degree, the legacy of the collection Carrand to the Bargello, can be likened to Altman's unselfish endowment." Dr. Bode briefly describes the character of the collection and notes the estimated value of from ten to fifteen million dollars as by no means too high, according to the prices now ruling in America for works of art. He then sketches for his countrymen the method pursued in assembling the Altman collection, a method which he finds highly characteristic of America.

"As a self-made man," he says, "and wholly absorbed by his large business, Altman was not able to make a special study or devote himself to the quest of works of art. When on his way to Carlsbad four years ago he made his first and only visit to Berlin and to the Kaiser Friedrich Museum. He had just come from Paris, he told me, where he had taken special pleasure in visiting the Louvre, as he had previously seen the Louvre but once and that in the company of a Cook's party. Altman, like the majority of American collectors, was thus compelled to seek the advice of experts." The manner in which he did this and the results obtained Dr. Bode again finds thoroughly characteristic of the American collectors of to-day. He selected dealers of judgment and experience to be both experts and vendors to him. He bought his first fine examples of Chinese porcelains from Duveen Brothers, and subsequently the rest of his porcelains and also the larger number of his paintings and sculptures. He did not, however, confine himself to one firm alone, but purchased a number of his primitives through others, notably the firm of Kleinberger, while the "Lady Rich" came from Gimpel & Wildenstein. Although Dr. Bode is himself an expert and not a dealer, he takes no exceptions in his article to this "American" method, but finds it good, and the Altman collection quite as great as it has been considered by American critics.

Of the Rembrandts he says:

"So many excellent paintings by this master have never before, to my knowledge, been comprised in a private collection. The Rudolf Kann Gallery had only eleven Rembrandt portraits, among them four quite small studies. The Altman Rembrandts are much larger, and count among the master's chief works. Altman, indeed, had the pick of the Rudolf Kann, Maurice Kann, and Lord Ashburton collections, which came into the market almost simultaneously."

Of the collection of Chinese porcelains, comprising about 500 pieces, Dr. Bode speaks with special admiration, declaring it by far the choicest of its kind. In the Altman house, he adds, the space available for it was much too restricted, and not until it is shown at the Metropolitan Museum of Art will it be possible fully to appreciate its importance. The article goes quite particularly into the value and character of the different items of the collection without one derogatory or doubtful word, as high a tribute, probably, as ever has been paid to an American collection by a foreign expert writing freely for his own countrymen.

In the closing paragraph he says:

"Thanks to this magnificent bequest, as well as the collection of J. Pierpont Morgan, which will be exhibited at the same time, the Metropolitan Museum (which disposes of an acquisition fund in excess of $500,000 per annum) will shortly take rank with important European museums."

⁂

The loan exhibition of the J. Pierpont Morgan collection is to open with a reception on the evening of Tuesday, Feb. 17.

At the Anderson Art Galleries is an exhibition of Dresden and Vienna porcelains, rugs, furniture, &c., from the Taylor Hatfield collection. A large number of entertaining portraits of Washington, Franklin, and other early heroes of our national history will prove interesting to collectors of Americana. Not only embroidered portraits, representing thousands of hours of patiently set stitches, are shown, but portraits done in marquetry with quite astonishing skill, and a more agreeable effect with less expense of labor is gained by this method than by the cautious needlework. Upstairs in these galleries are some excellent prints, an early impression of Dürer's "Erasmus" from the Huth collection, several Meryon first states, and a few Whistler lithographs, among them a "Lady Haden," one of six proofs printed by Way, very delicate and beautiful. The sale of the prints takes place on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, Feb. 10 and 11. The Hatfield collection will be sold Feb. 9, 10, and 11 during the afternoon.

ON THE ISLAND.

Lost to our sight for a month or a year,
  Lost to our sight for a fortnight or day;
Misery's host is environed up here,
  Here in the confines of prison and Bay.

Lost to our sight, to our hearts and our minds—
  What care the free for the grind of the mill?
Long is the stream of the grist as it winds
  Downward and on, at the Law's sordid will!

Lost to our sight, to our conscience, our soul;
  Steadily, daily, they pass to and fro;
Known all too well is the ultimate goal—
  Nameless at last where the trench limits show!

Lost to our sight on the Island so near;
  Lost to the heart, yet so close to the hand;
This is our mercy, our justice so dear!
  This the "uplift" of our civilized land!

COMMERCE CHAMBER AGAINST TRUST BILL

Proposed Interstate Commission Would Hurt Business, Members Assert.

WANT PORT IMPROVEMENTS

Mayor Asked to Consider the Appointment of a Commission to Study Needs of Shippers.

Members of the Chamber of Commerce at the February meeting yesterday spent some time in discussing anti-trust bills introduced, or to be introduced in Congress. President Wilson's suggestion in his message to Congress on trust matters that an interstate trade commission be appointed, an idea that has been incorporated in a Senate bill, was dealt with at length in debate. The contentions of those members who were opposed to the commission were finally crystallized in a resolution presented by Howard C. Smith of Hathaway, Smith, Folds & Co., commercial paper brokers. The Smith resolution set forth that the bill contained provisions which were "unsound in principle, in violation of the rights of privacy in the transaction of business, and which, if enacted, would serve to check the present incipient improvement in business."

The Chamber was asked to study the proposed legislation, and prepare to take action in regard to it. The resolution was passed, and it was expected that a special meeting of the Executive Committee would be held within a few days to decide whether representatives should be sent to Washington to attend hearings on the Senate bill.

The Committee on Harbors and Shipping presented a report of a study of conditions in New York Harbor, and urged that Mayor Mitchel and the Board of Estimate be asked to consider the appointment of a commission, consisting of engineers and other authorities, to prepare plans for the development of the port. Chairman Outerbridge of the committee said:

> This committee has from time, over a period of some years, reported to the Chamber in reference to the expensive and obsolete methods prevailing for the reception and delivery of freight to and from the railroads serving New York, and especially to the prevalence of these conditions along the North River front of Manhattan. A sub-committee of the last Board of Estimate also devoted much time and consideration to this question, and, through two advisory committees of engineers brought forward for discussion two plans for freight terminal development, one relating exclusively to the New York Central Railroad and the other relating to railroad freight terminals on the North River in general.
> As yet no comprehensive plan has been produced which has met with the favorable indorsement of both the railroads and the mercantile community as represented and expressed through their several organizations. It is, however, recognized and admitted by the railroads, by the mercantile community, and by the city authorities that the terminal problem is one of vast importance to all those concerned in the maintenance and extension of the city's trade and commerce.
>
> Practically the entire western section of Manhattan Island below Fifty-ninth Street is obviously best adapted to business uses. Its development has largely stood still awaiting the provision of freight handling facilities, which the business natural to this region calls for. The accomplishment of an adequate, modern, economic plan for freight collections and deliveries to and from all railroads in this part of Manhattan would bring into demand and use real estate now dormant and create new values which would be most helpful to the entire real estate situation in the city, on which its credit and borrowing capacity rest.
>
> The committee feels that the city government, having the resources and the power to command services of the technical nature needed, and to command the interest, information and co-operation which the railroads could furnish, is best qualified to initiate and provide for the scientific analysis and study that the problem requires and to formulate the plan.

The report was accepted by a vote of the assembled members of the Chamber.

SPEAKS FOR LONDON FAIR.

Earl of Kintore Asks Chamber of Commerce to Aid Peace Exposition.

The Earl of Kintore spoke at the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday in behalf of the Anglo-American Exposition which will open in London next May. The Earl said that British manufacturers would be well represented at the Panama Exposition, and he said that this city should send some of its prominent men and industrial products to the London fair.

"May I state in a single sentence," said he, "the object of the Anglo-American Exposition? It has for its object the bringing of the people of the two countries still more closely together, so that they may form new and permanent ties and learn how they may best help each other in the promotion of international commerce, that potent guarantee of permanent peace.

"Often as I have visited your shores, never have I been here on an errand so congenial, or one in which I take so much pride. Peace and good-will everywhere, and the success of this celebration of one hundred years of unbroken peace between our beloved countries is something very near and dear to my heart. In all these hundred years no differences have occurred that have not been amicably adjusted, and I cannot believe that hereafter any can arise fraught with greater difficulties than those of the last century, and none which independent, impartial arbitration, loyally accepted on either side, cannot peaceably and honorably adjust."

The Earl stated that it had been decided by the managers of the Anglo-American Exposition to hand over the first $200,000 of profits to American and British committees, to be devoted to scholarships and prizes in commercial and industrial education.

In the course of his address the Earl read a cable message from the Duke of Teck, brother of Queen Mary, which expressed a desire that the peace celebration should be an enduring guarantee of the blessings of peace to both nations.

STEAD'S SPIRIT "SPEAKS."

Medium Gets a "Message" from the Titanic Victim.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If you think the inclosed message purporting to come from Mr. Stead, received this evening by a lady in the trance state, another lady and myself being present at the time, would interest your readers, you are at liberty to print it.

The original was taken down by me as spoken, and is available for your inspection should you desire to see it. I also have records of messages from one or two of the victims of the Titanic disaster, given shortly after the catastrophe occurred.

It is of further interest to note that on the evening of Jan. 27 this same lady, at that time in her normal conscious state, said: "We are going to hear of a very dreadful sea disaster; not as great as the Titantic, but one which will shock the world. It is a long way from here." It will be recalled that the steamship Monroe of the Old Dominion Line went to the bottom after a collision off Virginia, and quite a number of the passengers and crew were drowned.

HILLS COLE.
New York, Feb. 4, 1914.

The message follows:

> It was a beautiful tribute, one infinitely touching and appreciated by all, the strewing of the waters under which sank so many in that great disaster. Beautiful as was the conception and the execution of that conception, still more beautiful, more soul-satisfying, would be a recognition that we who went down into the icy depths are capable, if given an opportunity, an invitation, to live again, in a higher, spiritual sense, with our friends and loved ones whom we left. But, alas! the clouds of unbelief, of incredulity, are so dense, and the pity of it that living men make that cloud which bars the intercommunication. They long for the touch of the vanished hand, and yet they will not accept even the possibility of the power and the possibility, nay, the probability, nay, the certainty of receiving that touch. They put their hands across their eyes and say, "No, no. No, no. I want you, but don't come back." That is the attitude of humanity, not alone to us to whom the beautiful tribute was paid, but to the unnumbered millions who have passed beyond the veil. And the pity, the pity of it. STEAD.

MITCHEL DANCES ONE-STEP AT BALL

Mayor and Wife Give Best Exhibition of Modern Dance at Charity Benefit.

THRONG LOUDLY APPLAUDS

Grand March Led by Mrs. Algernon S. Sullivan, President for Forty Years—Four Ballrooms Packed.

Although the oldest social function in this country, the annual charity ball, which was given last night at the Waldorf-Astoria in aid of the New York Nursery and Child's Hospital, still occupies the position of being one of the important events of the Winter season. Its popularity has increased rather than diminished during its half-century march through the changing modes and customs of New York society.

There was a large and brilliant representative assembly at the ball last night, with many distinguished guests, and the present craze for dancing taxed the four ballrooms to their capacity.

The Mayor and Mrs. John Purroy Mitchel occupied the centre box in the first tier, which was decorated with the Mayor's flag and the Stars and Stripes. They joined in the grand march, and were among the first on the floor when the dancing began. They were voted the best dancers of the one-step on the floor and were loudly applauded.

As the ball has always been managed by a committee of women representing the oldest and most conservative social side of New York, it was natural that an attempt in the beginning should have been made to check such dances as the turkey trot. At least that was the case two seasons ago, when the then sensational turkey trot was tabooed. But this season, with everybody dancing the tango and one-step, two of the smaller ballrooms were set aside for the exclusive enjoyment of the tango and Brasilienne Maxixe, and other new-fangled steps. The innovation waltze was started in the Myrtle Room, which immediately became the centre of interest, as many had never seen it.

Proceeds May Reach $20,000.

The spirit of '57 would hardly have recognized the ball last night as compared to the first one given in the Academy of Music in 1857, with Mrs. Cornelius Du Bois as President, in aid of the New York Nursery and Child's Hospital. In those days, if the ball made $2,000 for its pet philanthropy, the management congratulated themselves. There was even a time when New York was thought to be getting too large for a ball. This year's proceeds will likely run up to $20,000.

When society moved uptown the annual balls were held at the Metropolitan Opera House. For the last twelve years they have been given at the Waldorf. Mrs. Algernon Sidney Sullivan has occupied the office of Presidency for the last forty years, and last night he led the grand march with grace and distinction, appearing in a trailing gown of black thread lace over white satin and ornaments of amethysts and diamonds. She carried purple orchids.

As the grand march began the word "charity" blazed out in electric lights in the filagree of green leaves in which they were set at the stage end of the ballroom.

The Board of Directors of the Nursery and Child's Hospital, as usual, reviewed the procession from a dais at the south end of the grand ballroom. The members of the Ball Committee were Mrs. Edward J. Berwind, Mrs. Henry Mills Day, Mrs. Thomas Hicks, Mrs. Robert Nicol, Mrs. George H. Benjamin, Mrs. Charles F. Roe, Mrs. Guy Van Amringe, Mrs. Frank S. Witherbee, Mrs. Henry Clay Adams, and Miss Ruth Lawrence.

In the order of march came the Floor Committee first, of which George H. Sullivan is Chairman, then the Board of Directors of the Nursery and Child's Hospital, the Ball Committee, afterward the guests of the ball, who were escorted by Jacob W. Miller, President of the hospital. The presence of the officers from the Navy Yard and Governors Island, who wore full dress uniforms, added to the color and animation of the spectacle.

The Floor Committee, as soon as the last rank of the officers had passed the dais, formed a mass in the middle of the ballroom, breaking ranks at the word of command from the Chairman, who signalled simultaneously for the opening dance music to begin.

Dancing then continued until early morning, and supper also ran continuously until early morning.

Guests from Governors Island.

The guests from Governors Island included Major Gen. Thomas H. Barry and Mrs. Barry, Col. and Mrs. William [illegible] Hahn, Col. and Mrs. George F. Downey, Col. and Mrs. L. S. Roudiez, Lieut. Col. WEDDING CAKE 5 FEET HIGH.

Miss Dorothy B. Parker the Bride of George W. C. McCarter.

The wedding of George W. Childs McCarter, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. McCarter of Newark, N. J., and Miss Dorothy B. Parker, a daughter of Mrs. Gustaf Stromberg by her first husband, was celebrated at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Church of Zion and St. Timothy in West Fifty-seventh Street, which was decorated with garlands of smilax and white lilies on the altar. The Rev. Thomas Lubec officiated.

The bride walked down the nave wtih her stepfather, Gustaf Stromberg, and was met at the chancel by her uncle, Nelson Parker, who gave her in marriage. She wore a white panne velvet wedding gown with a short, pointed train and a long, narrow Court train of velvet from the shoulders. She carried lilies of the valley and white orchids. She also wore a diamond and ruby brooch, the gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Sallie M. Parker was her sister's maid of honor. She wore an ankle-length frock of pale blue taffeta with panniers, with a pink girdle and sash. She wore pale blue satin slippers and hose to match the frock, and a large brown tulle hat wreathed with a frill of blue ribbon and pink wild roses, with ribbon ends falling to the shoulders.

The bridesmaids were another sister of the bride, Miss Adelaide N. Parker; Miss Eleanor McCarter, a sister of the bridegroom, and the Misses Cordelia Hepburn, Mary Woodin, Laura Watts, and Marie Poudensen. Mr. McCarter had John Farr, Jr., as his best man, and the ushers were Donald McGregor, Howard Gilmore, Stuart Young, Joseph Van Der Voort, Norman Armour, Marshall Bruce, Clifford L. Voorhes, and Auguste Studer, Jr.

The wedding reception for 800 guests was held in the St. Regis ballroom, where the bride and bridegroom stood in a bower of palms and white flowers to receive congratulations. There was a huge wedding cage, a miniature replica of an antique Temple of Love lighted with tiny electric lights. It was more than five feet high and wewighed more than 300 pounds.

Mrs. Stromberg, in a blue brocaded chiffon velvet topped by a blue hat, and Mrs. Robert H. McCarter, in gray, with touches of blue and black in her hat, were in the receiving party. On their return from their bridal trip Mr. and Mrs. McCarter will live in Newark.

Among the guests were Mrs. Thomas Parker, Mrs. Nelson Parker, Mrs. L. M. Watts, Lulu Rutgers, Edwin and Frederic Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parker, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. McCarter, Mrs. C. N. Baylis, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hastings, Mr. and Mrs Thomas Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling T. Foote, Mr. and Mrs. John Farr, Miss Edith Farr, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Hardenbergh, W. P. Hardenbergh, Jr., Mrs. Charles B. Foote, Miss Foote, Mr. and Mrs. Francke H. Bosworth, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCarter.

MISS VANDER HOOGE WEDS.

Married to Paul G. Thebaud, Jr., in St. Agnes's Church Rectory.

The marriage of Paul Gibert Thébaud, Jr., of this city and Miss Vander Hooge, daughter of A. S. Vander Hooge of Boston, was held at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the rectory of St. Agnes's Church in East Forty-third Street. Mgr. Brann officiated. The rectory was decorated with palms and white flowers, and a temporary altar with white lilies was arranged for the ceremony.

The bride was unattended. She wore a white satin frock with a lace overdress and short train, and a point lace veil held with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and wore a diamond pendant, a gift from the bridegroom. She walked with her father to the altar. Thébaud's brother, Reynal de S. Thébaud, was the best man.

None but relatives were present at the ceremony, and there was no reception, a breakfast for the bridal party and the relatives being given at the residence of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Paul Gilbert Thébaud, at 57 East Fifty-eighth Street. After a trip South Mr. and Mrs. Thébaud will return and spend the Winter with his mother.

The guests at the wedding included the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Vander Hooge, and her aunt, Miss Vander Hooge, of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel C. Reynal, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Sugny Reynal, Mrs. Pillot, Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Thébaud, Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Thébaud, and Paul L. Thébaud, E. P. Thébaud, Jr., Louis B. Thébaud, and Jules M. de R. Thébaud.

CANOPY OF LILIES FOR HER WEDDING

Miss Molly Tackaberry Married to Armour Ferguson at Home of Imre Josika-Herczeg.

UNCLE GIVES BRIDE AWAY

Wedding Attendants and Guests—Bridegroom Is Nephew of the Late Philip Armour of Chicago.

The wedding of Miss Molly Tackaberry and Armour Ferguson, son of Mrs. J. Armour Ferguson of this city, was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Imre Josika-Herczeg, 28 West Tenth Street. The Rev. Father Scott officiated.

The ceremony was performed in the large drawing room on the second floor, under a huge canopy of Ascension lilies. Mr. Josika-Herczeg gave his niece in marriage.

The bride wore a robe of white satin with a court train, with flounces of white tulle, and a veil of tulle, caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids.

She was attended by the Misses Helen Rosalie Smith and May Ferguson as bridesmaids, who wore frocks of blue taffeta and cream lace, with girdles of mauve taffeta. They carried bouquets of purple sweet peas.

George W. Cobb acted as best man, and the ushers were Sidney Dillon Ripley, Edmund Scheider, James V. Converse, Dr. Rudolph Moffatt, and John M. King of Pittsburgh.

A reception and buffet collation followed the ceremony, after which there was dancing. The house was decorated throughout with American Beauty roses, lilacs, and Ascension lilies.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were bar pins of gray enamel studded with brilliants and pearls, and Mr. Ferguson gave his best man and ushers white and gold cuff links. Field Marshal Baron Hazai, Secretary of War and a member of the royal Hungarian Cabinet, and Baroness Hazai cabled their felicitations to the couple. Mr. Ferguson is a nephew of the late Philip Armour of Chicago, where he and his bride will reside after an extended wedding trip. They are leaving to-day for Miami, Fla.

Among those who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Walston Hill Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Griswold Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Erskine Ely, Mr. and Mrs. B. Ogden Chisolm, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis G. Morris, Mrs. James Muhlenberg-Bailey, Dr. and Mrs. John J. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Cambridge Livingston, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Untermyer, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Chapin, Mrs. Herman O. Armour, Mrs. Sanford Bissell, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. French, Mrs. William C. Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Benjamin, Mrs. W. A. Perry, Mrs. Stilson Hutchins, Mr. and Mrs. S. Stanwood Menken, Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Benedict, Mrs. W. H. Field, and Mrs. William Fearing.

Also the Misses Mary Millett, Marguerite French, Mary Field, Frances Judson, Mary Brooks, Blanche Sheehan, Marietta and Elizabeth Chapin, Dorothy Darlington, Elizabeth Thompson, and the Marquis de Spinola, S. Montgomery Roosevelt, Robert Keeling, William Francklyn Paris, and Capt. John Van Beuren-Mitchell.

REV. M. L. ROBINSON WEDS.

Married to Miss Edna W. Stitt in Grace Methodist Episcopal Church.

The marriage of Miss Edna Walmsley Stitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William James Stitt, to the Rev. Millard Lyman Robinson took place at 8:30 o'clock last evening in the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, West 104th Street. The Rev. Dr. C. F. Reisner, pastor of the church, officiated and the ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents, 156 West Ninety-third Street.

The bride's gown was of white satin trimmed with Duchess lace. Her veil was of tulle and was surmounted with a cap of lace. She carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley, and her only ornament was a diamond pendant, the gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Marguerite Stitt, who was her sister's maid of honor, wore a gown of yellow satin with trimmings of old lace and draped with lavender chiffon topped with a gold lace cap. The bridesmaids were the Misses Helen Newbold, Cecille Kennedy, Eloise Wooley, and Sara Rome.

Mr. Robinson had as best man his brother, Lucius W. Robinson. The ushers were the Rev Dr. Lynn Harold Hough, the Rev. Arlo A. Brown, Philip L. Watkins, George W. Naylor, Charles H. Hardie, and Walter H. Merritt.

The bride is a graduate of Barnard College. Mr. Robinson has recently been elected Executive Secretary of the New York City Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a graduate of the Boston University, class of '05. At one time he acted as assistant to Bishop Henderson in the Hanson Place Church, Brooklyn, and was until last year the pastor of the Hedding Church in this city.

Miss Irving Weds H. J. Douglas, Jr.

The wedding of Miss Ethel Florence Irving, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Edgar Irving of this city, to Harry Jerome Douglas, Jr., took place at 8 o'clock last night at the Hotel Marseilles, Broadway and 103d Street. The Rev. Dr. Oscar M. Voorhees, a cousin of the bride, performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception. The bride wore a trailing gown of white charmeuse trimmed with duchesse lace, and her tulle veil was held in place with a cap of the lace. Miss Emma Zollinger was the bride's maid of honor and only attendant. George Douglas was his brother's best man. After a short honeymoon in the South Mr. Douglas and his bride will live in the Bronx.

ROSE—CARLTON.

Miss Marion Montgomery Carlton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. O. Carlton of 1,178 Warburton Avenue, was married last night at the home of her parents to G. Stanton Rose of Yonkers. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Peter H. Goldsmith, pastor of the First Unitarian Church. The maid of honor was Miss Madeline Carlton, a sister of the bride, and the best man was Raymond C. Rose, a brother of the bridegroom. Guy Carlton, a brother of the bride, and Dayton and Philip Rose, brothers of the bridegroom, were the ushers.

CARMALT—CHURCHILL.

The marriage of Woolsey Carmalt and Miss Marguerite Lawrence Churchill took place yesterday in the Chapel of Calvary Church, the Rev. Theodore Sedgwick officiating. Miss Churchill, in traveling dress, was unattended, and Mr. Carmalt had no attendants. The immediate families and a few friends only were present, about twenty in all. After their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Carmalt will live at 18 West Ninth Street.

LOWENFELD—FEIFER.

Mr. and Mrs. Pincus Lowenfeld of 106 East Sixty-fourth Street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anna Lowenfeld, to Alexander Feifer of 100 East Eighty-first Street. They will be at home on Sunday, Feb. 15, from 3 to 6 o'clock.

HIRSCH—SILBERMAN.

Mrs. Leon M. Hirsch of 15 East Ninety-fourth Street announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Gladys Hirsch, to William W. Silberman. A reception is to be held on Sunday, from 3 to 6 o'clock at the Hirsch home.

The advertising rate of THE NEW YORK TIMES, 40 cents per agate line, with circulation Sunday and daily exceeding 200,000, makes the cost less than one cent a line for each 5,000 circulation—the cheapest, as it is the best, newspaper advertising in the world.—Adv.

CARL FLESCH'S RECITAL.

A Large Audience Hears His Excellent Playing in Carnegie Hall.

Carl Flesch, a recent, but not the most recent, accession to the number of visiting violinists from abroad—that title has already been taken from him—gave his first recital yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall. He aroused interest a fortnight ago, when he made his first American appearance as soloist with the Philharmonic Society, and excellent qualities were discovered in his playing. He was successful in deepening and strengthening this impression by his playing yesterday afternoon, which was clearly that of an accomplished and dignified artist concerned with the nobler aspects of his art, and achieving admirable results.

He showed again a tone of virile power, though not always of the greatest refinement and sympathetic quality, and a vigorous and incisive manner of bowing. He is expert in the technique of the violin and masters its difficulties with ease and without attempt at personal display or apparent desire to make technical proficiency a matter of personal display. He relegates this to its proper place as a means to an end.

There was to be observed, as before, a tendency to an excess of the "glissando" effect, and sometimes so much of rubato as to disturb the rhythmic outline, but they were not always so disturbing as they were in his performance of Beethoven's concerto. They were out of place in Nardini's sonata in D major, but his playing of this work had otherwise breadth and freedom. He reached still nearer a conception of the time style of Bach's violin music in the Sarabande, with its double, and the bourrée from one of the unaccompanied suites, a performance of unusual excellence.

In addition Mr. Flesch's programme contained the arrangement for violin of Schumann's pianoforte pieces called Gartenmelodie and Am Springbrunnen, Dvorak's "Romantische Stücke," Wilhelmj's transcription of Schubert's song "Ave Maria," Kreisler's arrangement of a "Präludium and Allegro" by Pugnani, and Paganini's D major concerto. In the last he played a cadenza by himself. There was a large audience, who evidently found Mr. Flesch's playing of unusual interest.

SOCIAL NOTES.

The employes of the Lincoln Safe Deposit Company have purchased half of the seats at the Grand Opera House for Chauncey Olcott's performance of "Shameen Dhu" next Wednesday night.

PHILBIN OVERRULES JURY.

Justice Holds Raines Law Sandwich to be an Evasion.

Supreme Court Justice Philbin overruled the verdict of a jury yesterday on the ground that it was contrary to the facts. The issues involved the value of a sandwich which State Excise Commissioner Farley said was used in the hotel of Albert Buttner at 1,321 Westchester Avenue, the Bronx, as an excuse for serving drinks in violation of the excise law and not for the purpose of being eaten. Commissioner Farley's suit against Buttner's bondsmen was decided against him.

It was a very small and a very old sandwich, Commissioner Farley's Deputies said. They also testified that they visited the hotel on several Sundays and got to know the sandwich well.

Mr. Buttner asked for a jury trial When it found in his favor he thought his troubles were over, but the decision of Justice Philbin destroyed this happy thought. In his decision the Justice said that the bond was given to insure the observance of the law, and that it was clear the law had been violated. He said that the testimony of the plaintiff's witnesses was definite and positive that liquor was served on Sunday without food, and that the liquor was paid for. Then he added:

"The defendant and his witnesses did not deny that no food was eaten nor paid for, and did not claim that any charge was made for the sandwich. To assume that the defendant and his witnesses, with their experience, sincerely believed that said persons visited said hotel in good faith to obtain a meal and not solely for the purpose of liquor would be tantamount to charging them with lack of ordinary intelligense. The verdict will be set aside and a new trial ordered."

$320 FOR GEO. MOORE MS.

Omitted Chapter of "Memoirs of My Dead Life" Sold Here.

C. Gerhardt & Co. paid $320 last evening in the sale of rare books, by Charles F. Heartman of 36 Lexington Avenue, for an original unpublished manuscript of George Moore, being the omitted chapter from his "Memoirs of My Dead Life." It is written on forty-eight pages of an octavo book in cloth binding.

Lathrop C. Harper gave $135 for a manuscript "House of the Virgin Mary," of French late fifteenth century execution. It is written in neat Gothic letter, long lines, seventeen to a full page. It contains numerous large and small illuminated ornamental initials and seven finely painted and illuminated large miniatures.

For twenty-two items relating to Martin Luther $176 was realized. A set of the New York Historical Society's collections brought $51. Cadwalader D. Colden's "Memoir Prepared for the Celebration of the Completion of the New York Canals," quarto, New York, 1825, went for $14.

PLANS FOR FREE CONCERTS.

Orchestra Under Prof. Fleck to Play on Feb. 15 at Normal College.

An appropriation of $10,000 was made some time ago by the city for sixty free orchestral concerts and recitals to be held in all the boroughs under the auspices of the Board of Education.

The first of these concerts will be given on the afternoon of Feb. 15 in the auditorium of Normal College, at Park Avenue and Sixty-ninth Street. An orchestra of fifty musicians and two soloists of established reputation will participate in a programme to be given under Prof. Henry T. Fleck of Normal College, who is directing the entire series of free concerts for the Board of Education.

Thereafter some ten concerts and recitals will be given every week for a month and a half. This procedure, which was established last Winter, when these concerts were first begun, proved so popular that the Board of Education has agreed with Prof. Fleck that it should be maintained.

SULZER TO TAKE STAND.

As Graft Witness ex-Governor Will Tell About Dealings with Murphy.

Ex-Gov. William Sulzer will be a witness to-day in the John Doe graft investigation before Chief Magistrate McAdoo. He will continue his story from the point where he left it on Jan. 21. It is expected that he will tell about other meetings between himself and Charles F. Murphy, the leader of Tammany, and assert that his impeachment followed the announcement of his war on Murphy and James E. Gaffney, Murphy's warm friend.

Abraham Lincoln Hammerstein.

Abraham Lincoln Hammerstein, youngest son of Oscar Hammerstein, the operatic manager and theatre owner, and brother of William, Arthur, and Harry Hammerstein, died yesterday in his rooms at the Hotel Wallick, Broadway and Forty-third Street, where he had been ill for some time. Abraham Hammerstein had been married twice, his first wife being Ethel Britton, from whom he separated after a few weeks. Later he married a vaudeville performer known as "Marcel the Oriental Rose," who afterward sued William Hammerstein for $50,000, charging that he had alienated his brother's affections. Later she charged that her husband was a bigamist, but nothing came of her request for a warrant.

Mrs. Harriet Clark Molineux.

Mrs. Harriet Clark Molineux, wife of Gen. Edward L. Molineux and mother of Roland D. Molineux, author of the play, "The Man Inside," died yesterday at her home, 117 Fort Greene Place, Brooklyn, in her seventy-second year. Mrs. Molineux was born in Mansfield, Conn., in 1842, and married Gen. Molineux in July, 1861. She was for many years one of the Directors of the Brooklyn Home for Consumptives. Beside her husband and son Roland, she is survived by two other sons, Lester and Cecil.

"DON PASQUALE" SUNG.

Its First Performance at the Opera This Season with Madeleine.

Donizetti's delightful comic opera, "Don Pasquale," was included in a double bill last evening with Victor Herbert's "Madeleine" at the Metropolitan Opera House, and gave great pleasure to an audience of rather small size. Although the Metropolitan does not at the present time possess all the resources in the way of voices and vocal ability that are needed to give the little work in its true style and with all the brilliancy that belongs to it, there was much in last evening's performance that had the right ring and the right spirit. No one in the cast more fully commanded the polish and brilliancy, at all events in comic acting, if not in voice, than Mr. Scotti, who has been a member in past years of more brilliant casts, as Dottore Malatesta.

Miss Bori made Norina charming, graceful, piquante, full of vivacity, and waywardness. Although her beautiful voice is not schooled to this sort of music in absolute perfection, she sang it with much élan and dexterity. Mr. Pini-Corsi often has impersonated Don Pasquale in times past, and with the humor and genial understanding of the buffo spirit that he showed again last evening; but perhaps not with less voice. Mr. Pini-Corsi, indeed, for an active operatic singer, seems to have reduced the art of song pretty nearly to its lowest terms. The weakest feature of the cast was Mr. Cristalli, as Ernesto, whose voice and demeanor were equally unyielding.

Not the least of the delightful features of the performance was the buoyant and animated conducting of Mr. Toscanini, who carried the little opera through with inimitable spirit, and there was no lack of understanding between him and the singers in the gayest scenes.

"Madeleine," which preceded "Don Pasquale" on this bill, was performed by the same singers as those who were in the first production, chief among whom are Mme. Alda, Leonora Sparkes, Mr. Althouse, and Mr. de Segurola. Mr. Polacco again conducted.

THE "RING" CYCLE.

"Die Walkure" Given at the Second Performance at the Metropolitan.

Another very large audience heard the second performance in the special cycle of Wagner's trilogy, "Der Ring des Nibelungen," at the Metropolitan Opera House yesterday afternoon, when "Die Walküre" was given. The public interest in this representation of the trilogy is greater than has been manifested in any similar cycle for a long time.

The performance was in most respects a repetition of the previous performances that have been given singly in the course of the regular subscription series earlier in the season. The principal exception was that the part of Siegmund was taken by a new tenor, Rudolf Berger, who then made his first appearance in America.

Mr. Berger has the advantage of youth and a lithe and active figure, valuable assets in the representation of the young heroes of Wagner's dramas. His impersonation of the woeful Volsung had excellent features, especially in the first act, culminating in his drawing the sword from the tree. So far as he disclosed it yesterday, his voice was pleasing, but did not have in a high degree qualities that will endear him to lovers of Wagner's works, nor is his style such as Wagner's music properly demands.

The voice is somewhat lacking in warmth and sensuous quality, and hence in the potency of the highest emotional expression. Yet the voices of newcomers are not always displayed at their best when they are first heard in the Metropolitan Opera House, and Mr. Berger may be able to give his singing more charm when he is more familiar with the surroundings in which he sings. He had abundant power, and there was distinctness and intelligibility in much of his declamation.

There is no need now to speak of the excellence of Mme. Gadski's Brünnhilde and Mme. Fremstad's Sieglinde, which have been celebrated so often. Mr. Braun's Wotan was, as before, superb on the side of his singing. The playing of the orchestra was very good.

ANDRES S. DELMAU PLAYS.

Young Violinist from Argentina is Handicapped by His Training.

Andres S. Delmau, a young violinist from the Argentine Republic, made his first appearance in North America at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon. He made an interesting impression, but it was more through the possibilities he disclosed than by what he actually did. Mr. Delmau is handicapped by his training and the idea it has given him of what use he should make of his gifts. The programme he played yesterday belonged several generations back, in the days when crude musical taste demanded "fireworks" from the concert artist, and would stand for nothing else, and he will be under a great disadvantage in this country if he does not abandon the array of shallow stuff which he put forth and take to music of real significance.

He gave evidence that his talents will get him a hearing if he does this, for he showed a good many of the qualities that make for success in his field.

Efficiency Engineers a part of Equitable service

UNIQUE as a building, the Equitable is also unique for its service.

Not satisfied with obviating every possibility for waste in the construction and interior layouts of the Equitable Building, we have also installed a corps of efficiency engineers in order to provide against the possibility of any tenant over-reaching his requirements in the matter of space.

We will prosper on merit and not on mistakes.

Leases now being made from May 1, 1915. The building, however, is due to be completed 2 or 3 months ahead of that date.

FEARS BUCKET SHOPS UNDER PUJO BILL

W. C. Van Antwerp, Stock Exchange Governor, Thinks Proposed Law Would Aid Them.

POINTS TO OTHER EVILS

Forces Untermyer to Retract Assertion That Exchange Committee Spread a False Report.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Testifying before the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency to-day W. C. Van Antwerp, one of the Governors of the New York Stock Exchange, assailed the Pujo bill incorporating and regulating stock exchanges and excluding from the mails and interstate wires stock quotations on exchanges not complying with the law. Mr. Van Antwerp said the New York Stock Exchange handled its affairs more efficiently and on a higher moral plane in its present form than would be possible were the exchange incorporated and held to strict legal accountability for every disciplinary measure against its members.

"The bill now before this committee," said Mr. Van Antwerp, "would drive business from the well-established, carefully controlled exchanges to unregulated irresponsible channels, and bucket shops would multiply. I am not opposed to all legislation. The organization of new companies and their stock issues should be regulated entirely by the Government. This burden should not be thrown upon the exchanges as this bill contemplates. There is not an exchange in the country that could perform the duties imposed upon it by this measure."

Mr. Van Antwerp began his testimony by forcing Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the Pujo Committee, to retract his statement of yesterday that the Library Committee of the New York Stock Exchange had been responsible for a newspaper story to the effect that President Wilson opposed the Stock Exchange bill. J. G. Milburn of New York interrupted Mr. Van Antwerp long enough to protest against Mr. Untermyer's suggestion that the Exchange had prevented State legislation at Albany last Winter only by corrupt methods.

Untermyer Explains.

As to the reported attitude of the President, Mr. Untermyer said that some weeks ago, when he had come to Washington, he was surprised at newspaper reports that President Wilson opposed Stock Exchange legislation. He said he at once called up the White House and was informed that the report was incorrect, the President's attitude being merely that he did not wish to push the Pujo bill because it was not mentioned in the Democratic platform. As Mr. Van Antwerp had been in Washington just before that, Mr. Untermyer said he felt justified in ascribing the first newspaper story to the Library Committee. Mr. Untermyer refused to say with whom he had talked at the White House.

"If Congress may exclude from the mails newspapers containing perfectly truthful (although prohibited) reports of transactions on an Exchange," said Mr. Van Antwerp, taking up the bill in detail, "there is no reason that I can see why Congress cannot similarly exclude newspapers containing comments on the doings of the minority political party, or any other matter which the majority party in Congress might wish to withhold. Fancy how pleased Col. Roosevelt would be with that prohibition. It is a mistake to suppose that we of the Stock Exchange are here in opposition to anything that you may do to help us or to help the public with which we deal. We are not in opposition, we are here to assist in any such good work, and especially we want to put an end to all forms of manipulation on the Stock Exchange.

"We are not here to discuss whether Congress may do this thing, but whether Congress ought to do it. We are here to show that the harm resulting from this legislation will vastly outweigh the good; that no necessity exists for incorporation, and that incorporation in the form here proposed would destroy America's primary marketplace.

"The disciplinary power of the exchange over its members is its most vital function. We maintain a standard repeated again and again in our constitution i nthe words, 'just and equitable principles of trade.' It is a standard higher than that imposed by the law of the land, and one that only by reason of our unincorporated organization we are enabled to enforce. We are not bound by the ordinary rules of courts of law in this discipline, and if a member is found guilty and expelled or suspended the penalty becomes operative immediately. He cannot hold us up with a writ or an injunction, nor can he continue to do business with us once we have adjudged him guilty. And it is a remarkable fact, testifying to the wisdom, ability, and high character of our Governing Committee, that this action in expelling or suspending a member has always been sustained by the courts.

Would End Discipline.

"A judicial review would inevitably sap this disciplinary power of its vitality. Every case would be taken into court, and injunctions and stays of proceedings would stop the execution of the determination of the Governing Committee until the last court of review was through with the case. That would take two or three years, and in the meantime the member, even though we knew him to be a crook, would continue his activities on the Exchange.

"The Exchange applies the layman's view of what are just and equitable principles of trade, and is governed more by moral than by strictly legal considerations.

"The adoption by the New York Stock Exchange of the regulations specified in the Owen bill would result at once in the withdrawal from the list of substantially all the thirteen billion dollars of stocks and thirteen billion dollars of bonds now listed there. The number of the securities remaining on the list, or hereafter to be listed under these provisions, would be so small that the Stock Exchange would cease to be a market of importance. The motive for listing on the part of corporations would no longer exist. I give the following reason for making this statement:

"Subdivision A requires a statement, verified by the oath of an officer of a corporation applying to have its securities listed, setting forth separately and in detail the entire amount and value of the tangible and other assets and its contingent liabilities. There is scarcely any corporation that could comply with this requirement. Several years must elapse and many millions of dollars must be spent before the Interstate Commerce Commission can determine the tangible value of the railroad properties of this country. How can a railroad officer make oath to such values?

"Now, suppose that this bill becomes law and the Stock Exchange refuses to incorporate under its terms. What happens? The mails and the telegraph and telephone lines of the United States will still remain open to any and all written and printed communications with regard to the transactions upon Stock Exchanges in foreign countries, though not one of them conforms to the requirements of Senator Owen's bill. Undoubtedly, this would be extremely inconvenient, and it would certainly make capital for American enterprises cost a good deal more."

Bell Heads Queens Suffrage League.

Robert Price Bell, a prominent lawyer of Flushing and a Vice President of the New York State Men's League for Woman Suffrage, was elected President of the Queens County Men's League for Equal Suffrage yesterday. "Women are citizens the same as men," said Mr. Bell, "and making a distinction in the franchise is ridiculous."

HUGE DRY DOCK FOR NAVY.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Secretary Daniels went on record before the House Naval Affairs Committee to-day in favor of the construction at the navy yard, Norfolk, Va., of a $2,300,000 dry dock, large enough to accommodate the greatest dreadnoughts that may hereafter be built for the American Navy. The dock will have the same dimensions as the locks of the Panama Canal—1,000 feet long and 110 feet wide, with a depth of 40 feet over the sills.

The Secretary told the committee that the officers of the General Board of the navy and other high ranking experts of the service had decided that Hampton Roads would be the logical rendezvous for the fleet for any operations in the tropics, the Caribbean, or the Atlantic Ocean. On the Pacific Coast a similar dock was to be built at Hunter's Point, near San Francisco and the Mare Island Navy Yard, which would be utilized by the Government on a contract basis.

At the tag end of his testimony Secretary Daniels divulged a project to obtain further naval economies by doing away with many naval prison guards and other prison expenditures. He has also under consideration a proposition for legislation vesting the department with authority to grant a dishonorable discharge to any enlisted man of the navy who fails to show up within forty-eight hours after leaving his ship or station. Under the present arrangement such men are treated as deserters, costing the Government considerable money for rewards for their apprehension and for transportation to and maintenance at prisons after their arrest.

Secretary Daniels also thought it would be a good idea to take up legislatively the proposition of encouraging enlisted men by offering a certain percentage of them the opportunity of rising by entrance into the Naval Academy at Annapolis. It was brought out during the hearings that Admiral Charles E. Vreeland started out as an apprentice seaman.

MANN FOR ALASKAN ROAD.

House Minority Leader Urges Federal Project—Senate Bill Debated.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The House continued to-day to debate the bill providing for a Government railroad in Alaska, but the measure did not reach the amendment stage. The Senate bill, which recently passed that body, was substituted for the House measure, to facilitate consideration. The House will amend the Senate bill and throw the measure into conference for adjustment of differences between the two houses. The bill will again be considered next Wednesday.

Representative James R. Mann, Republican floor leader, in advocating the bill said he took no stock of the threadbare constitutional questions raised against the proposal.

"We own Alaska," he said. "It is undeveloped and its resources are unknown. What has been the first step of development anywhere in the United States within the last fifty years? To build a railroad.

"We must also learn the value of Alaska. As men of common sense we should develop our own property by making it possible to learn the resources, and the first step is to build a railroad."

Mr. Mann added his belief that the construction by the Government of a railroad in Alaska did not involve the question of Government ownership of railroads in the United States.

WILSON GETS JACKSON RELIC

"Old Hickory's" Walking Stick Presented to the President.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. — Andrew Jackson's famous hickory stick was presented to President Wilson to-day by Senator Thompson in behalf of Levi Ludlam of Wichita, Kan., who got it from a friend of Jackson.

It was said to have been the stick with which "Old Hickory" located the United States Treasury on Pennsylvania Avenue. There was a dispute as to where the building should be placed.

"Put it there," said Jackson, jabbing the end of the hickory stick into the ground.

SEEKS A STAY FOR CASSIDY.

Certificates of Reasonable Doubt Asked for ex-Boss and Walter.

Robert H. Elder, counsel for Joseph Cassidy and Louis T. Walter, Jr., who were sentenced to Sing Sing on Wednesday on conviction of selling a nomination for Justice of the Supreme Court to William Willett in 1911, obtained an order from Justice Maddox in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon calling upon the District Attorney to show cause before Justice Blackmar this morning why a certificate of reasonable doubt should not be granted to the defendants. A similar application, it is understood, will be made on behalf of Willett, who was convicted of buying the nomination.

In his application for the certificate, Cassidy's counsel contended that nothing was produced at the trial to connect his client with the crime charged; that the court admitted evidence that was improper, and that remarks of the District Attorney in his summing up were "intemperate and violent." On behalf of Walter counsel set forth that by virtue of his testimony in the Willett trial and because he was forced to testify at the hearing in 1911, he was entitled to immunity.

Cassidy, Walter, and Willett are still in Raymond Street Jail.

MAY DISBAR MAX D. STEUER.

Bar Association Has Filed Charges with Appellate Division.

As a result of the suit brought by Edith St. Clair, an actress, against Klaw & Erlanger three years ago, the Bar Association has filed charges before the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court upon which to base a motion for the disbarment of Max D. Steuer as a practicing attorney. These charges were accompanied by an affidavit of Mortimer Fishel, an attorney, who appeared with Horace E. Deming as counsel for A. L. Erlanger before the Bar Association. The papers were filed on Dec. 4.

Following Miss St. Clair's suit against Klaw & Erlanger, which she won, the actress appeared before Justice Goff and the Bar Association and made a confession that she had no just claim upon the theatrical firm and that she had been inspired in her action by Mr. Steuer, asserting that she had been suborned to perjury by the attorney.

The Appellate Division later called upon the Bar Association for a report on the matter, and after an investigation lasting over a year the Bar Association has filed its report, stating that it has investigated the matter and recommending that a proceeding be instituted against Steuer and a referee appointed.

BLAST BERMUDA NARROWS.

Hamilton Harbor to be Improved for Big Ships.

Capt. F. H. M. Custance, R. N. R., of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Arcadian said yesterday that the authorities in Bermuda had decided to straighten the "Narrows" at the first entrance to Hamilton Harbor, by blasting in order that the big twenty-knot ships which have been ordered for the New York trade can go in safely.

"At present," said the Captain, "there is plenty of water, but the course is so zigzagy that the bow of a long steamer is in the next bend before her stern is clear of the last one. It is impossible practically to enter the harbor at night. Doing away with the curves in the narrows will make it safe for ships to pass through at any time in clear weather."

Among the 250 cabin passengers returning on the Arcadian were forty-nine bridal couples, which Chief Steward Craddock says is a record for one ship. Among them were R. L. Fowler, son of Surrogate Fowler, and his bride. The Arcadian made the passage up in forty-eight hours in fine weather.

BURKE CASE PAPERS SENT TO NEW YORK

District Attorney Marshall to Examine Charges Against Panama Road Commissary.

TOLD TO ACT IF WARRANTED

In That Event Accused Man May Be Brought Here from the Isthmus for Trial.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Attorney General McReynolds to-day forwarded to H. Snowden Marshall, the United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, all the papers relating to allegations that John Burke, Commissary Superintendent for the Panama Railroad, had been guilty of accepting favors from firms and persons from whom supplies for the railroad were purchased. Mr. Marshall was instructed to take such action as the case seemed to warrant.

This indicates a change of view in the matter. In response to an inquiry from the Secretary of War the Attorney General had rendered an opinion that the Panama Railroad was a private and not a Government institution, and that as Mr. Burke was therefore not an employe of the United States he could not be prosecuted for alleged wrongdoing against the Government. The present attitude of the Department of Justice appears to be that the evidence in the case may furnish justification for charging Mr. Burke with an offense against the United States or an offense involving illegal practices against the Panama Railroad as a private corporation.

While officials of the Department of Justice were reticent, it is understood that District Attorney Marshall will give consideration to the question of whether Mr. Burke can be brought to the United States for trial in the event that the District Attorney believes that a case has been made out against him. The fact that the documentary evidence was sent to the United States District Attorney in New York City indicates that the Department of Justice has the idea that proceedings against Mr. Burke can be taken in New York.

United States District Attorney Marshall said last night that he had received the papers concerning the charges against Burke yesterday afternoon. He had turned them over to an assistant for his examination and report. Until he had received the latter he could say nothing about the matter.

SWANN ON POLICE REFORM.

Judge Says Right of Review Is What Protects the "System."

Judge Edward Swann of the Court of General Sessions, many of whose recommendations to the Curran Committee in relation to police reforms have been put into practice, expressed yesterday his approval of the proposal to abolish the right of judicial review after a member of the department is dismissed by the Commissioner. He asserted that the grafters of the force were intrenched behind the right of judicial review and that its abolition meant the destruction of the "system."

"It was an open secret who the chief grafters in the department were," Judge Swann said, "but the impossibility of making a legal case, with the 'weight of evidence' against the accused that would stand the test of the legal rules of evidence and procedure such as maintain in the courts, is such that many verdicts of dismissal have been set aside by the appellate courts. Of all the police officers tried and dismissed in 1894-95 for complicity in the disgraceful saturnalia of graft disclosed by the Lexow legislative committee, every one was reinstated by the appellate courts. There is no suggestion that the appellate courts were not in every case strictly correct and within and according to the law as it exists, but the contention is that the special legislation whereby the members of the police force are privileged above other city employes from the civil service list should be repealed, and there should be equality and uniformity in the treatment of all city employes protected by the civil service.

"A policeman is a civilian in exactly the same sense as any other city employe, and the fact that he wears a uniform and brass buttons does not differentiate his case in the least. A policeman has no other authority to arrest than a citizen has, and it is only a matter of convenience that we employ men to perform that service for us and call them policemen. I know of no 'vested right' of a policeman to hold office.

"A night watchman whom the residents of a block employ at their own expense to patrol the street in front of their residences has the same power to arrest. Suppose he becomes inefficient and unreliable and his character questionable, it would be very unjust if the householders could not discharge him after a fair hearing unless they proved by legal evidence the charges against him."

'DIAMOND QUEEN'S' DEFENSE

Answer in Suit of Nat Wills for Annulment of Marriage.

Mrs. Heloise Wills, wife of Nat M. Wills, the actor and tramp impersonator, applied yesterday to Supreme Court Justice Bijur for an allowance of $400 a week and counsel fees of $500 from her husband, pending the determination of his suit for the annulment of their marriage. Mrs. Wills told the court that at the time of her marriage on May 23, 1910, her husband was earning $800 a week while she was receiving $450, being billed as the "Diamond Queen."

For two years after their marriage, according to her statement, they lived in high style, touring Europe in automobiles, resting in private villas and, incidentally, spending $8,000 of her savings and $60,000 she had in jewels as the "Diamond Queen." At the end of this time, she said, her husband left her in a hotel with the bills unpaid and explained the situation by saying that they had not been legally married, because the ceremony was performed in Chicago within a month after she had received a divorce decree. It is on this ground that the husband is suing for the annulment of the marriage. Justice Bijur reserved decision on the application for allowance.

"JANE BROWN" SET FREE.

Judge Hollister Warns Woman Accused of Raising Bills.

"Jane Brown," the woman who was arrested several days ago for passing in a department store bills which had been raised to $50, and whose identity is still unknown despite the efforts of the Secret Service men, was acquitted yesterday in the Federal District Court, when the sealed verdict, which the jury had left the night before, was opened.

Judge Hollister called the woman to the witness chair and then said to her: "Jane Brown, you have been found not guilty. You are to be congratulated. You know whether you are or are not guilty better than anyone else. Presumably you are innocent, and I hope that it is so, but if by any chance you are not this will serve as a very severe warning to you. You are discharged."

Jane Brown burst into tears and then, after getting her few belongings from Marshal Henkel, left the Federal Building in company of a woman missionary.

Students Compete in Oratory.

An oratorical contest open to students of high schools in New York State outside of the metropolitan district was held at Columbia University last night. S. Stanley Griffin of the Clinton (N. Y.) High School won the first prize of $50, Armand McQuillian of Plattsburg the second prize of $35, and Irving McNeil Ives of Oneonta the third prize of $15.

MURPHY LEADER FOR LIFE.

Tammany Hall Chief Defies His Political Enemies.

Charles F. Murphy was agitated yesterday by a published story that he was to be superseded as leader by a triumvirate consisting of Tom Smith, Tom Foley and Tom McAvoy. Mr. Murphy said:

"I'm going to stay here as long as I live. That's pretty strong, isn't it? Well, you can add that to what I said the other day."

"Big Tom" Foley at Tammany Hall denied the story.

"All this talk is started by outsiders who made failures of themselves in their own little towns and come here to start something," said the ex-Sheriff. "The only way they can get any notice is by trying to start something against Tammany Hall. The people know us, and are for us. We were born here and the people of New York think more of us than they do of the little outsiders. The people like Dudley Field Malone, who presume to attack Charley Murphy, are not even fit to black his boots. The story of the triumvirate is a lie. Murphy is leader and he is going to remain leader."

When Collector Malone was told of Mr. Foley's remark he said:

"You'll remember that Patrick Francis Murphy once said 'It's only the wounded bird that flutters.' That's all."

When Mayor Mitchel was told that Mr. Murphy had said he intended to remain leader of Tammany Hall as long as he lived the Mayor remarked: "How very interesting."

"Are you going to permit it?" some one asked.

"Why, what can I do?" replied the Mayor with a laugh. "I am not even a member of his organization."

A committee of independent Democrats of which Bert Hanson is Chairman, and which was organized to fight Tammany Hall, held another meeting yesterday at the Reform Club, 9 William Street. Mr. Hanson said he had received acceptances from 230 Democrats who were against Murphy to join his organization and that he hoped to increase the number to 250.

Resolutions endorsing the leadership of Charles F. Murphy were adopted last night in a meeting of the General Committee of the Tammany organization in the Fifteenth Assembly District, in which James J. Hagan is leader. The resolution denounced Murphy's detractors as a class of men unworthy to be classified as Democrats, and said they have no standing in this community or among the sincere Democracy therein.

BIG GAINS AT N. Y. U.

366 Students in the Midyear Entering Class—New Courses.

At New York University an unusually large class has just entered. All told, there have been registered 366 new students, 116 having been enrolled at University Heights and the balance in the Washington Square schools. The large increase has been in part brought about by the new courses, which extend from February, through the Summer, to September, and place those high school students who are graduated in February on an equal footing with those who were graduated the previous June. In reply to repeated questions why the large gains have been registered, Chancellor Elmer E. Brown spoke before the students after the chapel exercises yesterday in the auditorium at University Heights. He said in part:

"The first reason that I would assign for this advance in attendance is the fact that for several years past the standards of this university have been steadily rising. Within reasonable limits, if you advance the requirements for admission and graduation in a university, you make that university more attractive, and an increasing number of students will desire to enter it. The harder it is to get in, the more there will be who will try to get in, and the more there will be who will succeed.

"The second reason is that, while raising our standards, we are endeavoring to make our courses more conveniently accessible. A case in point is the arrangement for admitting the graduates of midyear classes in the high schools to a course which will prepare them for entrance upon the second year of college work at the beginning of the next Fall term. We have abundant evidence here before us that this arrangement meets with favor."

ASKS FOR VOORHIS INQUIRY.

Honest Ballot Association Seeks Speedy Hearing of Charges.

The Honest Ballot Association, through its Secretary, George W. Kessler, has sent Gov. Glynn a letter urging that a speedy hearing of the charges filed by the association against John R. Voorhis, State Superintendent of Elections, be held. The association has asked that Supt. Voorhis be removed from office on the ground of willful neglect of duty and gross negligence. In his letter Secretary Kessler said:

"These charges were called to the attention of the City Club, the Citizens' Union, and the Bureau of Municipal Research, and these organizations agree with us that, if the charges are sustained by the evidence, they constitute adequate grounds for the removal from office of John R. Voorhis. We have in hand evidence that we believe will sustain each of the eight charges made against Supt. Voorhis, and we earnestly urge that your Excellency arrange to have this evidence heard at the earliest possible moment. I read in the public press that Supt. Voorhis would enter a general denial to these charges. To accept such a denial as final would be to place Supt. Voorhis as judge upon his own case. Formal accusation of official misconduct against a public officer is a serious thing and cannot be ignored.

"The removal of Borough Presidents Ahearn, Gresser, and Haffen has established in the law and policy of this State the principle that charges of gross inefficiency, if sustained, constitute adequate grounds for removal from office. We think the evidence we have collected will sustain our charges."

SLEUTH'S SHOT HITS WOMAN

Bach, Stabbed by Negro Prisoner, Fires Revolver to Summon Aid.

A negro woman leaning from the front window of her rooms on the fourth floor of 331 West Thirty-ninth Street yesterday, was shot through the ear when a detective fired his revolver in the air to summon help, after he had been stabbed twice with a hatpin by another negress on the second floor of the same building.

Detective Valentine Bach entered the tenement at 331 West Thirty-ninth Street to arrest Eliza Thompson. She resisted and attacked him, lunging at him with the hatpin and jabbing him twice in the body, while Bach blew his whistle hoping a policeman would hear the call. He succeeded in poking his revolver out of the window and fired upward three times.

Mrs. Maria Brown, leaning out of the widow to investigate the whistling, was struck by one of the bullets, which cut a hole in the rim of her right ear. Dr. Kutil of the New York Hospital dressed the wound. The Thompson woman and two others were taken to the station.

PRINTING TRADES READY FOR A TEST

Allied Council Tells Government That It Will Comply with Reasonable Rules

BUT WILL FIGHT FOR RIGHTS

Witnesses from Philadelphia in the Doubleday, Page & Co. Case Are Heard by Grand Jury.

The Allied Printing Trades Council and its leaders offered yesterday to supply United States District Attorney Marshall with all the information that he wanted for the investigation of their affairs, and especially their relations with Doubleday, Page & Co. and the firm's associates in other cities. At the same time they let it be understood that they regarded the present action of the Government as practically a test of the methods employed by trades unions throughout the country.

They denied absolutely any knowledge of illegality on their part, and professed willingness to comply with any suggestions of the Government which appeared to them reasonable, but added that if they were not convinced of the justice of the position of the Federal authorities they would be prepared to fight the matter out in the courts.

The attitude which the printing trades take was explained to District Attorney Marshall by Peter J. Brady, Secretary of the Allied Printing Trades Council, and Joseph M. Proskauer of Elkus, Gleason & Proskauer, counsel for the allied trades. They called upon him and expressed their willingness to follow much the same policy as that of the Jewelers' Association, which submitted last week to the order of the court. If the Government could show them that they had broken the law, they would be willing to devise other methods to attain the ends of their unions.

"We feel," said Mr. Brady after the meeting, "that if the Allied Printing Trades Council has violated the law, there is no other union in existence which could stand a Federal investigation."

The Federal authorities are likely to accept the offer of the unions, as it will materially lighten their labors in getting at the facts. The real fight will come over the question whether the acts which can be established constitute a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. So far District Attorney Marshall has not made up his mind about this. The one precedent on which he must rely as authoritative is that of the Danbury hatters, which case was thoroughly threshed out by the courts.

In this it was found that the Danbury Hatters' Union, in boycotting the manufactures of a non-union shop, were guilty of restraint of trade. The decision was a very broad one, and the District Attorney has to consider it closely to see if it can be applied to the case of the Allied Printing Trades Council. It is not expected, in any case, however, although the investigation is in progress before the Grand Jury, that criminal proceedings will follow. It is believed that the issues can be tried out satisfactorily in an equity suit.

Of late there has been little trouble about the enforcement of the Sherman law, Mr. Marshall said yesterday. It has been so thoroughly interpreted that most lawyers agree as to its effect. The regular course followed is first a complaint, then a conference between counsel, and then the modification of its policy by the defendant to meet the case. It is the novelty of the invocation of the Sherman law against trades union practices and the far-reaching effect of such an application which make a settlement by agreement difficult in this case.

The Grand Jury had before it yesterday witnesses from Philadelphia, as it was the complaint of Doubleday, Page & Co. that their business had been interfered with in that city and in Boston that brought the charge within the Sherman law. According to Mr. Doubleday, when his firm gave out certain photo-engraving work to firms in Philadelphia and Boston the Allied Printing Trades Council of this city wrote to the councils in these other centres and called a strike on the Doubleday jobs.

The witnesses examined yesterday were H. A. Gatchell, one of the heads of the Gatchell-Manning Photo-engraving Company of Philadelphia, and George W. McIntyre, President of the Electro-tint Engraving Company of the same city. The union side was represented by Archie Hampton, Secretary of the Photo Engravers' Union, and A. S. Barnes, Secretary of the Allied Printing Trades Council of Philadelphia. Mr. Barnes had brought with him under subpoena some of the union correspondence. This was impounded for the Government by Assistant United States District Attorney Harold Harper.

Mr. Proskauer, as counsel for the Allied Printing Trades, immediately made application to Judge Hollister in the Federal District Court for an order for the restoration of these documents. The court upheld the District Attorney, but in order that Mr. Proskauer might make an appeal from the decision, he was instructed to prepare an order, which might be made the basis of an appeal.

Speaking last night of his conference with District Attorney Marshall, Mr. Brady said:

"The District Attorney assured us that our case had not been prejudged and that a fair investigation was being made of charges filed with him. We are confident that this inquiry will result in the complete exoneration of the union. We know that none of us has ever been consciously guilty of any wrong, and we do not believe that we have ever been guilty of even a technical violation of the Sherman law.

"Our unions have been in existence many years, and always have prided themselves on being law-abiding. Union shops have been maintained for years without friction, and this complaint we attribute to the hostility of one or two employers, who have never been able to sympathize with the broad-minded and liberal attitude of other employers."

SHUTTING DOWN ON BURLAP

Curtailing Production in India Has Immediate Effect Here.

Cabled reports received in this city that 80 per cent. of the manufacturers of burlap in Calcutta had decided, owing to the chaotic conditions prevailing in the market, to curtail production for three months, beginning April 1, had the effect yesterday of advancing prices for the different grades in the local market. While opinions varied in the trade as to the ultimate results of the curtailment plan, it was agreed that the Indian jute production would benefit in quality and otherwise by a slackening of the demand for the raw product.

A representative of one of the largest New York burlap houses said yesterday that the strain on the jute supply has been terrific, and that the lessening of demand temporarily might be expected to do much toward improving the basis stock. This man said that on account of the action of the Calcutta manufacturers, individuals and firms who had been sellers of burlaps were now in the market as buyers. It was also said that an increase of 30 per cent. in additional machinery in the Calcutta district within a comparatively short period had about exhausted the available raw material. The effect has been that very inferior jute has been manufactured into burlap.

It is estimated that the reports of a partial shutdown have advanced prices here during the week on goods for nearby positions from between 25 to 30 points sterling a hundred yards. Forward positions were quoted at relatively higher prices than for prompt shipment, which was regarded as evidence that Calcutta factors were certain that short time would be put into operation April 1. Reports were also circulated in the trade that Dundee manufacturers are considering a proposition to curtail production owing to the unsatisfactory demand for hessians, taken in connection with the high price of jute. It was estimated that should the production be reduced 16 2-3 per cent., the output will still be practically as large as it was before the new machinery was added.

$650 FOR A CHINA CLOSET.

18th Century English Mahogany Chairs Bring $600 at Adam Sale.

The first afternoon's sale of the furniture, &c., of the House of Adam, Fifth Avenue, New York, at the American Art Galleries, sold owing to the death of the New York representative, Gilbert Adam, brought $15,891. William Skinner paid the highest price of the afternoon, $650, for an English mahogany china closet, 7 feet 6 inches high by 3 feet 10 inches wide, of delightful design, shaped top with leaf and scroll carving, with three glass shelves, mirror back and shaped undershelf and block feet. A set of eighteenth century English mahogany chairs went to Bernet, agent, for $600.

A nest of Japanese lacquered tables went to P. R. Pyne for $77.50. George Bishop paid $85 for another nest of four Japanese lacquer tables with English designs, and Miss Pomeroy $62.50 for a miniature lacquered English side cabinet. An English satinwood table clock, Hepplewhite period, rosewood and brass inlay, went to Fox for $155; an English mahogany piecrust flip table to Bernet for $105, and an English lacquered wall clock to E. W. James for $105. A sixteenth century burl walnut vestry table went to Johnson for $125, and Mrs. W. Earl Dodge paid $250 for an English lacquered chest, middle eighteenth century.

A pair of English satinwood sofas, cane backs and seats, slip curtains, painted decorations, went to Johnson for $300, and T. P. Crawley paid $210 for a pair of Georgian sofas, shaped legs, paw feet, upholstered in green silk. A Chippendale style mahogany centre table, with fretted gallery, went to Mrs. R. H. Williams for $180, and Koopman gave $120 for a Georgian mahogany sofa table. Mrs. Arthur S. Burden paid $365 for a beautiful Irish mahogany centre table, square cornered, heavily carved, ball and claw feet; a Hepplewhite settee, with eight carved legs upholstered in old silk, went to T. P. Crawley for $150, and Koopman paid $200 for a Chippendale Chinese mahogany china closet.

An old English clock, black lacquer with gold, went to T. F. Rose for $165, and Mrs. Pope paid $300 for a Chippendale design mahogany bureau desk and bookcase. A Chippendale design mahogany crib went to Morgan for $150, and William Skinner paid $240 for an early Georgian mahogany carved post bedstead. A pair of Italian carved and gilded pedestals went to Marshall C. Levitts for $130, and Mrs. L. P. Whitaker paid $105 for a Sheraton mahogany spinet.

A sale of French furniture will begin to-day's session, and fireplace pieces, mantels, and doorways, with Chippendale period furniture, will be sold.

AN INNESS SOLD FOR $250.

"Landscape and River" Bought by George Story at Mrs. Bronder Sale.

George Story was one of the purchasers at the picture sale, collections of Mrs. Valerie L. Bronder and Walter E. Hildreth, at the Fifth Avenue Auction Rooms last evening, buying the George Inness of the collection, "Landscape and River," for $250. Anton Mauve's "Sheep" went to Mr. Story for $200. A very attractive picture by Carlton Wiggins, "The End of the Day," went to P. Harris for $240. There were many chances for bargains. "The Conspirators," David Teniers, the younger, went to J. P. Britt for $107.50; F. L. Adler paid $142.50 for a Henner, "Magdalen," a full-length reclining figure, and a "Summer Landscape," a pretty picture by Bristol, brought $80, and a Koek-Koek "Landscape," $90.

H. A. Cass paid $45 for an "Interior with Figures," by Percy Moran; Mr. Einstein gave $57.50 for a charming picture by F. C. Penfold, "A French Garden," a riot of flowering plants; J. O. McDermott paid $70, for Chevillard's "The Puppett Maker;" A. Jameson paid $47.50 for a Briscoe "Marine;" F. B. Campbell paid $55 for Thomas B. Craig's "Cattle in the Meadows" and Mr. Hills gave $87.50 for "Much Ado About Nothing," by Paul Burmeister. "Adam and Eve," a picture 16 by 18, Flemish school brought $62.50.

The returns to date are $5,304. There will be a number of important pictures in the concluding sale this evening.

DOUBLE FARES FOR PRIVACY.

Increase Rates to Pullman Traveler in Drawing Room or Compartment.

Beginning on March 1, all the trunk line railroads leading from New York and practically every other railroad in the United States have agreed to charge a new and higher tariff of rates for Pullman compartments and drawing rooms occupied exclusively by a single traveler. Notice of the new tariff adopted by the individual lines on the recommendation of the various passenger associations has been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and will go into effect automatically on March 1, unless objection is raised by the commission.

Instead of charging a single railroad fare and a single drawing room fare, as heretofore, the roads will now charge for exclusive use of a drawing room by one person double the railroad fare plus a single drawing room fare; and for Pullman compartments for the exclusive use of one traveler the present charge of one railroad fare plus one compartment fare will be increased to one and one-half railroad fare plus the present compartment fare. For long trips, this will involve a very considerable increase in expenditure per passenger.

The new regulation, which has been sent to all ticket offices of the trunk lines leading into New York, reads as follows:

"Effective March 1, 1914, each of the carriers, parties hereto, will collect a minimum of two (2) first-class adult one-way or excursion passage tickets, or their equivalent, for the exclusive use of a drawing room in a sleeping car or a parlor car, even though such drawing room be occupied by only one person.

"Effective March 1, 1914, each of the carriers, parties hereto, will collect a minimum of one and one-half (1½) first class adult one-way or excursion passage tickets, or their equivalent, for the exclusive use of a compartment in a sleeping car or a parlor car, even though such compartment be occupied by only one person."

Railroad officials said yesterday that the provisions of the new regulations have already been enforced for almost two years on some of the through trains and de luxe trains of the Western roads, such as the Santa Fé and the Overland Limited. They insisted that the increased tariff for exclusive drawing room or compartment trips was not designed chiefly to bring in larger revenues, but that it was intended to minimize as far as was reasonably possible the carrying of room cars with few occupants.

The increase in rates will not change the returns to the Pullman Company, whose contract with the railroads will continue as heretofore.

MORE DUTY WANTED.

The Government Appeals on Women's Wear Trimmings.

The Treasury Department has requested Assistant Attorney General Wemple to file an appeal with the Court of Customs Appeals from a recent decision of the Board of General Appraisers standing in the names of Hamburger-Levine Company, and Amerman & Patterson, New York, in which the lower customs tribunal held that trimming on women's wearing apparel does not constitute applique within the meaning of the Tariff act of 1909.

The goods in question consisted of articles of wearing apparel upon the fronts and other portions of which had been sewn strips of contrasting color fabrics. Following their usual practice at this port, the authorities returned the goods as appliqued, and exacted duty at 60 per cent. ad valorem. The importers appealed to the board, which, in a majority decision, upheld the claim for a tax of 50 per cent. ad valorem as wearing apparel.

It was said yesterday that the Government's appeal is based on the ground that under the board's decision as it stands the applique provision of the old law is practically nullified. The fact that under the new law the rate on appliqued articles is the same, 60 per cent., as under its predecessor, also has its influence with the department. Should the importers succeed before the court in the test case, importations under the present law will be admitted at 30 per cent. ad valorem.

To Show Fancy Worsteds.

The R. W. Colman department, Cox & Schreiber, 225 Fourth Avenue, selling agents for the Acme Worsted Mills, Jamestown, N. Y., will show complete lines of fancy and piece-dye worsteds for the coming heavyweight season on Monday. Prices will range from $1.15 to $1.52½ regular.

More Openings Scheduled.

The United States Worsted Company will open on Monday full lines of fancy worsteds (men's wear) for the coming Fall season. Included in the line referred to are mixtures, twists, and piece-dye silk effects. It was said at the office of the company yesterday that lines of dress goods for next Fall, including fancy mixtures, gabardines, crêpes, serges, and crêpe poplins, would be opened probably on Feb. 16.

Two New Cotton Fabrics.

West, Baker & Co., 61 Worth Street, are showing a novelty cotton fabric called "crepetonne." The fabric was described at the offices of the company yesterday as a Frenchy novelty in crepe. It comes in a variety of tinted grounds, and has contrasting woven checking. The same concern is showing also material called "loupinette," a cotton fabric having the appearance of a worsted Tartan plaid, the plaid effects being overshot with rough yarn. The goods may be had in a variety of colors and patterns.

Raw Silk Market Advancing.

The local raw silk market is active and advancing. There is a good demand for both spot and forward delivery, and the consumption at the mills is on a larger scale than has been seen for some time. The Milan market continues with a steady upward trend, according to the report of H. L. Gwalter & Co. The Yokohama market has advanced sharply during the week, and prices stand now over 100 yen a picul above the low level touched early last December, the advances, on the cheaper grades particularly, equaling fully 12 per cent. Canton reports a steady demand for Europe and America, at advancing prices. Shanghai is very firm, and China steam filatures have shown a further advance, in sympathy with the higher quotations on Japanese and Italian silks. Tussah silks are in slightly better demand, some transactions being reported at somewhat higher values.

To Register Trademarks.

The Silk Association of America has arranged to install and maintain a registration bureau for trade marks, trade names, and other marks of identification for merchandise used in the silk industry, with a view to simplifying the adoption of new trade marks, avoiding conflicts between members of the association and others arising out of the concurrent use of the same or similar marks. Arrangements have been made with the Trade-Mark Title Company, Fort Wayne, Ind., whereby members of the association referred to, and others who avail themselves of the services of the registration bureau, may have the benefit of the experiences and resources of that company, together with the use of the association's files, to determine whether their marks of identification are registerable. The members of the association are urged, in a letter sent out by Secretary Peugnet, to report on the matter at their earliest convenience, describing and illustrating their trade marks and trade names on a blank inclosed for that purpose in the letter.

Underwear to Go Up?

If a letter received yesterday by a prominent underwear selling agent from the head of one of the Southern mills can be relied on, underwear is to be scarce and scheduled for a price advance. The letter mentioned said in part: "It is understood that there will be a meeting in the South within a week or two of hard yarn spinners, representing 1,500,000 spindles, in order to take some action about obtaining higher prices for their yarns, and also to discuss the advisability of stopping some of their mills. They assert that white cotton is very scarce and is held at prohibitive prices, and that it is imperative that they set higher prices for their yarns." The mill man referred to went on to say that if yarns were advanced much more such an action, coupled with the high labor costs and the extra expense that the mill owners would be put to by the compensation law, would put manufacturers at a loss to know how goods could be turned out at existing prices. The letter concluded with the assertion that an extreme scarcity of Summer goods was probable in the next four to six weeks, and the selling agent was advised to impress upon his customers the advantage of covering at an early date.

FIXING THE STANDARDS.

The Government Issues a Manual for Customs Men.

With a view to standardizing the analytical methods employed in the ascertainment of the component materials entering into the makeup of imported merchandise as a basis for making appraisements, the Treasury Department is about to supply officers of the Customs at all ports with a manual compiled by Dr. Eugene R. Pickrell, Chief Chemist in charge of the United States Laboratory connected with the Appraiser's office in this city.

The manual, which will be placed in all of the Government's laboratories, describes the principal method in use, either in detail or by reference to recognized authorities in chemical analyses, and outlines 150 methods and guides. The book contains 100 pages and is divided into chapters dealing with a wide variety of products constantly coming up for analysis in the routine of the appraising and classification officials. Since the analytical methods are subject to alteration or addition at all times, the pages are loose-leafed, and the index is so arranged that it can be easily amplified.

During the last calendar year, the local laboratory, which is the largest in the country, analyzed 25,528 samples, representing all kinds of imported merchandise. In addition, 35,903 samples of sugar were analyzed. As the sugar samples were tested in duplicate, the total sugar analyses reached 71,806.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Harry Budwig, who represents Arthur W. Ware & Co., umbrellas and parasols, in the South and East, and who was a passenger on the steamer Monroe of the Old Dominion Steamship Company, which sank off the coast of Virginia last week, has just returned from Norfolk. Mr. Budwig was laid up at the Monticello Hotel, Norfolk, for five days, suffering from exposure and bruises. He is expected to return to business on Monday.

The firm of L. Finkelstein & Sons, materials for the cloak, millinery, hat and cap trades, has been established, with offices at 17 West Third Street. The business conducted by the Cloak, Suit and Supply Company has been taken over. Samuel Levine, formerly general sales manager of Finkelstein, Naitove & Co., is associated with the new concern. The members of the new firm include Louis and Isaac Finkelstein, formerly of Finkelstein, Naitove & Co., and Herman and Nathan Finkelstein.

The annual dinner of the Garment Salesmen's Association will be given in the ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria on Feb. 10. A vaudeville entertainment will be provided.

A peremptory sale of laces, by order of Max Mandel, will be held next Tuesday and Wednesday, beginning at 10 A. M., by Wilmerding, Morris & Mitchell at their salesroom, 488 to 492 Broadway. Complete lines of different kinds of laces are included in the offerings.

Much interest is displayed in the auction sale, just announced, of the stock of the August Steffens Dry Goods Company of Davenport, Iowa, which is retiring. This includes ginghams, canton flannels, taffetas and fancy silks, notions and fancy goods, and other staples of a large house, the original inventory showing a cost of $60,000. The sale will be held by Van Praag & Co. at 15 and 17 Greene Street Next Tuesday and Wednesday, beginning each day at 10:30 A. M.

THEY PAY $1,500,000 A YEAR

J. Stevens Ulman Tells Them He Believes President Wilson Personally Favors Advance.

Manufacturers who pay more than $1,500,000 a year in freight bills signed a petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission at the close of a meeting at the Manhattan Club yesterday afternoon, in which they asked that the railroads be permitted to increase their freight rates 5 per cent.

Supreme Court Justice Victor J. Dowling presided at the meeting, which was attended by about 150 prominent manufacturers and shippers. Speeches by Herbert D. Lounsbury, a large brick dealer, and J. Stevens Ulman, a leather dealer, preceded the signing of resolutions in favor of granting the freight rate increase. Mr. Lounsbury called attention to the fact that a meeting in a social club for the purpose of beseeching the Government to allow the railroads to charge a living freight rate was probably a new thing in the country's development.

"I favor the plan of letting the railroads raise their rates," he said, "because I know they need the money. Many regulations have been enforced against the railroads, not one of which has been productive of revenue, but all of which have been expensive. Many of them have come close to being invasions of corporate and personal rights.

"Costs of railroad operation have gone up so much within the past few years that it must be obvious that the railroads should be allowed to charge more for freight. Yet there remains the one old argument about overcapitalization. Even if there has been overcapitalization, the stock issued by such overcapitalization has now passed into the hands of innocent third parties. We cannot indulge in ex post facto legislation to aim backward at these old conditions. We realize in our business that if the people as a whole have prosperity and plenty of work that we prosper also, and we expect to benefit on the 100,000 tons of freight we ship annually at least to the extent of what the increase in freight rates will cost us."

M. Ulman explained that he was fully aware that the day had passed when the big corporations could ask for much in Washington with a hope of receiving consideration. He said that the active, aggressive, hard-working business men of the country were the men listened to to-day, and therefore it behooved these business men to see that justice was done to business interests both large and small. He was responsible, he said, for calling the meeting at the Manhattan Club. He had also called other meetings of business men throughout Delaware and the New England States, and each meeting had sent a petition to Washington in favor of an increase in freight rates. He had prevailed upon the New York Chamber of Commerce, the National Shoe Manufacturers' Association, and the Hide and Leather Association of New York to take similar action, he said.

Mr. Ulman assured his hearers that he had reason to believe that President Wilson favored granting the increase in freight rates, but was holding back an urgent recommendation to that effect merely because he felt that the Interstate Commerce Commission as a non-partisan body should pass upon the matter first.

"The President has unquestionably shown that antagonism between the Government and business is a matter of the past," he said, "and he has indicated to us that all proposed changes are to be carried out in a spirit of fairness and with the least possible disturbance to existing business customs.

"I believe the question of freight rates is the one big blight now hanging over business, and that the increase in the number of idle men in the country, which recently has become remarkable, bears a direct relationship to the remarkable increase in the number of idle freight cars. The number of unemployed men is larger than it has been in seventeen years, and the number of unemployed freight cars at the present time is more than 220,000.

"The masses, not the classes, are the consumers, and unless the masses are well and profitably employed, the classes, which represent the mercantile and manufacturing industries in this country, cannot be successful. The railroads cannot make drastic cuts in their wage scale because of the hostile attitude of labor and of public sentiment. Therefore, they are driven out of the market for supplies except to cover their bare necessities. The supply companies, which ordinarily would be large employers, have had to turn away large numbers of men, and in consequence all merchants selling to these employes have slack trade. I believe from all that I can learn that there will never be any genuine and lasting revival of trade until the railroads are assured of an increase in freight rates."

The petition which Mr. Ulman submitted for the signatures of those present called attention to the large number of unemployed men and freight cars and of the hopelessness of finding work for the men until the freight cars were restored to service. Mr. Ulman refused to make public the names of the signers of the petition. He said that each of them had trade associates or represented corporations whose stockholders might worry them with a great many questions if it became known that they were petitioners for the rate increase.

SCHOOLS FOR UNEMPLOYED.

Teaching of Trades Recommended by Chicago Commission.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Establishment of trade schools for the teaching of unemployed men will be recommended in a report which will be made soon by the Commission on Unemployed, which was appointed two years ago by Mayor Carter H. Harrison.

The report, according to Prof. Charles R. Henderson of the University of Chicago, Chairman of the commission, will propose that the schools be placed under the supervision of a board of public welfare, similar to that of Kansas City, Mo. The report also may offer the suggestion that compulsory schools be maintained for those who do not want further schooling, and who refuse to work.

WHAT LUMBER IS FREE?

Rather Strict Tariff Law Construction Urged by the Treasury.

It was made plain yesterday at a hearing before the Board of United States General Appraisers that the free lumber provisions of the new tariff law will not be made effective without a contest by the Treasury Department. The relegating of lumber of practically all classes to the free list deprives the department of a considerable revenue, with the result that the policy of the Government, it was said, will be to scrutinize carefully all importers' claims for exemption of duty.

The first case to come before the board involving the lumber schedule of the act of 1913 stands in the name of F. W. Myers, who represents the A. C. Dutton Lumber Company, Springfield, Mass. This firm, together with the Campbell-MacLauren Lumber Company, Ltd., a Canadian and American concern, imported from the Province of Quebec, so-called novelty sidings made of spruce, used on the outer walls of houses to give a shingled appearance. The Collector at the American port of entry classified the sidings under the new law as "manufactures of wood" and exacted duty at the rate of 15 per cent. ad valorem.

At the hearing yesterday, John Francis Strauss told the board that the sidings should be accorded free entry under Paragraph 647, as "other lumber not further manufactured than sawed, planed, tongued or grooved." It was argued that, as the samples showed, the blocks were tongued or grooved, and therefore fell within the paragraph claimed. Charles D. Lawrence of the Department of Justice maintained that the articles are manufactures, and were properly assessed. The Government counsel was given thirty days in which to produce witnesses in behalf of his contention. Under the old law, the duty on wood of this kind was $1.25 per 1,000 feet board measure, and when planed or tongued on one side 50 cents additional per 1,000 feet board measure. The additional duty in case all four sides were planed or tongued aggregated $1.50 per 1,000 feet.

Hearings on Railroad Free Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—First hearings on the subject of suitable charges for free services said to be worth upward of $15,000,000 a year, which the Interstate Commerce Commission has found the large railroad systems perform for great industrial plants, with unlawful discrimination against smaller concerns, will be held here Feb. 12, 13, and 14.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks React Further on Lighter Trading--Sustained Strength in the Bond Market.

Further reaction occurred in the stock market yesterday without in any way impairing the excellence of the investment demand which has been sustaining the bond market. During January the two moved together, both rising sharply, but since the first of this month, the demand for stocks has slackened while that for bonds of high grade has in no wise been abated. The course of the two departments of the security markets is readily enough explained. The rapidity of the advance in stocks very naturally invited much selling of a profit taking character and its recent status has been further affected by recognition of the fact that the expansion in trade, the expectation of which helped so largely to carry stock prices upward, is still short of full realization. It is fortunately well under way, but in the very nature of things time is required to bring about the favorable change which during the last month came to be so universally expected. The bond market on the other hand continues to feel the impulse imparted to it by the far-reaching change for the better which has come over the money markets.

Ease in money so far as bankers can judge is promised for an indefinite period and this prospect has lately induced a large amount of buying of high grade bonds by banking institutions which have turned from the short term market, where the supply had become very limited owing to very large absorption, to the market for long term securities. The stock market some days ago entered what may be described as the process of digestion following a rapid upturn, but bonds have been so well bought since the beginning of the year, that up to this time, at least, the market for them gives no indication of the accumulation of a surplus in the hands of middlemen. Indeed, the complaint which has been for sometime and which is now being heard is that bonds of prime grade are much easier to sell than to buy. Another advance in New York City 4½ per cent. bonds, which carried them to 106, the highest price at which they have ever sold, the keenness of the demand for railroad bonds which finds reflection among other ways in the bidding of premiums on recently floated issues, and the news contained in private advices from abroad that a $30,000,000 Belgian Government issue which was being placed in London was quoted at a premium of 1⅛ per cent. before allotment, were suggestive of the favorable conditions which continue to prevail in the investment market. The reaction in Consols must, of course, be considered in the light of what has in many respects been an extraordinary forward movement in that premier security of the British market.

Much of yesterday's financial discussion had to do with plans for financing of corporation requirements. A good deal was heard of a proposed Southern Pacific issue and in this connection it was heard that most of the balance of $10,000,000 notes which was reserved when last year's $20,000,000 issue was floated has since been disposed of at private sale. This increases the amount of this note issue outstanding to practically $30,000,000, and the new financing is expected to be at least large enough to fully cover this sum. The Pennsylvania has been doing some financing through the sale of small amounts of various subsidiary issues, and has not yet laid any plans, it was said yesterday, for any issue under the blanket mortgage which the stockholders are being asked to authorize. It is also understood that tentative plans are being drawn for the extension of some note issues now outstanding. This is true among others of one or two companies not in a position to offer bonds of a grade to meet the requirements of the present demand which so far as the most active buying is concerned is limited to bonds of high grade. This is regarded by bankers as the first stage in an investment movement, which in due course will extend to issues entirely sound but which are rated below the highest grades of bonds.

BUY $40,000,000 OF "PAPER."

Commercial Floating Supply Absorbed by Chicago Banks Since Jan. 1

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—It is estimated that the banks of Chicago have taken between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 of commercial paper since they began purchasing, early last month, for the first time since last May. The absorption has exhausted the supply of paper in brokers' hands, and the buying movement has been checked for that reason.

With the enormous demand among the banks for paper, discounts have fallen from 6 per cent. firm at the turn of the year to a current 4½ per cent. average, and some transactions are reported at as low as 4 per cent. Counter loans are quoted rather generally at 5 per cent., but there is shading of the rate.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Stepping to Safety.

The resignation of Morris McDonald from the Presidency of the Boston & Maine, an office which he has held for little more than half a year, to become President of the smaller and much less important Main Central is hard to explain unless credence be given to a story circulated yesterday in houses with Boston connections. This story had it that the trustees to be named by the New Haven to take over the management of the Boston & Maine are expected to make a clean sweep of the more important officers, and that Mr. McDonald preferred to be President of the Maine Central for a long time than to continue at the head of the larger road for a short time. If, as the Washington reports yesterday had it, Louis D. Brandeis has been asked to head the trustees, the story of Mr. McDonald's decision and the reason for it sounds more probable.

B. & M. Not Out of the Woods.

It developed yesterday that officers of the Boston & Maine had been over optimistic when they made their preliminary estimates of the proportion of the company's outstanding 5 per cent. notes which had been turned in for extension. Vice President W. J. Hobbs wired New York bankers from Boston yesterday that up to that time somewhat over 80 per cent. of the notes actually had been presented for extension, and that agreements covering 10 per cent. more had been obtained. That still left upward of $1,000,000 of the issue to be reckoned with. Mr. Hobbs said that many of the notes had not been turned in at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. and it was impossible to be sure of them. He hoped that when it was found that no provision had been made by the railroad or bankers for payment that the dilatory holders would decide to accept the new notes. Bankers who were making strenous efforts yesterday to get into touch with clients to whom they had sold the notes used this argument: that if they insisted on staying out they could precipate a receivership, since the Boston & Maine has no money to take up a single note, but that under a receivership it would probably be three years before any settlement could be made; whereas if they accepted the extension it seemed very likely that the company would be in a position before midsummer to arrange some long-term financing that would make it possible for the road to take up all of its notes with cash. The notes are a junior liability of the railroad, with only the stock ranking behind them.

A Chance for Co-Operation.

There was a meeting yesterday of the committee of four Directors of the Rock Island to consider ways and means of freeing the railway company from control by the holding company. It was said afterward that no plan was in sight, and that interests connected with the company did not look for a settlement of the matter for several weeks.

None of the proposals which have been suggested has been adopted, and the company would be glad to hear from security holders who have ideas for working out the dissolution. When all of the possibilities have been canvassed lawyers will be put to work to frame a water-tight plan.

No Reaction Yet in Oil Stocks.

Two weeks ago observers of the market for Standard Oil stocks predicted that a reaction was due. They were still voicing their predictions yesterday, but the expected setback for prices appeared to be somewhat ahead. A "healthy reaction" is considered on the Stock Exchange to be an excellent development for a forward movement which promises to become too fast, but trading in the oil issues has not yet been conducted for a length of time sufficient to establish many precedents. There have been occasions since the Oil Trust was disbanded when the market retreated in a fashion which might have been called a "reaction," but was generally described as a slump, and the effects were not healthy for numerous margin traders. In yesterday's session of the Curb transactions in the oil shares were so heavy at times that the brokers had much difficulty in keeping record of their deals, and prices fluctuated faster than the tickerless market could follow. Specialists were apprehensive lest the market grow too headlong. The rapid bidding up of prices has not been pleasing lately to conservative brokers.

Some Can Rumors Go Adrift.

News that the hearing in the suit of the Government against the American Can Company had been indefinitely postponed started several rumors yesterday which could be interpreted both as favorable and as unfavorable to the Can shares. One was that the suit had been called off and that details were being completed for a settlement of differences out of court. Another was that the Government prosecutors suddenly had uncovered evidence particularly damaging to the defense and had called a halt in proceedings until they could amplify it. The stock market received the stories with indifference, and the Can issues reflected no especial stress among traders in the interval before an official announcement came from counsel for the company that nothing extraordinary was connected with the postponement. It was stated that the hearings were put off because neither side was ready to go on.

An Obstacle in the Way.

After months in which the Street pretty well got its fill of talk about depression of business, reports of excellent earnings of industrial concerns are received with much satisfaction. Automobile making is hardly to be catalogued with the general run of industrial endeavor, but the speculative element in the stock market has, nevertheless, spent some pleasurable moments this week considering the income of the General Motors Company. The company's earnings since the fiscal year began last August have not been announced, but it is thought that they will rank well with the preceding year, when a good showing was made. The common stock would, theoretically, be attractive to speculators were it not for one fact—it is hard to get hold of. The floating supply in the Street is small as only $15,000,000 has been issued, and most of this went into the hands of investors who are said to have kept a close grip on their holdings.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Continued Upward Movement in the Oil Stocks, with Heavy Gains Scored.

Standard Oil of California and Pierce Oil were the particular features of the trading in outside securities yesterday. The first named was dealt in largely and closed with an advance of 32 points, having sold earlier in the day 40 points above the closing price of Wednesday. Pierce Oil at one time during the day showed a net gain of 21 points, but at the close had lost more than half this gain. Other advances worth noting were 15 in Standard Oil of New York, 13 in Standard Oil of Ohio, 7 in Standard Oil of Kentucky new and 5 in Prairie Oil and Gas. Standard Oil of Kansas lost 5 points and Atlantic Refining 4 points.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Reaction in London on Realizing—Prices Steady in Paris and Dull in Berlin.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, Feb. 6.—The Times says in its City article to-day:

"The plethora of daily money was rather increased yesterday, and at the close balances were offered at under 1 per cent. for the night.

"Discount quotations for three months' bills were a shade lower, but the tendency of the market was not really weak.

"Four hundred and two thousand pounds was withdrawn from the Bank for India.

"The Bank return showed a decrease of £518,000 in the reserve.

"On the Stock Exchange there was a general disposition to secure profits in view of the approach of the settlement, and business was on a distinctly smaller scale in all departments.

"The demand for gilt-edged securities showed signs of slackening, and, broadly speaking, the tone of the markets was dull. Consols relapsed ⅜.

"Canadian Pacific Railway shares and the American market generally closed dull, and the foreign railway market was quite flat. There were some lively movements in Peruvian Corporation preference, which finally left off at a price very little changed on the balance.

"Brazil scrip rallied sharply after being flat."

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Prices were steady on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes 87f. 37½c. for the account.

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—Trading was dull on the Boerse to-day.

Shipping shares were higher on heavy purchases for Hamburg account.

TRUSTEES FOR B. & M. ROAD.

Other Properties of the New Haven to be Handled by Them.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—While the Department of Justice is considering how the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad is to dispose of its holdings in the Boston & Maine, the plan of an eventual trusteeship has been decided upon for the other properties controlled by the New Haven which it has agreed to divide up. Such action, suggested by the New Haven in disposing of the Boston & Maine holdings, will be followed, it was said to-night, in handling the trolley lines in Rhode Island and the so-called outside steamship lines. The trustees will be chosen by the New Haven and submitted to the Department by Moorefield Storey and Walker D. Hines, counsel employed to carry out the terms of the recent agreement with the Department of Justice. Attorney General McReynolds will not dictate the trustees, but their selection must receive his approval.

For the present T. W. Gregory and Jesse C. Adkins, the two department attorneys in the New Haven case, are working on the proposed trusteeship for the Boston & Maine. It is understood that Louis D. Brandeis of Boston will probably be made Chairman of this board. Other trustees have not yet been selected. Probably two or four more will be chosen. The trusteeship would last for several years, and the stock of the Boston & Maine, owned by the New Haven, would gradually be disposed of.

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 5.—Morris McDonald is to retire from the Presidency of the Boston & Maine Railroad at an early date, and return to the Presidency of the Maine Central Railroad. Official confirmation of persistent rumors to this effect was obtained at the general offices of the Maine Central to-day.

RAILROAD CONFERENCE ENDS

Arbitration Board to Get Unsettled Points in Employes' Complaints.

The Managers' Conference Committee of the Eastern railroads and the general adjustment committees of the trainmen and conductors, which have been trying to settle a number of complaints of the employes of alleged misapplications of the award of the Board of Arbitration under the Newlands act, have finished their tabulation of the points still unsettled, and they will be submitted to the Arbitration Board for a ruling, when the board meets in this city on Monday.

Ex-Judge William Lea Chambers and several other members of the board live out of town, and will be in this city early on Monday morning to meet the resident members of the board. It is expected that the board will convene in the forenoon and will go into session with the representatives of the railroads and will meet the employes in the afternoon. Besides the tabulation of the unsettled points, it is expected that briefs will be submitted by both sides, giving the present situation and recapitulating the arguments presented at the conferences.

OHIO ROAD REORGANIZATION

$43,000,000 Bonds and Stocks of Ironton Railway to be Surrendered.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 5.—Plans for the reorganization of the Detroit, Toledo, and Ironton Railroad, as outlined to the State Utilities Commission today by former Gov. Judson Harmon, chief counsel for the Reorganization Committee, include the complete surrender of the present stocks and bonds, which amount to $43,000,000. The new company, to be composed of present bond and stock holders, proposes to issue $20,000,000 common stock, but no preferred stock.

The common stock, it was stated, will be distributed among the stock and bond holdings when they surrender the $43,000,000, which they now own. This will practically mean a reduction of the capital stock of the company by $23,000,000.

The present bond holders also agree to take up $4,650,000 when the new stock is issued. This, with $2,000,000 which will be raised from the sale of equipment bonds, is to be used for extension.

Laclede Gas Light Co. Earnings.

The Laclede Gas Light Company reports for the year ended Dec. 31 gross earnings of $4,533,491, an increase of $89,000 over 1912. Operating expenses were $2,479,486, an increase of $74,000, and the surplus, after paying the preferred dividend, $873,699, was equivalent to 8.16 per cent. on the $10,700,000 of common stock. In the previous year the surplus earned amounted to 8.40 per cent. on the common. President Holam says that expenses increased owing to an increase in output and because of higher cost of raw material used for making gas.

Woolworth Company Earnings Up.

The F. W. Woolworth Company reported yesterday that gross sales of $66,228,072 had been made in the fiscal year ended on Dec. 31, a gain of $5,670,305 over the preceding year. Net income was $6,461,118, an increase of $1,046,320, and the equivalent of 10.82 per cent. on the common stock, after making allowance for the preferred, as compared with 8.72 per cent. in 1912. A surplus of $2,661,118 was left after paying dividends. This was a decline of $703,680 from the record of 1912, a recession accounted for by the fact that the common stock dividend was increased last June from 4 to 6 per cent.

Cleveland Short Line Sells Bonds.

White, Weld & Co.; Harris, Forbes & Co., and Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co. have purchased through J. P. Morgan & Co. approximately $4,350,000 Cleveland Short Line Railway first mortgage 4½ per cent. bonds, guaranteed both as to principal and interest by the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway. The bonds are the remainder of $11,800,000 now outstanding.

Bank of Germany's Rate Reduced.

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—The rate of discount of the Imperial Bank of Germany was reduced from 4½ to 4 per cent. to-day.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The annual meeting of stockholders of the United States Rubber Company will be held in New Brunswick, N. J., at noon on March 17.

Kean, Taylor & Co. are offering $500,000 Pennsylvania Railroad-Alleghany Valley Railway general mortgage 4 per cent. bonds at 97; $1,000,000 Northern Pacific Railway prior lien 4 per cent. bonds at 96, and $1,000,000 Burlington general mortgage 4 per cent. bonds at 94½.

On Feb. 12 there will be a drawing for redemption of 5 per cent. loan bonds of the Imperial Government of Japan. A list of drawn bonds will be posted by the Yokohama Specie Bank about March 24, and the bank will buy such bonds at the current rate of exchange.

Moore, Leonard & Lewis are distributing a booklet on Pittsburgh securities, containing information about issues dealt in on the Pittsburgh Exchange.

Hambleton & Co. and R. W. Pressprich have purchased the Pennsylvania Railroad $1,200,000 Philadelphia & Erie general mortgage 6 per cent. bonds, due in 1920, and constituting the balance of the issue remaining in the Pennsylvania treasury.

Federal Light and Traction Directors have organized by electing E. N. Sanderson President, in place of James C. Colgate; F. Blossom First Vice President, Craig Colgate Second Vice President, C. C. Chappelle Vice President and General Manager; H. H. Porter Secretary, L. C. Gerry Treasurer, John B. Marsh and L. C. Gerry Assistant Secretaries, and Richmond Talbot Assistant Treasurer.

The Governor of California has designated the Bankers' Trust Company as fiscal agent under a law passed last year.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Traders on the Consolidated Stock Exchange holding bearish opinions were sellers of the market in the later dealings, when prices receded on a somewhat increased volume of business. The closing quotations, however, were above the lowest. Earlier in the day there had been a good deal of nervousness about the trading, with changes in tone frequent. Despite the hesitating characteristics of the market, commission house orders included a broad list of different stocks.

NOTICE BY PUBLICATION
HALE AND KILBURN COMPANY,
A CORPORATION EXISTING UNDER THE LAWS OF THE STATE OF DELAWARE.

To the First Preferred, Second Preferred, and Common Stockholders and to the Voting Trust Certificate holders:

You will please take notice of the following preambles and resolutions adopted at a Special Meeting of the Board of Directors of the HALE AND KILBURN COMPANY, held at 80 Church Street, New York City, New York, on February 2, 1914, at eleven o'clock A. M. WM. B. GIVEN, Jr., Secretary.

CERTIFIED COPY PREAMBLES AND RESOLUTIONS OF BOARD OF DIRECTORS HALE AND KILBURN COMPANY.

Upon motion duly made and seconded, and by the unanimous vote of all present, the following preambles and resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, Article Fourth of the Certificate of Incorporation of the Company provides that:

"If on Dec. 31, 1913, or at any time thereafter, the net earnings of the corporation for the last twelve months of said period shall have aggregated Four Hundred and Twenty Thousand Dollars, ($420,000,) or if said net earnings for the last twenty-four months of said period shall have aggregated Eighty Hundred and Forty Thousand Dollars, ($840,000,) the priority of the first preferred stock to the second preferred stock shall cease, and thereafter there shall be no distinction between the two classes of preferred stock, either as to dividends or as to distribution upon liquidation or dissolution, or as to retirement"; and,

Whereas, The net earnings of the Company for the period of twenty-four months preceding December 31st, 1913, as shown by the duly certified report of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Company, certified accountants, have exceeded the amount of net earnings, namely, Eight Hundred and Forty Thousand Dollars ($840,000) required by said Article Fourth of its Certificate of Incorporation to be earned by the Company during such period in order to eliminate the priority of the first preferred stock of the Company over its second preferred stock and to make each such class of stock of a parity with the other; and,

Whereas, The Board of Directors, after a careful examination of the report of said accountants, is fully satisfied that the net earnings of the Company during the said period of twenty-four months preceding December 31st, 1913, have exceeded the said sum of Eight Hundred and Forty Thousand Dollars, ($840,000,) and that the said report is in all respects true and correct;

Resolved, That the said report of the certified accountants, Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Company, be and the same hereby is accepted in all respects, and that it be and hereby is ordered filed and made a part of the minutes of this meeting;

Further Resolved, That this Board hold a special meeting on February 24th, 1914, which meeting is hereby directed to be called, for the purpose of declaring the said first and second preferred classes of stock of the Company to be of a parity in all respects as of February 23rd, 1914, and thereafter, and for the purpose of further adopting a resolution amending said Article Fourth of the Certificate of Incorporation of the Company so as to provide for a single issue of new preferred stock for which the present first and second preferred classes of stock may be exchanged;

Further Resolved, That meanwhile the proper officers of the Company be and they hereby are directed to cause a duly certified copy of these preambles and resolutions, addressed to the stockholders and voting trust certificate holders of the Company, to be published in two newspapers of general circulation, one in Wilmington, Delaware, and one in New York City, New York, twice a week for three successive weeks, the last publication in each newspaper to be on the 23rd day of February, 1914; and,

Further Resolved, That the proper officers of the Company cause a duly certified copy of these preambles and resolutions to be printed and mailed to each stockholder and voting trust certificate holder at his last known address.

We, the undersigned, CHARLES H. SCHLACKS, President, and WM. B. GIVEN, Jr., Secretary, respectively, of the HALE AND KILBURN COMPANY, do hereby certify that the above and foregoing is a true and accurate copy of certain preambles and resolutions taken from the minutes of a special meeting of the Board of Directors of HALE AND KILBURN COMPANY, held in the office of the Company, 30 Church Street, New York City, New York, on the 2nd day of February, 1914, and recorded on Pages 109 and 110 of the Minute Book of said Company; and we further certify that the above preambles and resolutions were adopted by the affirmative vote of more than a majority of all the Directors of the Company.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto affixed our official signatures and the corporate seal of the Company in the City of New York, on this 2nd day of February, 1914.

C. H. SCHLACKS, President.
WM. B. GIVEN, Jr., Secretary.

ASK LOW CONVERSION PRICE FOR U. P. BONDS

Holders Say They Are Entitled to It Because of Proposed Dividend Cut.

QUOTE 140 AS A FAIR BASIS

Distribution of Assets, They Assert, Has Lowered Level of Issue Now Convertible at 175.

The distribution of the Baltimore & Ohio stock held by the Union Pacific Railroad Company and $3 a share in cash out of its surplus is to be made to stockholders of record on March 2, and with the approach of that date the effect of the distribution on the conversion privilege of the company's convertible bonds is coming in for much discussion among the bondholders. A number of them have written to R. S. Lovett, Chairman of the Union Pacific board, asking that something be done to offset this effect.

None of the bondholders who have brought up the question has any idea that legal steps might be taken to improve their prospective condition, but they express the view that in fairness the diminution of assets should be taken into account, probably by lowering the price for the stock at which the bonds are convertible. The value of the Baltimore & Ohio stock, with the $3 of cash, is about $35, though it varies from day to day with fluctuations in the price of Baltimore & Ohio. Some of the bondholders have suggested that the Directors of Union Pacific make the bonds convertible at a price of about 140 for the stock, instead of 175, the basis on which they were issued.

These bondholders argue that they paid par or more for the bonds, although they bear interest at only 4 per cent., because they also carried the right to turn them into stock at 175 at any time within ten years. The prospect at that time of the stock going to 175, they say, was approximately 35 points better than it will be after March 2 next, because of the proposed distribution of assets, and the reduction of the dividend from 10 per cent. to 8.

Union Pacific stock, which is now selling with the special dividend on, closed yesterday at 162⅞, and the convertible bonds closed at 92¾. This means that if the bonds had been converted yesterday the stock received for them would have been worth only 162¾, practically the same as the market price. Bondholders argue that after March 2 there will be less chance by about 35 points of Union Pacific going to 175. The effect of this, say these bondholders, so far as their reasonable expectations go, is that the conversion privilege will be a dead letter after March 2, although it extends to July 1, 1917.

"I own more than two hundred of these bonds," said one of those interested yesterday. "I consider them perfectly safe and worth holding at the present prices without the convertible feature being taken into consideration. At the same time I paid 104 for the bonds, and I bought them because of the convertible feature and on the statement of the management concerning not only the earning power of the Union Pacific, but also the income derived from the investments which it held.

"I do not know that the bondholders would have any legal claim in connection with the matter of the proposed distribution of securities held in the Union Pacific treasury to the holders of its common stock having a value of approximately $35 a share, but I do know that as a matter of equity this distribution should not be made unless the convertible privilege is reduced from $175 to $140 a share."

No statement has been made by the Union Pacific management on the subject, but it was learned yesterday that the Directors had given no formal consideration to the matter and were not likely to do so unless some legal action compelled them to take it up.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

Grain prices were firm yesterday in a generally sluggish session. Wheat closed with a gain of ⅛c, corn move forward from ⅛ to ¼c, and oats was steady. Cotton broke down rather sharply with net recessions reaching from 10 to 23 points. Provisions were firm and cotton oil was easy.

WHEAT.

Price changes in the wheat market were confined within narrow limits, but a steadier feeling prevailed and the market was generally higher closing with net gains of ⅛c. Advices from Argentina gave no indication of any improvement in the situation there as far as the quality and the quantity of the new crop were concerned.

Cash markets in the Northwest were firmer and The Northwestern Miller was quoted as saying that stocks in country elevators have decreased 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 bushels. Argentine shipments for the week were estimated at 2,000,000 bushels, compared with 1,600,000 last week and 5,168,000 last year.

In the local cash market No. 2 hard Winter wheat was quoted at 98⅛c c. i. f. to arrive; No. 2 red $1.00½ nominal elevator domestic, No. 1 Nor. Duluth $1.02⅛ f. o. b., and No. 1 Nor. Manitoba $1.01¼ f. o. b.

CORN.

Prices in the corn market were steadier, closing at an advance of ⅛c to ¼c, owing to covering and fairly active buying by commission houses. Interior cash markets were a little steadier, and there was less pressure of Argentine offers, but little or no improvement in the cash demand.

In the local cash market No. 3 yellow corn was quoted at 69⅝c, cost, insurance, and freight, to arrive.

OATS.

The oats market was also firm, in sympathy with the other markets. The local cash market was dull, standard white being quoted at 44½c to 45c; No. 2, 45c to 45½c; No. 3, 44c to 44½c; No. 4, 43½c to 44c; ordinary clipped white, 44c to 46c; fancy clipped white, 45c to 47c, all elevator.

COTTON.

There was a heavy general selling movement in the cotton market yesterday, and prices on nearly all the active months made new low ground for the season. Trading was more active than for months past on the decline, which carried May contracts off to 11.83, or fully $3.50 per bale below the recent high level, and 7 points under the lowest price reached on the break early in January. The market closed barely steady at a net loss of 10 to 23 points on the old crop, and of 10 points on the new crop months.

Southern spot markets as officially reported were unchanged to ⅛c lower, most of the larger markets being lower, either in sympathy with futures, as is frequently the case, or through increased offerings from the interior. The local market for spot cotton was quiet and 10 points lower at 12.65 for middling upland; sales nil; delivered on contract, 800 bales.

The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.
February	12.15	12.11	12.05@12.08	12.19

COTTONSEED OIL.

Trading in the cottonseed oil market was inactive, but prices during the first part of the day ruled steady. The sharp break in cotton during the afternoon had a disturbing influence on sentiment, however, and late in the day the market was easier, closing net unchanged to 2 points lower.

The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

PROVISIONS.

The market for provisions was firmer owing to an advance of 5 to 10 points in the hog market and owing to predictions that the colder weather in the West will result in lighter receipts of hogs. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 28,000; estimated for Friday, 22,000; Kansas City received 6,000 and Omaha 7,500.

COFFEE.

Trading in the coffee market was again quiet, total sales for the day aggregating 28,000 bags, but after opening at a decline of 2 to 3 points, values hardened, and at the close were steady at the best of the day, with net gains of 5 to 8 points. European markets were also steady, Havre closing at an advance of 1¼f to ½f, while Hamburg was net unchanged for the day.

TO SEEK COMMERCE IN SOUTHERN LANDS

SEE GREAT FIELDS OPENING

Mission from Government to Study Banking Methods—Many Industries Represented by Explorers.

On their way to South America, where they will study trade and investment opportunities with a view of building up commerce between the United States and the Latin American republics, fifty manufacturers and Directors of corporations, members of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, arrived here yesterday. They are at the Waldorf.

Edward N. Hurley, Vice President of the association and President of the Hurley Machine Company of Chicago, is in charge of the party. Secretary of Commerce Redfield has asked him to report, when he returns, upon South American banking methods, so that the Government may aid the development of commerce.

Mr. Hurley said yesterday that the purpose of the journey to South America was not to make sales for Middle West manufacturers, but to familiarize them with the people and markets of the southern republics. Several bank Directors, members of the party, are alive to the possibilities for foreign investment opened to them by the new Currency act, which allows national banks to establish foreign branches.

Thus the trip is in anticipation of a healthy growth of commerce between North and South America. Many members of the party believe that with the co-operation of the Government of the United States great fields for investment and trade soon will be opened in the Latin American republics.

"Many of the members of the party are quite as much interested in ascertaining the opportunities for investment as in extending the market for their own products," Mr. Hurley said last night.

"The great possibilities of South America are realized in Chicago," he continued, "perhaps more keenly than in any other part of the United States. One evidence of this is that the Chicago Association of Commerce already has placed an exhibit in Buenos Aires and has stationed there a highly competent representative. We hope to place in the new museum at Rio Janeiro an exhibit of manufactured products."

Concerning his investigation of banking methods for the Department of Commerce, Mr. Hurley said:

"That is all ahead of me, but I may say that there is very keen interest in the subject on the part of all bankers with whom I have talked. Of course the great thing is for manufacturers and exporters to get their first orders, and already many of them are exporting to South America, but the development of trade must go hand in hand with the development of investments in South America, so I look upon our study of banking and credits as of prime importance."

The party will sail at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon on the new Lamport & Holt liner Vauban. The principal cities of almost all of the South American republics will be visited. Most of the members of the party expect to return here on April 10. Members of the party are interested in the manufacture of agricultural implements, road building machinery, stoves, glass, pneumatic tools and hardware of all kinds.

Many of the manufacturers are accompanied by their wives. Among those in the party are: G. A. Stephens, President of the Moline Plow Company; Charles Page Bryan, C. F. Gunther, Herman H Hettler, F. W. Matthiessen, W. P. Benson, J. H. Holpuch, Willis H. Booth, and Robert H. Patchin.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Affirmances and a Reversal by the General Appraisers.

Silk galloons and trimmings imported by Veit, Son & Co., New York, under the Tariff act of 1897, were held yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers to be properly assessed at the rate of 60 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 390. They were claimed dutiable at 45 per cent. under Paragraph 320 as tapes or ornaments. Judge Howell stated that the testimony of the importers was inadequate to sustain the contention.

Women's straw hats trimmed with silk ribbon were granted a rate of 50 per cent. ad valorem under the provision in the old law for trimmed hats. The action of the Collector at New York in exacting 60 per cent. as silk wearing apparel was reversed. The importers were J. & H. Rosenberg, Inc.; Burby, the R. L. Cochran Company, Berlinger, Brown & Meyer; R. F. Downing & Co., Fillmann, Lee & Happel; A. H. Ringk & Co., and I. Lichtenstein, New York. Several merchants objected to the imposition of 60 per cent. duty on women's hats composed wholly or in chief value of silk. Claims for lower duty were made but overruled. The unsuccessful protestants included Zucker & Josephy, Hunken, Neele & Forbes, H. Bendel, L. A. Consmiller, and J. & H. Rosenberg, Inc.

The Universal Shipping Company, Chicago, was sustained in a claim that wool known as "Welsh tailing" is properly dutiable at 4 cents a pound under the old law as of Class 3. The Collector was reversed in his assessment of 11 cents a pound as of the first class.

San Francisco importers of bean cake failed to secure lower duty on this product. It was assessed at 40 per cent. under the specific provision for such goods in the act of 1909, and was claimed properly dutiable at 20 per cent. ad valorem as an unenumerated manufactured article.

BRYAN URGES CAUTION.

Doesn't Want Japanese Included in Exclusion Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Testifying before the House Immigration Committee to-day behind closed doors, William J. Bryan urged that all legislation for the exclusion of Asiatic laborers for the present be limited to the exclusion of Hindus. Secretary Bryan's conference with the committee was the result of efforts by Pacific Coast Congressmen to force the committee to act favorably on the Raker bill providing for the exclusion of all Asiatics, a bill that is aimed to keep Japanese laborers from the country.

Members of the committee were pledged to secrecy, but some of the facts became known, and it was learned that the committee's session opened with a controversy over placing the responsibility upon various members of the committee for giving out news about other secret sessions of the committee.

After listening to this dispute for a while Mr. Bryan remarked that the committee had his sympathies, because some of the secrets of the State Department had got out mysteriously. Mr. Bryan then advised the committee to proceed cautiously in its consideration of the Asiatic exclusion bills. He spoke of the gentleman's agreement between this country and the Japanese Government by which Japan agreed to do everything within its power to divert the direction of Japanese immigration.

Post Office News Item.

Information is received from Postmaster Morgan that insufficient postage is paid on many letters mailed in the United States addressed for delivery in Central and South America.

The only foreign destinations to which the two-cent letter rate applies are Canada, Cuba, Mexico, the Republic of Panama, Newfoundland, Canal Zone, Germany, (by direct steamers only,) England, Scotland, Wales, and Ireland, and the City of Shanghai, China. To all other places the rate is 5 cents for the first ounce or fraction of an ounce, and 3 cents for each additional ounce or fraction of an ounce, which must be fully prepaid or the letters become liable on delivery to a charge equal to double the amount of the deficient postage. For instance, a single-rate letter prepaid only 2 cents would be short-paid 3 cents, and, consequently, subject on delivery to an additional postage charge of 6 cents.

As charges for postage due on short-paid letters give rise to much complaint, the Postmaster cautions the patrons of the Post Office respecting the matter.

M., Feb. 2, and are due in New York on the morning of Saturday, Feb. 7.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—A great area of high pressure overspreads the northern part of the country from Maine to Montana and depression of large extent is central in the Southwest, with lowest pressure in New Mexico. Scattered rains have fallen in Middle and South Atlantic Coast States, and there have been showers and thunderstorms in the Gulf States, with very heavy rains locally in the lower Mississippi Valley.

The temperature is still quite low in the Mississippi Valley and the upper Missouri Valleys, and thence eastward to Maine.

Rain in southern, snow in northern districts of the middle Mississippi Valley, snow in the Lake region and Ohio Valley will prevail Friday, spreading eastward into the Middle Atlantic States nad New England by Friday night or Saturday.

It will be colder Friday in the middle Rocky Mountain region, Oklahoma, Texas, and a reaction toward higher temperatures in the upper Missouri Valley will set in Saturday. In the East and South the present relatively high temperatures will be replaced by colder weather by the end of the week

Winds for Friday and Saturday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate northeast, becoming southeast; Middle Atlantic Coast light to moderate northeast, becoming southeast; South Atlantic Coast, moderate south, increasing; East Gulf, moderate southeast to south, increasing; West Gulf, moderate south; Lake Michigan, moderate east, increasing, with snow late Friday.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair Friday, except snow in extreme south; Saturday snow; moderate north winds, becoming southeast.

Southern New England—Fair Friday; Saturday snow; moderate northeast winds on the coast.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Cloudy Friday, probably snow at night; Saturday snow or rain; light variable winds, becoming southeast.

Western New York—Fair Friday; Saturday snow, with rising temperature, variable winds, becoming moderate south.

Northern New England—Fair Friday; Saturday snow; light northeast winds.

	1913.	1914.		1913.	1914.
3 A. M.	24	33	4 P. M.	25	35
9 A. M.	21	30	9 P. M.	21	32
12 M.	25	31	11 P. M.	21	33

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 33; for the corresponding date last year it was 24; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 30.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 31; at 8 P. M. it was 32. Maximum temperature, 35 degrees at 4 P. M.; minimum, 29 degrees at 8:40 A. M. Humidity, 58 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 59 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.13 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.26 inches.

EDUCATION NOTES.

Public School 150, Brooklyn, will be opened on Saturday nights as a social and recreation centre, beginning this Saturday. The hours will be from 8 to 10:30 P. M. The Council of Jewish Women has been conducting since the middle of October, 1913, a social centre on Saturday evenings in this school. It is said that the average attendance has been more than 300 each night. Owing to the poor attendance at Evening Recreation Centre 30, Manhattan, it has been closed on Saturday nights. Enough money is therefore made available for the opening of Public School 150, Brooklyn, as a social centre under the jurisdiction of the Board of Education.

The following have received temporary licenses as teachers in training in the high schools in the subjects named:

Physics—Hyman Greenberg.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission has approved the request of Assistant Chief Examiner Murray relative to a communication from the Corporation Counsel explaining the recent promotion of Albert B. Ovitt and Philip N. Harrison to Deputy Assistant Corporation Counsels, in connection with the protest filed with the commission by Charles J. O'Sullivan, to the effect that provision was made in the budget for two Deputy Assistants in the tenement house branch, (for which he was a candidate for promotion,) and that the promotions were made by certification of promotion lists for two other divisions of the department. Mr. Murray says that it appears from the facts cited by the Corporation Counsel that none of the charges of Mr. O'Sullivan are based upon actual condition, and that the promotions complained of were entirely within the provisions of the rules.

The commission has also approved the following report of Labor Clerk Coffey:

Forwarding request of the Commissioner of Street Cleaning that a practical examination be held in order that John Barrett may qualify for transfer from blacksmith's helper to house painter. Approved. Examination to be held before closing of school.

Forwarding request of the Commissioner of Street Cleaning that a practical examination be held by which Thomas Feehan may qualify for transfer from blacksmith's helper to blacksmith. Mr. Coffey says that if the examination were held now it would necessitate the employment of an expert examiner, as the regular examination for this position will not be held until the latter part of May. Approved. Examination to be held at time of regular test.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an open competitive examination at the New York Custom House for statistical clerk, for both men and women, on March 4, to fill vacancies in the departmental service at Washington, D. C., at salaries ranging from $900 to $1,200 a year. Competitors will be examined in outlining statistical tables from a submitted schedule, practical test in statistical work, and education and experience. In order to qualify applicants must have had experience of such a nature that they are able to outline statistical tables from a submitted schedule and perform usual statistical computations. Experience in stenography, typewriting, and the operation of computing machines is desirable, although not required. Consideration will be given to all of the applicant's educational training and experience. Applicants must have reached their twentieth but not their fortieth birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

POLICE AND FIRE NEWS.

Police Department.

Ordered read to all platoons: Capt. John F. Sweeney, 15 Prect., having been tried on charges before a Deputy Com., has been found guilty of neglect of duty. Recommendation has been made for his dismissal from the department.

The specification of the charge stated, in effect, that Capt. Sweeney, responsible for the enforcement of the law, preservation of the peace, and the protection of life and property within the territory allotted to his command, grossly failed and neglected to take such reasonable precautions as would tend to prevent the commission of a serious crime on the public highway. This in view of the intention of an association to conduct a ball in a licensed dance hall within Capt. Sweeney's precinct, together with the fact that the roster of officers and members of this association included the names of many persons well known to the police to be of evil repute.

The defense consisted of a general denial of foreknowledge or forewarning concerning the intention of the association to conduct a ball or the character of the membership of the association.

This defense is entirely inadequate. The finding of Capt. John F. Sweeney guilty of the charges of neglect of duty, dated Jan. 10, 1914, is hereby approved. Taking into consideration Capt. Sweeney's twenty-eight years on the force and that he had only been two months a Captain, he is fined thirty days' pay.

Tranfers: A. C. Johnson, 36 Prect., to Com.'s off.; C. S. Crosson, 37 Prect., to Com.'s off.; Fred Schaub, 37, to 277 Prect.; W. J. Ferrick, 277 Prect. to 37 Prect. Deaths reported: J. L. Hayward, 38 Prect.; Act. Sergt. J. J Kelly, Det. Div.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Quick Resale of Two West Side Apartment Houses by Bing & Bing—Deal Involves $665,000—Zabriskie Residence Presented to Church—An Active Bronx and Brooklyn Market.

A west side apartment house sale of more than ordinary interest, in that it involves the quick turning over to an investor of the two structures taken by L. S. & A. M. Bing from Mrs. Morris K. Jesup in part payment for her recent purchase of the seventeen-story apartment on the northeast corner of Park Avenue and Seventy-ninth Street, formed the prominent feature of the realty market yesterday.

The property involved the two houses on the southwest corner of Broadway and Eighty-second Street. They were purchased for investment by Robert B. Dula, the former head of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company. The deal was an entirely cash transaction, the consideration being about $665,000, the asking price.

The apartments bought by Mr. Dula are the Saxony, a seven-story structure on the immediate corner, 90.4 on Broadway by 102 on Eighty-second Street, and the six-story De Witt, adjoining on Eighty-second Street, fronting 55 on that thoroughfare, making a total street frontage of 157 feet. Although of the older type, the houses have always been well maintained and well rented.

The transaction was negotiated by Loton H. Slawson and Horner & Co.

Fort Washington Apartment Deal.

Negotiations are practically closed for the sale to an investor of the recently completed six-story apartment house on the southeast corner of Northern Avenue and 178th Street, 92.6 by 100. The property is owned by the Ambrose Realty Company, of which W. N. Harte is President. The company acquired it at foreclosure a month ago.

Presents House to Church.

Miss Ethel Zabriskie has made a gift to the Church of the Transfiguration, of which the Rev. Dr. George Clarke Houghton is rector, of the old residence at 14 East Thirtieth Street, 22.2 by 98.9. It was the old Zabriskie residence and the gift has been made in memory of Miss Zabriskie's mother. The house abuts on the rear the church property on Twenty-ninth Street, between Madison and Fifth Avenues, and will be used for parish activities.

84th Street Buyer for Apartment.

Samuel A. Herzog is the buyer of the three flats at 114 to 118 East Eighty-fourth Street, sold recently by Douglas L. Elliman & Co. for Henry B. Anderson. The plot fronts 60.5 feet, and Mr. Herzog, who has built several apartments on both the east and west sides of the city, intends to improve the plot with a nine-story building. The plot is just east of Park Avenue.

Tenement Property Sold.

John L. Rubinsky has sold to Isadore M. Levy, for investment, the premises 204 Broome Street, a six-story tenement house on a lot 25 by 100.

James Kyle & Sons have sold for the estate of Harlan P. Smith the five-story tenement, with stores, 591 Third Avenue, on lot 20 by 100 feet.

Bronx Borough Sales.

D. A. Trotta has sold for Simeon M. Barber to A. Robert Munro a plot 50 by 86 feet, on the east side of Arthur Avenue, 125 feet south of 186th Street.

Alexander Selkin has sold for Annie Josephson 3,276 Decatur Avenue, between 207th and 209 Streets, a two-family brick house, on lot 25 by 100, to Florence J. Sullivan, for occupancy.

Richard H. Scobie resold for a client to the P. J. Dwyer Building Company, for cash, the northwest corner of Southern Boulevard and Crotona Parkway and Fairmount Place, a plot 54.93 feet on Southern Boulevard, 128.48 feet on Fairmount Place, and 105.42 feet on the north side.

The purchasers will improve same at once with a six-story high-class apartment house. This plot is opposite the new $400,000 theatre now in course of construction. The same broker sold the balance of the block north of this plot a few weeks ago to John McNulty, a builder.

The Alde Construction Company took title yesterday to the property 927 Forest Avenue, 66 feet south of 163d Street, on a lot 31.62 by 100; also, a lot on Jackson Avenue, 72 feet south of 163d Street, 26.64 by 75, sold by the Forest Realty Company through Alexander Selkin.

Brooklyn.

The Jerome Property sold 153 and 155 Bridge Street, between Sands and High Streets, a four-story double brick building containing stores and flats, on a lot 28 by 100, for Louis Weill to a client, for investment. The same firm also resold for a client to Evan L. Tamblyn, for occupancy, 424 First Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues, a two-story and basement brownstone residence, on lot 18 by 100.

Wood, Harmon & Co. have sold at Marlboro three lots on West Eleventh Street, near Avenue O, to A. E. Doan, W. T. Doan, and P. R. Doan; two lots on West Tenth Street, near Avenue P, to G. C. Covill and J. K. Kincaid; one lot on West Ninth Street, near Avenue P, to O. C. Spratt; one lot on West Fifth Street, near Sixty-fifth Street, to S. A. Wiltsey; one lot on West Second Street, near Kings Highway, to S. A. Stults; three lots at the southwest corner of Sixty-third Street and Twenty-second Avenue to W. G. Conley, and one lot on Kings Highway, near Sixty-fifth Street, to S. A. Wiltsey.

The Alco Building Company, associated with the Realty Trust, has sold to Louis Gold the vacant plot, 80 by 100, on the northeasterly corner of Eighteenth Avenue and Sixty-second Street, and a similar plot on the southwesterly corner of the same intersection.

The Kraslow Construction Company has sold two of its three new buildings on the easterly side of Twentieth Avenue, adjoining the Sea Beach tracks. These are two of a group of three buildings having stores and two stories above them. The corner, on a plot 20 by 100, brought $16,000, while the inside building brought $11,000. This property was only recently bought from the Realty Trust, and the improvement has taken place during the last three months. The buyer is an investor.

Long Island.

The Windsor Land and Improvement Company has sold at Hempstead to K. Kiernan, a plot 20 by 96, and to J. Stahl, a plot 40 by 90, on Milburn Avenue; to A. M. M. Denker, a plot 60 by 100 on Maujer Street.

New Jersey.

The Lawyers' Building, one of the largest commercial structures in Passaic, was sold yesterday by Phillip Simon to the Regal Land and Improvement Company of Brooklyn. The structure, which is known as 223 and 225 Main Avenue, has been held at $75,000.

Takes Title to Grand Street Corner

Charles Laue has taken title to the three five-story commercial buildings on the northeast corner of Grand and Greene Streets from Lillie Freeman. The plot is 75 by 200. The sale was a cash transaction, the consideration being about $185,000, and Mr. Laue gives back a mortgage of $135,000. Jacob Freeman represented the seller in the recent sale. The corner store has just been leased by Mr. Laue.

Mortgage Loans Placed.

Smith & Phelps have placed a first mortgage loan of $3,500 on 2,747 Kingsbridge Terrace, a seven-room private dwelling, on plot 50 by 112. Also a first mortgage loan of $4,000 on 1,784 Sedgwick Avenue, a two-story dwelling, on lot 25 by irregular.

Private Dwellings Leased.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. have leased for the estate of Annie T. Thorne, 32 East Fiftieth Street, a five-story American basement dwelling, on a lot 30 by 95, for a long term of years, to Thomas L. Manson of the firm of Thomas L. Manson Company, bankers.

Pease & Elliman have leased for P. F. Francke his four-story and basement residence, 15 feet wide, at 141 East Thirty-seventh Street, to Mrs. C. Spencer.

Commercial Leases.

The Illinois Central Railroad Company has leased the Liberty Street wing of the twelfth floor of the Mutual Life Building. The executive offices of that company will occupy the space on or about the first of May, moving thereto from 115 Broadway. The lease is for a long term.

Shaw & Co. have leased for the Nassau Mortgage Company for a term of twenty-one years 118 and 120 East 129th Street, two three-story and basement brick and stone dwellings, on a plot 40 by 100 feet, to a client, who will alter the premises, turning them into a business building.

Frederick Fox & Co. have concluded negotiations for the leasing of an entire floor, containing about 14,000 square feet, in the new Lewisohn Building, Fortieth to Forty-first Street, for a long term of years, to the Fuchs & Lang Manufacturing Company.

Real Estate Notes.

Ground was broken yesterday for a commercial structure to be erected on the southwest corner of Broadway and Ninety-fifth Street by Vincent Astor.

The holding has a frontage of 165.3 feet on Broadway and 125 feet on Ninety-fifth Street, and the improvement will be designed by Charles A. Platt.

STRIKE INVESTIGATORS OFF.

House Sub-Committees Leave for Colorado and Michigan.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Sub-committees charged by the House to investigate the strikes in the coal mine fields of Colorado and the copper mine region of Michigan left to-night for their fields of work. Mr. Foster of Illinois, Chairman of the Committee on Mines, and Messrs. Byrnes of South Carolina, Evans of Montana, Democrats; Austin of Tennessee and Southerland of West Virginia, Republicans, left for Denver. Messrs. Slater of Colorado, Casey of Pennsylvania, Democrats, and Howell of Utah, Republican, started for Hancock, Mich. Mr. Hamlin of Missouri, Democrat, and Mr. Switzer of Ohio, Republican, will join the Michigan sub-committee later.

The Colorado committee will hold hearings at Trinidad, Boulder, Walsenburg, Denver, and other places. The Michigan investigators will have sessions at Hancock, Houghton, Calumet, and other towns. Chairman Foster said it probably would take about two weeks in the Colorado field, and Representative Taylor, heading the Michigan party, figured on being away about three weeks.

The Beach Is Your Own

wherever you locate at Neponsit, New York City; 40 minutes by Long Island electric trains from Pennsylvania Station, New York, or Flatbush Avenue Station, Brooklyn. It is the only seashore property where all purchasers are given perpetual rights to the enjoyment in common of the beach and ocean front. It is a community of beautiful homes—a restricted colony of refined, cultured people. The beach extends one-half a mile and affords perfect surf bathing.

BEACH RIGHTS TO ALL PROPERTY OWNERS

For an all-year home, where social and recreative features abound, Neponsit is admirable.

A few more artistic houses and bungalows are nearing completion. Act now, if you wish to occupy your seaside home next Spring and Summer. Write, call or 'phone Greeley 2741 for full information.

Move Your Desk Into the Sunshine

All day sunshine streams into the offices to let in the quiet, upper floors of The Times Building. Generous sized windows—every one on the outside—admit working light to each square foot of space. The nearest building is a hundred feet away, across the street, and most of the neighboring structures are low. You can do a better day's work in the sunlight.

KERNOCHAN'S CLUBS EAT UP HIS INCOME

Referee Recommends $9,000 Annual Allowance from Insane Aunt's Estate.

HE WOULD LIKE TO MARRY

Society Man Has Published Many Songs Netting $30 a Year and Has Finished a Cantata.

Comment on New York club life, inside details of the problems of a young composer and intimate revelations of how the high cost of living hits a young man of a socially prominent family and limited income were given by Marshall R. Kernochan, the thirty-one-year-old nephew of Special Sessions Justice J. Frederic Kernochan, before Referee Charles E. Lydecker, of 2 Rector Street.

The referee recommended to Supreme Court Justice Whitaker that Kernochan get an allowance of $9,000 a year from the $3,142,035.78 estate of his aunt, Miss Marie Marshall. Kernochan now enjoys an income of $3,750 a year and has been spending more than $4,700 annually. He indicated on examination before the referee that he wanted to marry.

Kernochan testified that if he did not get an allowance in addition to his present income he would have to sell his automobile and would resign from all his clubs except the Union and the Knickerbocker, which were dearest to him. He said his clubs, for dues alone, cost him $1,315 a year. He mentioned dues of $150 for the Brook, $125 each for the Union, Racquet, and Knickerbocker; $100 for the Tuxedo, $75 for the Lenox, $50 for the Automobile Club of America, and $30 each for the Grolier and West Side Tennis clubs. He explained the uses to which he put the clubs in this examination.

Q.—Now, Mr. Kernochan, will you tell us the uses to which you put these various clubs—I mean, why you have joined the various clubs? A.—I get my exercise at the Racquet Club, and in the Spring I usually go to the West Side Tennis Club in the city, and at Tuxedo whenever I can get there.

Q.—Now, are the Union and Knickerbocker Clubs the clubs where all your friends are? A.—Yes; those are the clubs I use almost entirely for social purposes.

Q.—Now, at neither of the last two clubs the Union and the Knickerbocker, can you take a resident of New York to dine? A.—Exactly. That is my only reason for belonging to the Brook, and also because they have sleeping rooms, and I can stay there more inexpensively than at a hotel when I come to town.

Q.—Now, the Players and the Grolier Club you belong to for professional reasons? A.—Well, I belong to the Grolier on account of the books and to the Players on account of the professional people who belong to it.

A Clubman's Check Books.

Kernochan produced his check books to show how he spent his money from Jan. 1, 1911, to Jan. 1, 1912. He said he spent $404.25 for clothes, including haberdashery, during the year. He paid $400 for his personal taxes and $160 for medical and dental bills. For his chauffeur, whom he paid $100 a month, and his motor car maintenance, he paid $1,518.22. His house charges at clubs he said amounted to $1,395.70. His checks did not show personal Christmas and wedding gifts nor the expenses of accepting week-end invitations from friends, his entertainments to men friends at clubs, nor about $200 a year he spent indulging his taste for books and magazines.

Kernochan said he had spent eight years in studying music, but played no musical instrument. He mentioned Herman Wetzler, conductor of the opera at Riga, Russia; Ivan Knorr of Frankfort, Germany, and Dr. Percy Goetsches as his teachers. His examination on the subject of his musical career was in part as follows:

Q.—What is your occupation? A.—Musical composition.

Q.—Now, Mr. Kernochan, have you composed any musical pieces yet that have been put on the market? A.—Oh, yes, quite a few.

Q.—Will you tell me what you have published? A.—The first is called "You Love Me Yet." The second is called "Wanting is What" by Browning. The third is called "The Folk Song" by Henley. The fourth is called "Out on the Rolling Ocean" by Walt Whitman. The fifth is called "Unconquered," also by Henley. These are published by T. W. Thompson & Co., of Boston. In New York there is one called "At the Window," one called "Give a Rouse" by Browning, "The City of Sleep" by Kipling, and "The Smuggler's Song," also by Kipling. Then the next is "Song of Ylan" by Kipling, and "Two Together" by Walt Whitman. Then come a chorus caled "Fresh Spring," by Edmund Spenser; then comes "A Serenade at the Villa" by Browning, and "Around Us the Wild Creatures," also by Browning.

Q.—Then your compositions are practically all songs? A.—Yes, there is a cantata, which has just been accepted—at least I have been told it will be accepted.

Q.—That is very long. A.—Yes, very long.

Q.—About how many pages? A.—About sixty-one pages, as I remember. It will be more when it is published. It will come to about 100 pages.

Q.—And you have been working on that continuously for about how long? A.—About eight months.

Q.—And this is the last thing you have done? A.—No, I have done a few songs since then which are still in manuscript.

Q.—About how many copies of these have been sold, do you know? A.—Well, some of them have sold as few as five copies and some have sold up to 1,200.

Q.—About how much have you made as the result of the sales of this music? A.—Well, I should say about $30 a year.

Q.—The publishers publish this music at their expense when they take the songs? A.—Yes, they take the gamble.

Q.—And, Mr. Kernochan, you do a certain amount of advertising? A.—Yes.

Q.—And that costs more, as a matter of fact, than what you have made? A.—Oh, yes. The whole thing, I suppose, costs me $175 a year on advertising.

Q.—Mr. Kernochan, how much time during the year do you spend on musical composition? A.—I suppose about nine months.

Q.—And how many hours a day? A.—I suppose during the time I am working about five hours.

Q.—And do you do anything in connection with disposing of it? A.—Oh, yes. A good deal of time is taken up in disposing of what I have done.

Referee Says He's Moral.

Referee Lydecker came to the conclusion that Kernochan should be encouraged to keep up his music, and said of him::

"It is unfortunate that the petitioner has been brought up in surroundings which have led him into extravagances beyond his income. He has been led to belong to clubs and to mingle in a society which necessitated the expenditure of money beyond his means. The evidence, however, shows that he has been ambitious, of good character, is clean and moral and is without bad habits or excesses."

Kernochan said categorically that he wanted to marry and that his mother wanted him to marry. His further examination seemed to indicate that he wished to marry without having to consider the financial condition of his future wife. It was in part:

Q.—Does the fact that your income is so small prevent you at the present time from making an offer of marriage? A.—Yes, it does.

Q.—And if the allowance asked for should be granted you would make an offer of marriage with the fair hope of receiving an acceptance? A.—I should think I might.

Q.—Well, you would make the offer? A.—I probably should.

His patrimony, Kernochan complained, had been eaten up. He was examined thus:

Q.—Now, you received some money from your father, did you not, at his death! A.—I did, almost exactly $101,000.

Q.—And what did you do wit hit? A.—Well, I invested it more or less successfully, principally less.

He explained that he had sold stocks at a loss during the 1907 depression, among them 200 shares of Northern Pacific he had bought for 216, at about 100, and so on. His mother had partially made up these losses to him by giving him $50,000. Five years ago, however, he said, she stopped his allowance of $200 a month. At the same time, he said, most of his clubs raised their dues about $50 a year, on account of the high cost of living.

Kernochan said he had been obliged to take a great deal of exercise on account of an attack of jaundice which kept him from going to college. For this reason, he said, he could not take up any sedentary profession or occupation. He had thereupon decided, when he was kept out of Yale by jaundice, to follow music as a profession, because he liked it.

Kernochan's stepfather, William Pollock, of Pittsfield, Mass., testified that his wife, Mrs. Louise M. Pollock, was spending $25,000 a year more than her income, and could not give Kernochan an allowance. Of her the referee said:

Mother Has 37 Servants.

"She has been spending her inheritance (more than $1,200,000) far in excess of its productiveness; she feels cramped in her efforts to maintain her home and surroundings on the scale to which she has always been accustomed, and some of her investments have been very unprofitable."

Mrs. Pollock is 61 years old, and has a town house at 1 East Eighty-eighth Street, in addition to occupying the old Oliver Wendell Holmes place of 400 acres at Pittsfield. At her country home, Pollock said, his wife had twenty-five servants, as against twelve at her town house. Her bill for servants alone, he said, was $16,260 a year, and at that she didn't have a chef, but only a cook.

A Sale Of Sohmer Pianos
New $500 Sohmer Piano for $390

THIS is the lowest price at which a new Sohmer Piano has ever been sold. We have only a limited number. The reason for this reduction is that our new catalog, just going to press, will show a piano with a slightly different case design. Were this piano to be catalogued, it would be priced at $500. Both in interior construction and finish it is a typical Sohmer Piano—the Piano of Permanent Tone.

The Sohmer is one of the few really artistic pianos and is regarded by thousands of music lovers as the finest piano built. The price of the Sohmer is a never-varying standard, and this sale is simply the result of a most unusual circumstance.

$1050 Sohmer-Cecilian Player Piano $695

The manufacturers of the famous Cecilian players are in the hands of a receiver. We happen to have a very few on hand, which are brand new and which we will sell at $695 instead of $1050 in order to quickly dispose of them. This represents a never-to-be-repeated opportunity to secure the combination of a player which has been very popular with music lovers and the famous Sohmer Piano.

We suggest that you act at once, as this announcement is certain to attract a wide response, and the limited number of both Pianos and Player Pianos insures a rapid sale of all available instruments.

¶ The touch of daintiness that is seen in everything here is accentuated at the afternoon tea by the little Japanese maids who preside at the tea service. But keep in mind that CARLTON TERRACE will always seek to be known as a place whose kitchen is under intelligent direction.
